TRADE LITERATURE

Ontario Architects.

The Procedings of the Ontario Architects' special general meeting of the 23d National Convention, are published in book form from the office of Herbery E. Moore, 94 King street West, Toronto, Ontario.

Fire Places.

In the January number of Radiation, published by the United States Radiator Corporation (10 cents, 3 West 29th stret) is an article on the "Development of the Fireplace," and any architect who is interested in this feature of a building and who is desirous of introducing new ideas into his work will find this article by B. H. Smith to be of exceptional interest. He begins with the earliest known fireplace and carries his readers in an interesting manner through the development of fireplaces down to the present day. The article is well illustrated and is well worth reading.

Western Engineers.

The January number of the Journal of the Western Society of Engineers contains an interesting paper by Charles H. Wacker on "The Chicago Plan" dealing with city planning. This article covers the work of the Chicago Plan Commission in part and gives some interesting data of particular interest to those interested in civic matters.

Public Markets.

The American City for February (price 25 cents, 93 Nassau street, New York) has an interesting article by J. F. Carter, secretary of the San Antonio, Texas, Chamber of Commerce on Public Markets and Marketing Methods. A survey of market methods in 100 American cities is given and it embraces the subject comprehensively. The article is illustrated by cuts of markets in different parts of the country, notably the famous screened market of New Orleans, which is said to be flyproof.

A Modern Elevator Installation.

The twenty-story office building at Broadway and 20th street, which Bing & Bing, owners, are completing from plans of Robert T. Lyons, will be particularly well provided with elevator service, the installation to consist of four passenger elevators of the 2:1 Gearless Traction type, having a lifting capacity of 3,000 pounds, and traveling at a speed of 450 feet per minute; four combined passenger and freight elevators of the tandem worm gear drum type, having a lifting capacity of 3,500 pounds, and a speed of 300 feet per minute with a load of 3,000 pounds. One of these elevators will also be provided with a safe-lifting attachment for carrying loads up to 6,000 pounds at a slow speed.

In addition to the eight elevators mentioned above, running the entire height of the building, there will be installed a private passenger elevator and a private freight elevator for the use of the tenants occupying the basement, first and second floors.

"Safety Engineering."

Beginning with the March number Insurance Engineering will be known as Safety Engineering. It will be published by the same company, with Franklin Webster as editor, Ira Gould Hoagland, editor and manager, and A. C. Carruthers, business manager. In the January number (80 Maiden lane, price, 25 cents) an exhaustive article is published on Motion Picture Theatres, especially in relation to fire protection in them.

What Sprinklers Will Do.

Since the discovery of the X-ray, our views concerning the composition of matter have undergone a great change. We know now that many of the commonplace occurrences of everyday life depend on the actions and activities of particles too small to be rendered visible, even under the most powerful microscope. The methods which scientists have used to study these actions have been marvelously ingenious and delicate.

Especially our notions as to the precise nature of electricity and magnetism have changed. These are matters which are discussed chiefly by mathematical processes in Bulletin 62, just issued by the Engineering Experiment Station of the University of Illinois. The bulletin is entitled "The Electron Theory of Magnetism," and its author is Dr. Elmer H. Williams of the Department of Physics. Copies may be obtained upon application to W. F. M. Goss, director of the Engineering Experiment Station, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.

Mining Engineers.

The Feburary bulletin of the American Institute of Mining Engineers contains the following features: "The Effect of High Carbon on the Quality of Charcoal-Iron," by J. E. Johnson, Jr.; "The Iron-Ores of the South Range of the Cuyuna District, Minnesota," by Carl Zapffe and W. A. Barrows, Jr.; "Wittorff's Iron-Carbon Equilibrium Diagram," by Bradley Stoughton; "Fuel-Efficiency of the Cupola-Furnace," by John Jermain Porter; "Alloys of Cobalt with Chromium and other Metals," by Elwood Hayes; "The Function of Slag in Electric Steel Refining," by Richard Amberg; "Electrical Heating and the Removal of Phosphorus from Iron," by Albert E. Greene; "The Methods of the United States Steel Corporation for the Commercial Sampling and Analysis of Pig-Iron," by J. M. Camp; "Biographical Notice of Floris Osmond," by Albert Sauveur; and the "Discussion of Dr. Raymond's paper, Our National Resources and Our Federal Government," by George Otis Smith. All communications concerning the contents of the bulletin should be addressed to Joseph Struthers, Ph.D., Secretary and Editor, 29 West 39th street, New York City. (Price, $1 each; members, 50 cents.)

Park Avenue Improvement.

The proposed plan to change the grade of Park avenue at 34th street, so as to eliminate the hill at that point, came before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment last Thursday and after some discussion the matter was laid over for two weeks. Borough President McAneny and Chief Engineer Lewis of the Board of Estimate are in favor of the improvement. The plan was originally devised by Lloyd Collis, of the Fourth Avenue Association. It provided for the lowering of 34th street 6.22 feet at its intersection with Park avenue for a distance of 238 feet, and on the block to the west between Madison and Park avenues. Exclusive of damages the proposed cost is estimated at $150,000.

BEST BUYING MARKET.

For New York City Realty—The Security Company's Big Holdings.

The financial statement of the New York Real Estate Security Company, just issued, shows assets of $14,018,514.24 for 1912, as against assets of $10,594,305.96 for 1911. The increase of approximately three and a half million dollars ($3,424,208.28) represents the fourteen high-class income-producing New York City apartment houses that the company purchased during the year.

The holdings of the New York Real Estate Security Company at the close of business on December 31, 1912, totaled twenty-six properties. Since that time, however, it has consummated several deals that have largely increased its holdings of income-producing properties, and at the same time attracted a great deal of attention in real estate circles. The most notable of these recent deals was the purchase from former Vice-President Levi P. Morton of six large elevator apartment houses on the upper West Side. Through its purchases the company has become not only one of the most active operators in the New York City realty field, but also one of the largest owners of high-class income-producing properties on Manhattan Island. Several million dollars more have been added to the company's assets during the months of January and February of this year.

A careful analysis of the company's financial statement shows marked progress and a very healthy condition; and the company's operations, while showing unqualified confidence in carefully-selected New York City realty as an income-producer, have undoubtedly been conducted with more than ordinary conservatism. This is but natural, as the company buys for investment and not for speculation.

The last twelve or fourteen months during which the company made its heaviest purchases have without question been the best buying market known in years for New York City realty.

Materials in the Hotel McAlpin.

The exterior of the New Hotel McAlpin on Greeley Square is an interesting example of the application in feeling of detail of the sprit of the Italian Renaissance to the modern type of tall building construction, and is characterized throughout by a well-regulated use of colors and texture in the materials employed. The base of the building is constructed of Bedford stone, which supports the shaft of the design, constructed of golden brown tapestry brick, the mass of which is relieved by balconies of terra cotta or of iron, imparting to the structure the semi-residential character which differentiates the hotel from a purely commercial building. The crowning member of the design consists of a series of arched openings running through several stories in height, supporting a cornice and attic story, the whole being enriched with polychrome terra cotta. It is interesting to note one feature which largely influences the plan and arrangement of the first and second stories, an arrangement which marks a distinct departure from the established New York type of hostelry. This feature consists in the utilization of the valuable retail store renting space facing three streets and the location of the dining room and restaurant service of the house one story above street level, all of which has been accomplished while still retaining sufficient space on the ground floor to provide the hotel with the largest lobby in the city. This arrangement gives a very attractive outlook and street perspective from all cafe windows, while at the same time placing them above the dust and confusion of the sidewalk.

The furnishing of the lobby is of marble, executed in Italy, with seat cushions of red tooled leather, while distributed about the various points of interest are marble pedestals, vases and other decorative features.

The entire western aisle of the lobby, for a distance of 90 feet, is faced by a bronze and marble railing, enclosing the cashier, room clerk, key clerk, information desk and other departments.

At the corner of 33d street and Broadway on the second floor is located the ladies' cafe. This room being irregular in shape presented a particularly difficult problem in interior architecture and decoration, and is, therefore, of particular interest. The ceiling is very ornately decorated in a combination of relief ornament and fresco and is probably the most interesting example to be found in this country of this manner of decoration. The blending of the ceiling with the woodwork, side walls hung in Ardoise blue, with specially designed capitals of columns, models of which were made by Philip Martini, is most pleasing to the eye.

Weathering of Marble.

The assertion has frequently been made in these columns that nothing will stand the weathering, the test of time and the various other elements which go to work destruction like properly burned clay. We have evidence of this fact now and then from various sources and lately it is a special bulletin from the United States Geological Survey which tells how poorly marble gravestones stand the weather in our climate.

"The effect on white marble of such a climate as that of New England, outside of the cities, can be observed in many country churchyards and cemeteries. As the epitaphs on tombstones and monuments give the aproximate dates of their erection, the amount of dissolution by weathering in a century can be calculated. On a marble stone in horizontal position in the cemetery on Burial Hill, Plymouth, Mass., dated 1825, the lettering is almost effaced, and one of the same year in vertical position is badly weathered."

Also it is said that the weathering of marble in the smoke-laden atmospheres of great cities and the industrial centers is hastened not only by the action of atmospheric acids but also by the sulphuric acids arising from the smoke of railroads, factories, foundries and steam plants where soft coal is used.—"The Clay-Worker."

The Gurney Traction Elevator.

The Gurney Elevator Company, of 62 West 45th street, is sending out to the trade Bulletin No. 5 as an engineering supplement to Bulletin No. 4 under date of July, 1912, describing the Gurney type traction elevator. The contents treat of "Demonstration of Rope Traction," "Comparison of Efficiency of Low Speed and Normal Speed Electric Elevators," "A Treatise on the Theory and Advantages of Herringbone Gears" and "Deduction of Torque Requirements for Gurney Type Traction Elevator System." These articles are technical in character and describe fully and clearly certain mechanical factors in elevator efficiency.

H. F. Gurney, M. E., president of the company, writes the following foreword which is of didactic value to everybody concerned with elevator operation:

"In planning an elevator machine for elevators which are to travel to great heights and at high speed, we recognized that it was our duty, as engineers, to use the labor and material available, economically and efficiently, and to produce a machine that was absolutely safe.

"The gearless, or one-to-one type, which is the only type heretofore used for this service, had no patented features which would have prevented our adopting it. After an exhaustive study of the problem we determined that a gear reduction was the proper solution. While there is at first sight an objection to the use of gears where they can be avoided, it is necessary here, as in other branches of engineering design, to balance various forms of construction one against the other, and by a process of elimination to select the design which best satisfies the demands that the particular machine will be called upon to meet. The use of gears eliminates many undesirable features. Therefore, if gears can be made that will be safe, durable, operate silently, give absolutely smooth motion to the car, have low cost of maintenance and high efficiency, it is logical to use a gear reduction.

"Our long experience in the manufacture of spur and worm gear machines eliminates these types of gearing from any consideration. A careful study of all known types of gearing brought us, by a process of elimination, to the herringbone helical type, which is the one used in the Gurney Type Traction Elevator. We determined that this type satisfied economically and efficiently every condition of the problem.

"An investigation will disclose the fact that all principles and features involved in the construction and operation of this machine are sound, logical developments, based upon theory, which has been justified by a safe period of practical application. This machine has a higher efficiency than any other. It is beyond the scope of this bulletin to treat of all the principles or features of this remarkable machine, but a discussion or deduction of one or two, with a proof of what can be accomplished in quick acceleration, may prove interesting and perhaps instructive."

Decorating Modern Bathrooms.

In doing away with the cabinet work about the tub and other fixtures, the wainscot has naturally suffered the same fate. The custom has grown up to finish the walls of bathrooms with tiles, or at least to make a dado of tiles, and to paint the wall above, using as little woodwork as possible. But tiles are expensive and people of moderate means are often compelled to forego the luxury of having them. Still they want the effect of tiles upon the wall. To meet this, many wall paper manufacturers have put upon the market papers specially designed for bathrooms having tile figures, and being finished with a varnished surface that makes them perfectly waterproof. They answer the purpose fairly well, but are not so permanent as a painted wall. They are more difficult to hang than ordinary wall paper, and to do a first-class piece of work requires that the wall shall be first covered with white lining paper, in order to make a perfectly smooth job and to keep the joints of the varnished paper from separating after drying.

Probably the most satisfactory painted treatment of bathroom walls is in stenciled tile effects. The entire wall may be given this tile effect, or the tile design may be carried up as a dado to a height of some five feet where it should be capped with the border, and the wall painted in a plain tint above. For these tile designs light colors should be used in imitation of the tiles most generally used in bathrooms. Delft colorings are very popular, either dull blue or dull green on white or ivory white. Blue green on a background of pale cream is very pleasing, or a more pronounced green on a pale pink ground. Very light lemon yellow might be used as a ground color with the design stenciled in a light ochre tint. The color should be mixed so as to dry with a gloss. A good result could be obtained by mixing the color very thick for the last coat and adding a certain proportion of varnish, then stippling it on the wall in such a manner as to give a roughened effect. A coat of outside or flowing coach varnish over this would give the work the mellow tone that many of the art tiles have.

It is remarkable how conspicuously the tiniest bit of dust that may get worked into the varnish will show up when the work is finished, and great care must therefore be taken that dust is not present.—Practical Decorator.

Oil Mixed Concrete.

A bulletin of the Department of Agriculture, Office of Public Roads, has recently been issued which describes investigations of the effect of mixing oil with concrete.

While experimenting in the Office of Public Roads in an attempt to develop a non-absorbent, resilient, and dustless road material, one capable of withstanding the severe shearing and raveling action of automobile traffic, the writer's investigations led him into a very promising discovery. He found that, when a heavy residual oil was mixed with Portland cement paste, it entirely disappeared in the mixture, and, furthermore, did not separate from the other ingredients after the cement had become hard. The possibilities of oil-cement mixtures for waterproofing purposes were recognized and extensive laboratory tests were immediately begun to determine the physical properties of concrete and mortar containing various quantities of oil admixtures.

Many valuable data have been obtained from these investigations. The damp-proofing properties of concrete mixtures containing oil have been demonstrated very definitely by laboratory and by service tests which establish this material as one of great merit for certain types of concrete construction. It has also been shown that the admixture of oil is not detrimental to the tensile strength of mortar composed of 1 part of cement and 3 parts of sand when the oil added does not exceed 10 per cent of the weight of the cement used. The compressive strength of mortar and of concrete suffers slightly with the addition of oil, although when 10 per cent. of oil is added the decrease in strength is not serious.

Concrete mixed with oil requires a period of time about 50 per cent. longer to set hard than does plain concrete, but the increase in strength is nearly as rapid in the oil-mixed material as in the plain concrete. Concrete and mortar containing oil admixtures are almost perfectly non-absorbent of water, and so they are excellent materials to use in damp-proof construction. Under pressure, oil-mixed mortar is very efficient in resisting the permeation of water. Laboratory tests show that oil-mixed concrete is just as tough and stiff as plain concrete, and furthermore its elastic behavior within working limits of stress is identical to steel reinforcement is much decreased when plain bars are used. Deformed bars, however, and wire mesh or expanded metal will reinforce this material with practically the same efficiency as in ordinary concrete.

An Experience in School Building Competitions.

A number of years ago the Board of Education of a thriving city in one of the Middle States was confronted with the problem of a new school building. Upon deciding to have a competition for the selection of an architect the members of the board retained Walter Cook, now president of the American Institute of Architects, as professional adviser.

Mr. Cook relates his experience in the Architect and Engineer:

Their first statement was that "public opinion demanded that all should have a chance." When the dangers of this course were pointed out to them and competition between a limited number of architects of proved ability was recommended, they finally, with perhaps some reluctance, agreed to a compromise. The competition was advertised, and the announcement was made that any architect desiring to compete should submit his name and qualifications to the board. From these names a number, not to exceed fifteen, who seemed to promise the best showing, should be allowed to compete, and no other. The competition proceeded in due course, one of the competitors was appointed and the schoolhouse was built.

Some years afterwards the same board had another schoolhouse to build and again consulted the writer. "We have concluded," they said to him, "that you were right in your advice. For this competition we are only going to invite five or six architects, all of whom we know are good men, and whom we shall pay for their services." The competition was held, and it happened that the winner was the same architect who had built the former school.

Again, some years later, a third school was to be erected. The Board of Education then decided that, even though the results of the former competitions had been successful, a competition in this case was neither necessary nor desirable; and the same architect was again appointed.

It seems as though this little story in three episodes is instructive and valuable, as showing that an enlightened and intelligent public body only needs to know the real conditions to arrive at the same conclusions as those of the great majority of architects. In this particular instance knowledge was gained by experience—an experience which might easily have been a disastrous one. It is sincerely hoped that other Boards of Education, in other cities, may profit by this experience, without incurring the dangers so happily escaped in this case.

Approximate Times for Removing Forms from Concrete.

As a guide to practice in concrete work, the following rules are suggested by Building Age:

Walls in Mass Work.—One to three days or until the concrete will bear pressure of the thumb without indentation.

Thin Walls.—In summer, two days; in cold weather, five days.

Column Forms.—In summer, two days; cold weather, four days, provided girders are shored to prevent appreciable weight reaching columns.

Slabs up to 7-ft. Span.—In summer, six days; in cold weather, two weeks.

Beams and Girder Sides.—In summer, six days; in cold weather, two weeks.

Beam and Girder Bottoms and Long Span Slabs.—In summer, ten days or two weeks; in cold weather, three weeks to one month. Time to vary with the conditions.

Arches.—If not small size, one week; large arches with heavy dead load, one month.

All these times are, of course, simply approximate, the exact time varying with the temperature and moisture of the air and the character of the construction.

In removing forms, one large builder—C. A. P. Turner—requires that a 20-penny spike driven into the concrete must double up before it has penetrated one inch.

Time Should Be Utilized.

"It is bad policy to start in on a transaction that will probably require several interviews to close, on Saturday or before a holiday," advised W. W. Hannan, of Cleveland, in an address. "It is dangerous to leave open days when no aggressive progress is being made. It gives some other man a chance to knock your proposition if he is so inclined. Almost anything may happen to the best kind of a proposition between Saturday and Monday.

"One great essential to success in real estate operations is the ability to concentrate your mind and energies on the matter in hand. As you take up your work Monday morning have a well thought out, carefully defined plan in mind of certain things which you intend to accomplish. Say to yourself, 'Today I will try to close this matter, then I will take up this and try and close it, then this, and so on.' But all the time you must be alert to the business of the moment. Don't make the blunder of letting a new matter get by you because you had decided to specialize for the time being on something else. The old Scriptural admonition: 'This ought ye have done and not to have left the other undone,' is as timely and applicable in business as in morals.

"Business in common with the social side of life has its fads and fancies. There is some good to be found in most of them. As stated a moment ago, the man of the hour in the business world today is the efficiency expert. To admit that the particular industrial concern in which you are a stockholder has not felt the probing touch of the efficiency expert is to admit in effect not only that you are old fashioned, but that while your business may be in a bad way, still you don't believe anyone can tell you what is the matter, and if they could you don't want to know.—National Real Estate Journal."

EXPLANATION OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1912.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH REAL ESTATE?

Unfair Laws—Excessive Taxation—Overproduction of Buildings and Few Buyers—Must Stop Expensive Fads and Regulate Building Height.

By ALFRED R. KIRKUS

Secretary of the New York, the Manhattan, the Central and the Colonial Real Estate Associations.

WHAT is the matter with the real estate market? Not only is real estate in New York City paying most of the expenses of the city, but the city is paying most of the expenses of the State. Meanwhile, it is self evident that realty is ceasing to appeal to the general investor as in times past.

Is it any longer an investment? Is it any longer the "old reliable" that the conservative investor can put his money in? Up to a few years ago, when the drygoods trade, the stock market or other business became dull, the investor turned to real property with a sigh of relief. Today what?

We find a neighborhood like lower Fifth avenue, only lately improved by buildings designed for and occupied by high class houses, partially filled—but ruined by sweatshops.

"Misconstruction."

While the City builds a Municipal Building for the housing of its various departments that will depopulate scores of office buildings, we build monstrosities of 56 stories and file plans for others varying from 30 to 45 stories to empty and ruin scores of others, and if the stamp tax on securities is increased by the proposed legislation, more and more will the over-production in this line be apparent.

The old silk, velvet and lace centre, owned or occupied by conservative, fine old firms, is emptied and going begging at 25 cents on the dollar, to fill 15, 20 and 25 story buildings, which are turning hitherto fine residential streets into canyons and turning out at night more persons than the streets can hold.

Retail houses are crowded from one location to another by the encroachment, almost to their doors and windows, of more sweatshops.

Oppressive Legislation.

Meanwhile, Albany churns out bills by the score, making laws, laws, laws that bind and pinch property owners; it creates a Fire Prevention Bureau one month and a State Factory Law the next to supersede it, and tear down or re-build buildings, a few months ago considered first class; to drive people into "modern fireproof" towers as unfit for human habitation as dungeons underground, for no sunlight goes below the fifth or sixth story from the top.

Are there to be no homes in Manhattan any more? Are there to be no streets on which we can walk without being pushed off the sidewalk? Are we to have no light, air or safety? Are we to give up buildings where only two or three tenants have been known and are to be found after years and years of tenantry and leave them bare, empty deserts?

The time has come when the Municipality and the State should be made to have more consideration for the rights of property. The Real Estate market has never before been so depressed. Everywhere it is being said that the time has come to speak out and resist further oppression from whatever source it comes, and to do something to restore former conditions. The author of the present article is the executive officer of corporations owning millions of dollars of property. He protests against unnecessary factory laws, against unregulated building, excessive taxation and the waste of public funds.

Enormous Waste of Values.

Should not consideration be given to the enormous waste caused by the destruction of present buildings in order to replace them by some new skyscraper far in advance of real demand?

What shall we do? We must first find out what is the real cause of such upheavals, we must stand together for honesty, improvement, and for opposition to unjust or at least unfair laws. We must stand for equal and properly adjusted taxation, for regulation of the height of buildings, and for freedom from regulation from Albany t the expense of the City.

Must Stop Over-Assessing.

We must support our administration in providing for safety and proper and equal supervision, and we must oppose expensive fads—and oppression from organizations or departments catering to popular or hysterical waves of social unrest; and more than anything, we must oppose the suave speculator and get-rich-quick builder, who on a shoddy building operation, backed by an overloaded mortgage and padded rent roll, lies in wait for the innocent "lamb."

The owners of the older style buildings must realize the importance of good floors, first class and generous modern plumbing, good elevator plant, and elevator service, and paint and kalsomine; and the realty investor may well consider the improvement or remodelling of present buildings, rather than building new ones to add to the overproduction.

The city authorities must recognize the differences in taxable value of localities where rentals have fallen 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. The State must refrain from mandatory laws compelling buildings to be made fireproof or modern buildings to be re-modernized; it must recognize that low buildings made slow burning are far safer for the housing of workers or business than so-called fireproof buildings, so high that the hundreds coming down their staircases in case of fire in the contents, or panic in the building, will be killed in heaps.

Must Regulate Building Height.

We must recognize the rights of others, we must regulate the height of our buildings so that the light is not stolen from our neighbors or their light put out by ours. We must have sun once in a while, not electric light all the time.

If necessary we must create zones in which we shall have our homes, our retail, our wholesale, our factory and our marketing business kept one from the other—reached not by flying expresses, but by a transportation service, fast, but practically continuous. We must have frequent subway stations with frequent trains of a length that can be quickly stopped, unloaded and started.

We must ask that our moneyed institutions will consider that loans made at or about 4 per cent. on 60 per cent. real equity are safer, better and more legitimate than on 90 per cent. of inflated values at 5½ to 6 per cent. and "expenses."

We must equip our fire department with up-to-date apparatus and live men. We must make our insurance companies realize that good "moral hazards," attention to tidiness, prevention of fires and inspection of risks to reduce rates rather than raise them is better than fireproofing and sprinklers and large dividends.

Factories must be placed in buildings whence the employees can reach their homes easily and cheaply, where they can reach the ground easily, and where if there should be an alarm, the firemen and police can easily reach them to help or calm them. Where their safety lies in easy escape, and not in automatic sprinklers wetting them down while they look into the clouds.

Investors must be educated to appreciate that five or six story buildings, even non-fireproof, are far safer for occupancy than the most approved skyscraper, and that in any reasonably constructed building, the requirements of the present Bureau of Fire Prevention have not proved arbitrary or unreasonable.

Is this Utopia. Is it not the real, Real Estate business?

CAN WE LEGALLY RESTRICT BUILDINGS?

An Opinion on the Constitutional Question—The Validity of a Restrictive Law For New York City Would Probably Be Sustained By the Courts.

By BRUCE M. FALCONER, Counsel to the Fifth Avenue Association.

ON May 9, 1912, a resolution was introduced in the Board of Estimate to limit to 125 feet the height of buildings on Fifth avenue, as far as 110th street and within a prescribed distance east and west; and on Thursday of last week Mr. McAneny introduced a resolution, which was passed this week, to appoint a commission to investigate and report upon the advisability of a city-wide restriction of height, and especially of the proposed restriction in the Fifth avenue section. In considering legislation of this character, three questions naturally assert themselves.

First, what has been done in other cities along the same lines?

Second, how has it been regarded by the courts?

And third, how would the legislation proposed here be regarded by the New York courts? Let us treat these in the order in which they are stated.

Precedents in Legislation.

First, then, what has been accomplished in other cities? Within the last twenty-two years action has been taken with respect to Washington, Baltimore, Boston, all the other cities of Massachusetts, and, if I am correctly informed, Chicago, as well. In Massachusetts, in 1891 and 1892, statutes were enacted forbidding the erection in Boston, and in all other cities throughout the state, of any building over 125 feet in height, with certain limited exceptions as to grain elevators, etc. In 1896 and 1897 two statutes were passed limiting still further the height of buildings along the parkways, boulevards and parks of Boston.

Again, in 1898, a law was enacted restricting the height of buildings on and near Copley Square to 90 feet, and still another in 1899, limiting buildings near the State House to 70 feet. Finally, in 1904 and 1905, the Legislature passed two acts authorizing the Mayor of Boston to appoint a commission to divide the city of Boston into districts of two classes, according as to whether they were primarily commercial or primarily residential. The buildings in the commercial districts were limited to 125 feet, and those in the residential districts to between 80 and 100 feet. The restriction was not applied, however, to churches, steeples, towers, etc. The commission was appointed, and the districts were laid out as authorized.

Restrictions at Washington.

In the District of Columbia, in 1897, the Building Commissioners of that District under general authority of Congress to make building regulations, promulgated a regulation forbidding the erection of buildings over 90 feet high on residence streets, and over 110 feet on business streets. The Legislature of Maryland in 1904 passed an act concerning Baltimore, restricting the height of all buildings except churches to 70 feet above the surface of the street at the base line of Washington Monument, within the area bounded by Madison, St. Paul, Center and Cathedral Streets. Chicago also, if information is correct, has limitations upon the height of its buildings.

Passing now to the second question, we are to consider, namely, how legislation has been regarded by the courts, it may be stated at once that the constitutionality of those of the above statutes that have been attacked in the courts has been, without exception, sustained.

Validity Sustained.

In 1908 the Court of Appeals of Maryland sustained the validity of the statute concerning Baltimore in a clear-cut decision in the case of Cochran v. Preston, 70 Atl. Rep. 113. The statute was attacked on three grounds; first, that the statute in general was not a proper exercise of the police power, second, that, as the Washington Monument was situated on a point of ground within the prescribed area, which was higher than the surrounding levels, property owners at this point could erect buildings only 70 feet high, while others lower down on the line could build to a height above 70 feet, and that this constituted a denial of "the equal protection of the laws," contrary to the 14th Amendment to the Constitution; and, third, that the exemption of churches from the operation of the act was likewise in violation of the same clause. The statute was upheld in all three respects.

Proper Exercise of Police Power.

The court held that it was a perfectly proper and reasonable exercise of the police power, based its decision principally upon the necessity for protecting the prescribed territory from fire, and treated the district as being unique, because of its being filled with monuments, statuary, churches, public buildings and hansome residences containing valuable works of art and literature. The court referred to the terrible fire in Baltimore and spoke of the impetus given it by the tall buildings, and of the fact that they had acted as funnels creating draft for the flames, intensified the heat, and were out of reach of the efforts of the firemen.

Turning to Massachusetts, we find that the Massachusetts act of 1898, limiting the height of buildings on and near Copley Square to 90 feet, was sustained by the highest appellate court of Massachusetts in 1899, in the case of Attorney General v. Williams, 174 Mass. 476. The act gave compensation to property owners who might suffer loss because of the restriction, was therefore really an exercise of the power of eminent domain, and was treated as such by the court. An appeal was taken to the United States Supreme Court, and that court affirmed the judgment of the Massachusetts court. (Williams v. Parker, 188 U. S., 491.)

Massachusetts Law.

In 1906 the same Massachusetts Court upheld the state acts of 1904 and 1905, authorizing the division of Boston into height zones with varying restrictions ranging from 80 feet to 125 feet. (Welch v. Swasey, 193 Mass. 364.) These statutes gave no compensation for possible loss to property owners. The court held that the acts were a proper exercise of the police power, that the right to make such regulations was "too well established to be questioned," and that the classification into residential and commercial districts, and the discrimination in height made accordingly, was reasonable.

The decision was based upon considerations of public safety, health, comfort and convenience, and "the benefit of property owners generally," and the court said that considerations of taste and beauty might also enter in as auxiliary to these, which, it may be stated in passing, was also held to be true in the Maryland case of Cochran v. Preston, referred to above. Particular reference was made to the cutting off of air, light and sunshine, and the danger to persons and property from fire. Welch v. Swasey was appealed to the United States Supreme Court in 1909, and the judgment of the Massachusetts Court was affirmed. (124 U. S. 91.) The plaintiff in error (appellant) conceded that the general state-wide restriction to 125 feet made by the act of 1891 was constitutional. The issues presented were the reasonableness of the discrimination in height between the two classes of districts, and the question as to whether a limitation as low as 80 feet was so unreasonable as to deprive the owner of the property of its profitable use without justification. The Supreme Court upheld the validity of the statute in both respects.

How Would the New York State Courts Decide?

Third and last of the questions we are considering, how would the courts of this state regard the legislation proposed for New York City? In 1888 the Court of Appeals of this state said in the case of People v. D'Oench, 111 N. Y. 359, with reference to a law limiting to 80 feet the height of dwelling houses in New York City to contain more than two families (i. e., tenement and apartment houses): "We have no doubt of the competency of the Legislature in the exercise of the police power under the Constitution to pass such an act." This case has been treated by the Supreme Court in People v. Brady, 56 N. Y. Supp. 567, as having settled the constitutionality of that act, and it was also cited to the same effect and used as a precedent in the Maryland case above, and in the later Massachusetts case.

In view of these decisions and of the fact that, so far as we are able to ascertain, there appears to be no other decision upon this subject in any way opposed to them, it would seem that the view taken by the Fifth Avenue Association through its executive committee, and by the many property owners and others who have already recorded themselves in favor of the resolution concerning Fifth avenue, is one that ought to have a good standing in law before the courts of this state, if precedent and authority are to be given their proper weight.

Local Feeling.

It has been asserted from one quarter that no owners of unimproved property on or near Fifth Avenue favor the height restriction. This statement is easily refuted from the letters from prop-

THE ARCHITECTURE OF SUBURBAN HOUSES

Hints From an Expert that Will Help Owners to Decide Upon the Most Suitable Style of Architecture, Not Forgetting the Roof.

By WILLIAM HERBERT.

THE statement has frequently been made in this series of articles that of late years a substantial improvement has been taking place in the architectural design of suburban houses, and that the improvement is due more than anything else to the policy adopted by the suburban development companies, of selling completed houses instead of selling merely lots. Neither of these assertions can be disputed by anyone who is familiar with the course of suburban development in and around New York during the past five or six years.

The development companies have brought more knowledge and intelligence to the problem of securing some propriety of architectural appearance for suburban houses; they have substituted superior for comparatively inferior types; and they have employed on the whole a better class of architects. It only remains to specify some of the more important means which have been used in order to raise the standard of suburban architecture.

Better Plans Than Formerly.

The most fundamental improvement in method that has taken place has consisted in properly adapting the style and shape of the house to its plans. The average suburban house of ten or fifteen years ago was built from plans which were turned out by plan factories, and which were used indiscriminately for any kind of location. They were, as a consequence, necessarily formless. The devising of a really appropriate plan depends partly upon the needs of the family and partly on the nature and exposure of the site.

In one situation a house square or only slightly rectangular in shape will give the best results. In another a much more rectangular outline is preferable. In a third it will be more convenient to put the kitchen in a separate wing. The general shape which is found best adapted to the needs of the location should determine in part the design of the house. If the plan is square or only slightly rectangular, a building somewhat colonial in character is indicated as likely to be most appropriate. If, on the other hand, the house is much longer than it is wide, a more picturesque Elizabethan or hip-roofed house is more likely to be successful.

Of course in making this statement we are merely indicating tendencies, not laying down rules. Any statement about a desirable relation between a particular type of house and a particular plan will be subject to many exceptions. But it is necessary to emphasize these general considerations because so few people, not professionally interested in architecture, understand their importance. The essential thing is to secure a proper relation between the plan of the house and its shape, and all questions of style, of detail and of ornamentation are subordinate to the good looks of the general mass of the building in its particular location and surroundings.

Better Looking Roofs.

The improvement in the general shape of suburban houses has, of course, been accompanied by many improvements in the treatment of different parts of a building and in details of ornamentation. The roof, for instance, is on the average very much better handled than formerly. Nothing does more to injure the appearance of a house than an ill-designed roof. Its pitch has to be carefully adapted to the shape of the plan, the style of the house, and to the distance from which it is most frequently seen. The way in which it is broken has also become a matter for careful consideration. Probably the larger half of suburban houses are two-story and attic buildings, the roofs of which have to be pierced not merely by the chimney but also by windows, and the way in which these openings are scaled and tied together is very much more successful than formerly. In certain cases the color of the roofing material has also become an interesting element in the appearance of the house. The increase in the number of moderate-priced fireproof or semi-fireproof houses has afforded architects a chance to use tiles of various kinds instead of shingles, the result of which has been to add a pleasant variation to the monotony of the ordinary drab-colored roof.

A $50,000 PALACE ON LONG ISLAND.

Porches More Appreciated.

Another really important source of improvement has been the better handling of the piazza. Here again a more convenient plan has resulted almost necessarily in a better design. Ten years ago the piazza was not separated from the entrance porch. It was usually situated on the front of the house or on two sides, and it usually deprived either the living-room or the dining-room of direct light. The object seemed to be to make the necessary convenience of a piazza as hurtful as possible to the comfort of living in the house and the pleasure of looking at it.

Recently all this has been changed. The piazza is now very generally confined to one end of the house. It has become an out-of-door extension of the living-room; and very frequently it is enclosed on the north so that people sitting on it are sheltered from cold and disagreeable winds. But it no longer deprives the living-room of light except on one comparatively narrow side, and the effort always is to have that side face east or west, so that the living-room will obtain the southern sun. And the improvement in appearance is at least as great as the improvement in convenience. So situated the piazza really adds to the architectural effectiveness of the house instead of, as formerly, making all architectural effectiveness impossible. Its lines can be made to harmonize with and supplement the emphatic dimensions of the main building. Indeed, it has ceased to be an appendage. It has become a part of the body of the house, and it is designed so as to give scale to the relationship of the various members thereof. This is particularly the case when the piazza is run up through two stories and where an outdoor sleeping-room above is added to the outdoor living-room below.

The distinction which is now usually made between the piazza and the porch has been of as much architectural benefit to the latter as to the former. In a simple and inexpensive house the entrance porch has become the architect's best opportunity of introducing an effective and charming ornamental feature. A porch which merely affords convenient access to the house can be treated in many different ways, so as to be effective. We have only to ask the reader to call to mind the many charming Colonial doorways and entrance porches in order to have before him the clearest possible illustration of what we mean. These porches do more than anything else to make the aspect of a house hospitable and inviting.

Picturesque Eaves.

In the case of the average suburban house very little money can be spent upon ornamentation. The architect has to depend for any opportunities to apply ornamental detail upon the piazza and the porch, and this very dearth of opportunity has stimulated him to make his designs attractive, not so much by decorative expedients as by the proper handling of the necessary elements of the building. The better treatment of the roof has, for instance, brought with it naturally a more effective handling of the projection of the roof beyond the walls. Picturesque and daring effects have been obtained in comparatively cheap suburban houses by making the roof project as much over the wall as hats do over the brows of women; and the source of the effect is the same in both cases, viz., the shadows cast by the projection.

This, of course, is particularly true of the bungalow type of house, which depends upon the roof and the projection of the roof for most of its interest. In more formal classes of houses the spacing of the windows is much more carefully considered than it used to be. Indeed, a Colonial or an Italian house absolutely demands the most careful attention to such details as the size of the windows, their sills and copings, the distance they are apart, and the relation between the lower and the upper tier of openings.

Such are some of the more important respects in which the design of suburban houses has improved. If as much progress is made during the next ten years as has been made during the past five, it is safe to say that the ordinary American suburban residence will be decidedly superior to that which is being built in any other part of the world.

A MENACE TO REAL ESTATE VALUES

The Salant-Schaap Bill's Sophistries Exposed—It Would Deprive Small Owners of Their Property Without Compensation—And Encourage High Construction.

By HENRY BLOCH.

A BILL of vital importance to owners of real estate has been introduced in the Legislature by Senator Salant and Assemblyman Schaap, providing that during the next five years the rate of taxation on the valuation of buildings shall be reduced ten per cent. per annum, while the tax rate on the land itself shall be correspondingly increased. At the end of five years, therefore, the tax on buildings will have been exempted by one-half. It is probably intended before the expiration of that period to provide for the total tax exemption of improvements on land.

The proponents of the measure expect that it will minimize the congestion of population. They say that as you increase taxation on vacant or unimproved land you make it more difficult for the owner to hold it in that condition; he will either be forced to improve it himself or to sell it cheaply to some one else who will. This, they say, will cause all owners to improve their land by the erection of new buildings; and as a natural sequence there will be a far greater supply of apartments than there will be a demand for; rents will accordingly tumble, and the population will be drawn away from the tenements to new districts where the rents will be very low.

This sophistry, it seems, has convinced many warm-hearted citizens, who are desirous of having the admitted evils of congestion eliminated, that this bill, essentially a tax measure, is the great panacea which will cure the evils complained of. They forget that the taxing power is used only for the purpose of raising revenue, and not for regulation.

A Premium for Tall Buildings.

But will it stop congestion? Let us see. If you, the owner of a plot of ground, are told that your taxes will be the same whether you erect a one-story or a fifty-story building, you will probably erect the largest building which the neighborhood will warrant. Instead of a twenty-story office or loft building, why not erect a fifty-story structure? It is only a question of initial cost, and the building will be free of taxation forever. And so the average builder will build a large tenement or elevator apartment instead of a smaller one. In other words, you would intensify the use of land. A premium would accordingly be placed on the erection of tall buildings, leading to even greater congestion. Instead of curing the evils, therefore, against which the bill is directed, it is more likely to aggravate and intensify them.

Would Destroy Equities.

The bill, if enacted, would undoubtedly lessen the market value of property throughout the city. It has been estimated that this loss would be about ten per cent. A life's earnings invested in what was heretofore regarded as the safest of investments might by one stroke be reduced one-tenth. Men and women who bought their property relying upon existing conditions—and many of them are dependent altogether upon the income they derive therefrom—would be deprived of their property without compensation. These properties were purchased from savings accumulated in most cases after a lifetime of industry, toil and frugality. To deprive these people of their property without compensation, on the theory that all value in land was created by the community, and therefore belongs to the community, is striking a deathblow at the thrifty, hard-working citizen—is putting a stigma on honesty, industry and integrity.

The city itself would be a great sufferer if the bill were to become a law. If land in this city were to depreciate ten per cent. in valuation there would be cause for grave fear as to whether the city had overstepped its debt limit. The borrowing capacity would in all events be lowered and the city's revenue would be greatly decreased.

All of this would result in a panic among the real estate owners and the tenants of this city. The real estate market would immediately become demoralized—values heretofore fixed would become unsettled—payment of mortgages would be demanded—and all of this now, when the chief source of revenue for the running of our city government is from real estate alone.

Practical Confiscation.

Mayor Gaynor touched the crux of the entire situation in his terse and inimitable way when in answer to a letter from the Secretary of the Farmers' and Taxpayers' Association asking information regarding a similar measure, he said: "This means the carrying out of the theory of the late Henry George, i. e., to have a single tax, i. e., only one tax, i. e., on the bare land only, all buildings to go free of taxes. If you will get Mr. George's book, 'Progress and Poverty,' you will find the whole theory stated. The result of such a law would be to practically confiscate the values of all vacant land in cities. The effect would be to absorb into the public treasury, by means of taxes, the entire ground rent, which may be fairly stated at somewhere from four to five per cent. of the value of the bare land. Of course, if all ground rents should be absorbed into the public treasury, there would be no sale value on vacant lots left. To speak plainly, this would destroy or confiscate all such land values. You have to decide whether this would be just. Such a system of taxation may be the best. But as society has been constructed and has lived under a different one, and people have invested their money in land values under that system, would it accord with justice for society to destroy their investments by a new system without compensating them for their loss?"

OVERPRODUCTION OF OFFICE BUILDINGS.

A Crisis in Real Estate Affairs—Rights of Property Disregarded—"Misconstruction" Denounced—Growing Demand for Building Restrictions.

EVIDENCE of a feeling approaching indignation in real estate offices against the inconsiderate construction of skyscraper office buildings is becoming very noticeable. It is a subject, though, about which those who are most concerned are reluctant to speak. The facts, however, are obvious. Several large office buildings have been completed in the downtown section within a year or two, notably the Bankers' Trust, Eighty Maiden Lane, the Liberty Tower and the building of the Emigrant Savings Bank. Soon to be completed are the gigantic Woolworth and the Municipal Building. Under construction or projected are the Equitable, the Western Union, the Adams Express, Fifty Broad Street and some other skyscrapers, all in the financial district.

The Woolworth Building will be finished in May, and typical floors have been open for inspection for several months. A maximum of two thousand five hundred offices will be available in this building, divided into large and small suites. The ultimate number of tenants, whatever the total may be, will mean something like that number moving from other buildings, less the number of newcomers from other cities and new firms starting out. In the case of the Municipal Building, its tenants will be drawn from buildings in the vicinity. Wherever there is a department or bureau of the city government there will be vacancies to fill.

The Park Row Building, the Broadway-Chambers, and the Stewart Building, where many city functionaries now have their offices, will miss them.

Will Drain Surrounding Buildings.

The Equitable Building will cover a four-square block thirty-seven stories high. It will not only take away tenants but it will also cast a shadow over and dim the light of the surrounding buildings. It will throw upon the market an amount of office space that ordinarily requires years of good times to assimilate. The neighboring owners and their agents, alarmed at the prospect, have proposed half-heartedly that the city buy the site for a public park, well knowing, however, that the price is too great for even the City of New York to pay.

The article from the pen of Hon. Lawson Purdy, President of the Department of Taxes and Assessments, on "The Rights of Property Owners" which appeared in the Record and Guide February 22, attracted wide attention and is being referred to approvingly in connection with the protest which is going up from real estate owners against what has been called the "misconstruction" of office buildings, both downtown and uptown. Hundreds of millions of dollars have been lost, Mr. Purdy says, because the old principle, that a man may not use his land so as to invade the rights of others, has been disregarded. The movement for restricting in some degree the size of buildings in the future, which Borough President McAneny is now leading, is gaining new adherents every day.

Rent Rolls Suffering.

In the Financial district at the present writing the vacancies existing in office buildings are not greater than a normal percentage, but rates have suffered. The competition for tenants has necessitated sacrifices on the part of owners in many cases. Buildings situated like the Trinity, the U. S. Realty, the Empire and the Bankers' Trust are well rented; the Whitehall Building, another typical building, to which an annex was built a year or more ago, is now seventy-eight per cent. occupied. Ordinarily, three years are allowed for filling an office building. The Dun Building, typical of the oldest class of skyscrapers, and situated in another downtown quarter, contains but four vacancies. In some cases office space in fine buildings is going at one dollar a square foot. The highest average rate in choice locations is four dollars.

Tall Buildings on Inside Plots Objected to.

Said the head of a prominent real estate firm which has the agency of a large number of buildings in the Financial district:

"Strange as it may possibly seem to you, I do not want to comment on the downtown office building situation. I have strong opinions regarding the general subject. I read Mr. Purdy's article in the Record and Guide with a great deal of interest. I have always considered that it was unprofitable and unwise to erect a high building on an inside plot. This applies to the high-class mercantile building and more strongly to the office building.

"The better office buildings downtown will always prove excellent investment properties. However, where office buildings have been erected on interior plots or on 'freak plots,' or in some cases where the buildings have not been properly designed from a practical viewpoint, these buildings are certain to suffer in income by reason of the competition with the newer and more perfect buildings.

The Uptown Situation.

"I am thoroughly convinced that the office building situation downtown does not present the grave danger of loss of income to the owners that is presented in many uptown sections. I think overproduction more strongly exists in the Fourth avenue section and in the lower Fifth avenue section and in the West side section from 14th to 30th streets than it does downtown among the office buildings. Even the buildings erected in the better parts of Fifth avenue have been slow in filling up, so far as the offices are concerned.

"But in any of these sections, particularly in the downtown neighborhood, any well built building on a corner plot is and will be a good income payer.

"More harm has been done in the real estate market by the erection of high and expensive buildings on inferior inside plots than from any other cause.

The Ideal Investment.

"In our opinion the ideal investment is the low four, five or six story loft building that is rented to a desirable tenant at a rate of from 25 to 35 cents per square foot, where the main value is in the ground and where nine times out of ten the ground value is continually enhancing and where the tenant under the low rent charge is happier and better satisfied than the tenant paying twice or three times as much in the newer buildings."

Uptown, it is being said that the new prominence of the 42d street zone is drawing tenants from the almost new office buildings between 23d and 34th streets, and that the vacancies in the district thus left are not being readily filled. This fact is being cited in real estate circles as further proof that office space is running far ahead of the demand.

As the signing of the contracts for the new Dual subway system this week will stimulate construction in other departments, the opinion is being very strongly expressed in real estate offices, that the time has come to call a halt on office building projects, and some of the very foremost men in real estate affairs are privately favoring a reasonable restriction on building height.

—The increase in the cost of materials and labor has put three aqueduct contractors out of business since the work began, and the increased cost of the whole job over the estimates, by increasing the burden of taxation, has helped to put the quietus on the real estate market.

—Governor Sulzer says there is practically no market for the sale of real property in cities up the State at a fair valuation. He might almost have included New York City in the list. Well may he ask, "What are we coming to?"

RADICAL LEGISLATION AT ALBANY

"Everybody Who Builds Should Be Registered," Supt. Miller Says—Measures Opposed By Real Estate Interests—New Building Regulations.

THE Superintendent of Buildings in Manhattan, R. P. Miller, does not wholly favor the bill which the Superintendent of Buildings in Brooklyn, Patrick J. Carlin, has caused to be introduced in the Legislature to require builders to undergo an examination to determine their competency in order to obtain a license to undertake building operations. Mr. Miller agrees to the principle that master builders should be licensed, but he maintains that everybody who undertakes to erect a building should be licensed, whether they be architects, builders, engineers or owners; otherwise the bill would not fulfill its purpose.

Mr. Miller's views on the subject were filed this week in the form of a communication to the Assembly Committee on Cities. The act was introduced by Mr. Esquirol (No. 766, Int. 757.) Superintendent Miller's objections are stated as follows:

Would Not Debar Incompetents.

"This bill, as drawn, in my judgment does not accomplish the purpose intended. It makes it necessary for any builder to secure a license, but it does not prevent others than builders from undertaking work. According to the bill, architects or architectural engineers are exempted from the requirements. There is no definition of an architect or architectural engineer and no restriction that would prevent anybody from assuming that title; and according to this bill, as I see it, an architectural engineer can undertake building work and is not required to be licensed.

"It seems to me that what is wanted is not the licensing of builders, but the restriction of building operations to persons registered under whatever rules may be provided for that purpose. Such registration would be better left to the official who has the administration of building laws and ordinances, rather than to an examining board. It is much easier to hold a single official responsible for his acts than a board. An examining board is much more liable to improper practices than a single official.

Make Rules for Everybody.

"The right to undertake building operations should not be restricted to builders, but architects, builders or building superintendents, or even owners, if they desire to undertake the work themselves, should be subjected to such rules as may be prepared. The party undertaking such work should be held accountable for that work from the beginning to the end. What our trouble is now, is that it is difficult to place the responsibility for unsatisfactory work on any particular individual. The official administering the building law should be empowered to cancel the registration of any one who is found guilty of repeated infractions of the law or improper practices.

Too Much Power for Examiners.

"The bill, as drawn, gives the examining board the power to cancel licenses. This seems to me too great a power. Some provision at least should be made for a review by the courts. The bill, as drawn, makes it possible to cancel a license for violation of the building laws, a power that could be very much abused.

"The bill provides for an examination by the examining board. An examination as it is ordinarily understood, in my judgment, does not necessarily bring out the qualifications of a person for the work that he undertakes. Many an irresponsible man would be able to pass such an examination much more readily than some of our better builders. To restrict the undertaking of building operations to builders who have passed such examination, seems to me an interference with the rights of any one to engage in a business. It is only when a person abuses the right to do anything that he should be prohibited from further engaging in such work."

For the Safety of Mechanics.

Mr. Miller has filed with the Committee on Labor and Industries of the Assembly his views on the Kerrigen bill, to require the completion of floor arches in steel frame buildings up to within three tiers below the one for which the steel is being erected. Supt. Miller thinks the bill as it stands is indefinite and he has recommended that the first sentence be made to read as follows:

"When constructing buildings in cities where the plans and specifications require the floors to be arched between the beams thereof, or where the floors or filling in between the floors are of fireproof material or brickwork, the owner or general contractor or the contractor for the floor arches shall complete the flooring or filling in as the building progresses to within five tiers of beams below that on which the iron work is being erected."

"It will be noted," Supt. Miller says, "that the responsibility for carrying on this work is placed with either the floor arch contractor, the general contractor or the owner. The purpose of this is that it may happen at times that the floor arch contractor, by reason of failure to receive a payment due, might refuse to go on with the work. Under those circumstances, he is hardly the man who should be held responsible for failure to continue the work. He has no authority over the steel contractor who is putting in the steel, irrespective of what the arch contractor may be doing. The responsibility for carrying on the work of the arches should rest more especially with the general contractor, but in some cases there is no general contractor and the owner himself carries on the work. In such a case, the owner should be the man who can be held.

"The change from three tiers to five tiers is suggested in order to meet the present practices. It is practilly impossible, under present conditions, to have the floor arches filled in within three tiers of the tier on which the iron men are working. Steel columns, at the present time, are being furnished in two-story and sometimes even three-story lengths, so that while the riveting is going on in two tiers of iron work, two more tiers may be under erection above that point. The arch contractor cannot get in until the riveting is completed, so it can readily be seen that in most cases it is impossible to have the arches in closer than five tiers from the tier on which the men are working."

The Law Committee of the Allied Real Estate Interests has reported as follows on certain pending measures:

Mr. Kane's bill gives to liens for work, labors and materials, filed within ninety days of the doing of the work or furnishing of the materials, precedence over all encumbrances placed on the premises or conveyances made thereof after breaking ground for the building or improvement. This bill would make it impossible to make building loans or purchase property until ninety days after it had been completed. It should be strenuously opposed.

Mr. Ulrich's bill to amend the Charter so that no penalty accrues on the first half of the annual taxes until December first. This would make it optional to pay the first half of the tax with the second half on or before December first and destroy all advantage intended to be gained for the city by having the tax payable semi-annually. The bill should be opposed.

Mr. Philips' and Mr. Boylan's bill requiring elevators, except in private residences, to be equipped with automatic devices preventing the car from being moved in either direction while the gates or doors are open. It has never been shown that there is a practicable device for accomplishing this, and until there is, the bill should be opposed, as it has been in other years.

MOUNT VERNON HIGH SCHOOL,

Under construction on the west side of Gramatan avenue, north of Lincoln avenue, at an estimated cost of $250,000.

LEXINGTON AVENUE.

Prices Have Not Advanced Much, but There Are Reasons Why They Should.

THE general impression is that there has been a decided boom in Lexington avenue real estate, that prices have been inflated, and that most of the milk is out of the cocoanut. Such is not the case, however. There has been great activity on Lexington avenue, confined largely to buyers who realized that they were buying reasonably and not at boom prices, and who expect, and in the opinion of the writer will reap the benefits of their foresight.

The chief purpose of this article is, first to prove that the average price of Lexington avenue property has not gone up much, if at all, and secondly to show why prices ought to advance.

Lexington avenue is so long that a discussion embracing all of it would be too lengthy to go into in a limited space, so I will confine my territory to the section between 45th and 59th streets, which is a very fair criterion, as I believe there has been more activity there than in any other section of Lexington avenue of the same number of blocks. Eight years ago I made a very complete canvass of that section. Owners were only talking about the subway then, and yet there were some who had a severe attack of "dementia owneritus" even then, who thought they had a gold mine, and whose only price was "make me an offer." Their price was always a little more than was offered. I know of one owner like that whose price has gone up from $35,000 to $45,000 and who now wants $70,000, when the property is worth $40,000. Such owners are the exception, and are not to be considered in this article.

The astonishing part is that the average price that was asked then was not much lower than prices of today. I will go even further than this and quote a number of actual sales of five or six years ago that brought more per foot than sales within a year or so. I can quote the prices of the earlier sales, but for obvious reasons I am not at liberty to give the precise location of each of the houses recently sold.

No. 607 sold for $17½ per foot about six years ago. It is a three-story dwelling not within the corner. No. — Lexington avenue, a block farther south, sold a short time ago for $13¾ per foot. This house was very similar to the first house. I can quote No. 671, that sold six years ago for $16 per foot, and No. 531, that sold for $17½ per foot, all interior parcels, to show that $17 per foot was not an exorbitant price six years ago; and I know of plottage today that I can get for $17 per foot.

These are cold facts. The houses mentioned were all on the east side of Lexington avenue. The west side of the avenue is, of course, more valuable, and still the same thing holds good, as I can show in a number of cases. I might mention an unusually fine corner that recently sold for $24 per foot, while inside pieces brought $19 per foot in that neighborhood six and seven years ago.

By the foregoing, I have been trying to show that in spite of the marked activity in that section, prices have remained nearly stationary. Is there a reason for this? Are prices as high as present conditions and future prospects warrant? I think not.

To my mind there is every reason for values to rise. Because, first, the subway construction is going ahead with record breaking speed. It will still take time, maybe two years or longer, but every day that they are working on it makes Lexington avenue property one day more valuable.

Second: The effect of the New York Central is bound to be felt, particularly with the opening of the new station. It is sure to cause a bullish market to the north, if prices have not already been discounted. They have not in this case.

Third: The large number of high-class apartments on the side streets and on Park avenue that have recently been built, all without stores, ought to have an almost revolutionary effect on Lexington avenue, which is for business purposes. The purchasing power of a new army of wealthy families, unsatisfied with their homes, insures a gold mine for stores and store property on the nearest avenue, Lexington avenue, when the subway is completed.

There has been comparatively no building as yet, for a number of reasons, among others being the small number of builders in the market at present and the difficulty of building while the subway work is going on. The building activity ought to come within one and one-half or two years. Will it pay builders to buy now and hold for that time, or can plots be bought cheap enough to resell to builders?

I believe a close study of Lexington avenue prices, conditions, and prospects, and a comparison with other sections in their final development of today, will prove that there is an excellent field for buyers, not only in the section of Lexington avenue referred to in this article, but in other parts of Lexington avenue, as well as the side streets near the avenue.

LESTER H. GOODKIND.

Broad Street Gets More Time.

The resolutions presented by Borough President McAneny at the Board of Estimate meeting, on Thursday, providing for the removal of sidewalk encroachments on Broad street, Beaver street, Exchange place and Wall street, in the heart of the financial section, met with such opposition that the matter was laid over for two weeks, for reconsideration. Mr. McAneny pointed out that the Board of Estimate has pursued in the past the same methods in removing encroachments in the congested districts, but representatives of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., the National City Bank and other property owners in the affected neighborhoods pleaded so urgently for more time in the matter that they won their point. All persons interested may file their objections or recommendations with Mr. Whitridge, the consulting engineer, at 21 Park Row.

Building Regulation Committee Authorized.

The resolution of Borough President McAneny, providing for the appointment of a committee to examine into the matter of the regulation of the height, size and arrangement of New York City buildings, was passed by the Board of Estimate, on Thursday. The resolution provides merely for an inquiry. No programme of action is proposed by the city, nor is the city bound to carry out the suggestions of the committee, which will consist of three members of the Board of Estimate and an advisory board, to be later selected. A final report will be submitted in six months, in which the committee will make its recommendations, to be approved or disapproved by the Board of Estimate.

NEW SECTION OPENED UP.

New Tunnel Street Gives Access to Subway—Rapid Development Expected.

The tunnel street connecting Broadway with the subway station at 191st street will be formally opened this morning. Luncheon will be served at the Bonny Castle, opposite the station. The committee of citizens in charge of the celebration comprise Henry Morgenthau, Frank Hedley, John H. Boschen, James A. Lynch, Randolph Hurry, David Stewart, R. P. Bolton, Collin H. Woodworth, Col. Jacob Ruppert, R. E. Simon, John D. Beals, Hon. Max Grifenhagen.

For years the property owners of the section have been trying to bring into existence the facilities now made available, namely, a subway station at 191st street in connection with a tunnel street to Broadway. Prejudice and many engineering difficulties had to be overcome. The Broadway subway was in full operation to and above 191st street in 1905, but owing to the peculiar physical condition at Fort George (about 191st street) and the valley to the west, away below, and through which Broadway runs, the subway was practically of no benefit. Anyone occupying this property would have to go to 181st street or the Dyckman street station. When David Stewart first suggested the tunnel street he was ridiculed. Nevertheless, the Board of Estimate approved the plan in 1910.

This entire section should build rapidly now with high class improvements, as it has direct and easy access to the Broadway subway. A new avenue known as "Bennett avenue" has just been opened, 200 feet west of Broadway and running from 181st street to Hillside avenue (or about 195th street). Property along this avenue would be about a mile from the subway station if it was not for the new tunnel street.

RESTRICT BUILDING HEIGHT.

erty owners on file with the Fifth Avenue Association, but there is no space left in this article to discuss that, except to say that the Sailors' Snug Harbor, owner of the entire blocks, save one lot, between Washington Square and Ninth street on the east side of Fifth avenue, are in favor of the limitation. Even if it be conceded that owners of unimproved property along Fifth avenue would be in a somewhat better position than owners of improved property, if the proposed ordinance is passed, this argument has no standing in law; and we find that the same situation existed in Baltimore, Washington, Boston and the other cities of Massachusetts at the time their statutes were enacted. These owners may still have the profit that comes from erecting, say a ten-story building. Is it unreasonable to ask that they should forego the possible excess for the good of Fifth avenue and consequently of the whole city? Blackstone said many years ago in his commentaries: "As man was formed for society and is incapable of living alone, organized society is essential to his well-being and happiness, and every person who enters society must give up a part of his so-called natural rights and liberties for the benefit of the community." Let us hope that this is still true in our noble city to-day.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Company.

The renting campaign that is being conducted by Ewing, Bacon & Henry for the big Architects' Building at Park avenue and Fortieth street is a good example of modern broad-gauge agency work. The campaign embaces not merely Greater New York and its vicinity, but is practically countrywide, and takes in a multiplicity of allied professions and trades. By the first of this month some twenty architects, engineers and landscape gardeners, besides builders, contractors, decorators, steel erectors and dealers and manufacturers had been signed up as tenants. Although the building will not be ready for occupancy until May 1, its directory of tenants is already a notable one, both for the number and the quality of the the names it contains. Among the first that will catch the eye when the directory is arranged alphabetically and posted in the main corridor will be the American Academy in Rome and the Architects' Bureau of Technical Service.

Of course, the agents have a specialized building to canvass for; and the group of professions and trades for which the building is intended is large numerically. But the quick results achieved by the agents show that their work was started early and that it has been pushed with unusual vigor and efficiency. The first thing which strikes one about their canvass is that they fully realized the possibilities of a fine building and a remarkable opportunity. The whole of New England, for example, has been circularized. Every important concern engaged in the practice of architecture or doing buisness with architects was first solicited by mail. Next, a representative was sent to interview every "prospect" between here and Boston. This sort of work is bringing to New York people whose advent makes a valuable addition to our professional and business ranks. By way of illustration, it may be stated that so prominent a New England firm as Lockwood, Greene & Co., of Boston, has just been induced to open a branch office in the Architects' Building under the management of F. A. Wing, and it may do no harm to add that while the contract reads for 595 square feet of corner space on the eighth floor, negotiations have been opened by the Boston house for about 900 square feet more. In other words, it looks as if the very capable renting agents of the Architects' Building are doing some valuable publicity work for the city as well as for their particular building.

The successful building manager will not allow a tenant to take advantage of him through friendship, but must insist that the tenant meet his reasonable obligations as promptly as does the landlord. Dispossess proceedings should be handled with great care, as tenants frequently allow themselves to be dispossessed in order to break leases when they are amply able to pay the rent if they desire. It is sometimes wise to carry a tenant for a month or more when the manager knows that he is honest but hard up. A tenant will in the end pay his rent if he is honorable, and, in the majority of cases it will be found that the tenants are honorable. But where a tenant has no money and no prospects the wise plan is to be rid of him as soon as possible.—Edwin H. Hess.

WHAT TO DO WITH FIRE DEPT. ORDERS

A Rate Schedule Expert Specially Called in Can Often Relieve the Building Manager of Time-Wasting Negotiations.

By EDWARD CAMPBELL, M. E.
Of the Bureau of Fire Engineering.

WHAT to do with Fire Prevention Orders is a problem which is now bothering the managers of properties. It must be conceded that the Fire Department is acting in good faith in issuing these orders, and is simply performing a public duty laid upon them by laws and ordinances. On the other hand, compliance with the orders may mean a financial hardship to the owners, not only because the expenditures required were not anticipated, but also because the building from a real estate standpoint may not be worth the spending of money; nor are the owners in a position to obtain the increased rentals unquestionably justified by the improved conditions.

How to Obtain a Reduction of Rates.

Real estate men no doubt remember that up to ten years ago the fire insurance rates on buildings were simply a flat figure unsusceptible of reduction for improvements to buildings. When this flat rate method was superseded by the present schedule rate method, a new form of expert was evolved who is today known as the Rate Schedule Expert. Every prominent insurance broker now has a specialist to attend to the reduction of rates for his client, and it is a fair assumption that with the increased activities of the Bureau of Fire Prevention, the State Fire Marshal, and the Commissioner of Labor, there will be evolved, and in fact there is already in existence, a type of expert to deal with Fire Prevention Orders.

Qualifications of the Specialist.

The qualifications of a fire prevention expert who is really able to render service to managers of property must include experience in the fire insurance field, in the fire department field, in fireproof construction, and in the special features which are a more particular part of fire prevention as an applied science. These special fire prevention features include automatic sprinkler protection, fire and exit drills, fire escapes, fire alarms, the protection of heat, light and power apparatus, and the safeguarding of special fire hazards produced by the tenants of a building.

The expert's method of handling a fire prevention order is first to carefully scrutinize the order for clerical errors or departures from the requirements made by statutes, ordinances or regulations of the Fire Department. The next step is to examine the building and study the condition existing therein, to discover if these conditions justify an appeal to the Fire Commissioner to have the order withdrawn as unnecessary or unreasonable.

How He Handles a Fire Prevention Order.

After these steps have been taken, the expert has sufficient information to advise real estate managers what is the best course of action; to oppose the order, to ask its withdrawal entirely, to ask for modifications for good and sufficient reasons, or to comply with it.

If the expert finds that the conditions of a building justify an appeal to the Fire Commissioner, to have the order withdrawn, he prepares the necessary statement of facts, supporting the statement by technical Fire Prevention reasons, and conducts all correspondence and negotiations with the Fire Department in the same way that an attorney handles a legal matter.

Eliminating Items.

If the expert finds that the orders are not susceptible of complete withdrawal, he endeavors to secure the elimination of certain items or the softening of certain details which bear too harshly on the owner. Such modifications of fire prevention orders are frequently possible simply through the presentation of certain facts regarding the building, but in most cases the modifications are obtained through the expert designing alternative improvements, which are acceptable to the fire department, and which provide equal protection to life and property.

A case in point where a substitute order was very advantageous to the owner was the withdrawal of an order to install a fireproof passage on the first floor of a large loft building through the expert pointing out how an adequate exit could be provided by a small bridge to an adjacent building.

Saves Expenses for Owner.

The principal advantage to a real estate manager through the employment of an expert is that he is relieved from troublesome and time-wasting negotiations, which call for an endless series of visits, conferences and correspondence, whereas the owner benefits by having the order complied with at a minimum expense. A further advantage derived from the expert's services is that complications with other departments having jurisdiction are avoided, because of the expert's familiarity with the requirements of these other departments.

It frequently happens that the Fire Department, the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, and the State Labor Department are to be considered on the same violation. A further recommendation for the expert is that through his knowledge of insurance requirements, he is able to have his plans and specifications also meet the approval of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters and the Fire Insurance Exchange, so that the owner may obtain a reduction in rate warranted by the improvement.

Another feature worth consideration by owners and managers is that the expert designs improvements which are permanent and a guarantee against future orders, because they are based on sound Fire Prevention principles, and embody the ultimate aims of the Fire Department.

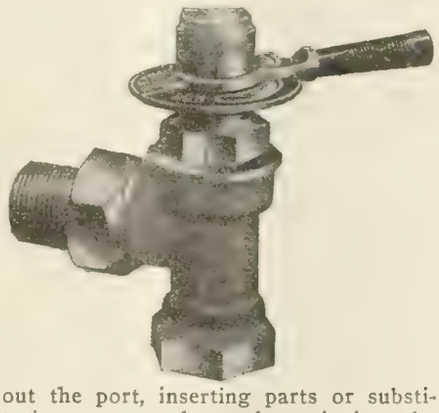
THRIFTY COAL BUYERS.

Find There Is Profit in Having Systematic Tests Made for Quality.

By B. G. Gould, Secretary of the Fuel Engineering Company.

Granting that a correct test of the quality of coal can be made by a chemist, the coal user then has only a small part of the information he should have. The test should be combined with sound engineering advice, from an engineer not only familiar with coal characteristics, but with the mechanical problems of the boiler room. There should also be available extensive coal records with which to compare the results, records which will show what other kinds of coal are available, whether a cheaper or more expensive or different kind of coal could be used more economically. These points are all essential to an intelligent understanding of every coal problem, whether the coal is bought on a B. T. U. contract or not. If a B. T. U. contract is to be used, the buyer needs, all the more, experienced advice to avoid the pitfalls awaiting the unwary. Advice from experts, familiar with every detail of the B. T. U. contract should be sought. These points are not mentioned to discourage the building manager from attempting the scientific handling of his coal problem, but to warn against hasty action, or acceptance of inexperienced advisers. To cover all the points mentioned above through a single organization is possible, and also inexpensive, but such organizations are few and far between.

The value of systematic tests on the coal delivered, regardless of a B. T. U. contract should be emphasized. Up to within the past few years, coal has been quite generally bought by guess-work. The consumers are rapidly waking up, and watching the quality of their coal deliveries by means of frequent tests. The natural result of such a policy is easy to see. In the past the coal dealer has not had to select his product with any particular care. Now the buyer is getting the facts, and knows what kind of coal is being delivered to him, and naturally the enterprising dealer is going to see that those customers who are watching the matter closely get his best coal. It is easy to jolly the customer who is still guessing, and it is good business to send the good coal where it is most appreciated.



Another advantage of systematic tests is in the ability to choose accurately between coals of different prices. Suppose, for example, that you have been buying No. 1 buckwheat coal for $3.50 a ton, and the average analysis has been 12.540 B. T. U. and 15.20 per cent. ash. You try out another coal for a short time that is sold for $3.40 a ton which averages 11.870 B. T. U. and 18.25 per cent. ash. The actual difference in value between these two coals would not be noticed at the time, but as a matter of fact the coal at $3.50 is the cheaper for you to use. The other coal should be sold to you at about $3.30 to give you as much for your money as the higher priced coal. It is only by means of exact data that such comparisons can be made.

NEW THINGS

Uninfluenced by advertising considerations, this information is offered on its merits for the benefit of building managers.

A New Radiator Valve.

The illustration shows the new Detroit Multi-Port Vapor Valve for use in connection with vapor, vacuum and atmospheric heating systems. It is one of the newest products of the Detroit Lubricator Company, Detroit, Mich. This valve removes the necessity of estimating in advance the size of the port opening required for each radiator on a job, ordering the valves from the manufacturers and waiting for delivery. It also obviates the selection of a suitable valve for the radiator, testing it and disconnecting it for the purpose of reaming out the port, inserting parts or substituting a new valve and continuing the process until approximately the right port area is obtained.

Any valve out of stock may be used. Install it and, after the system is in operation, remove a set screw, revolve the handle until the ports are correct and replace the set screw, making the adjustment permanent. It is unnecessary to disconnect the valve or to use any tool besides a screwdriver or interfere with the system in any way.

The Detroit Multi-Port Vapor Valve has no packing, yet the construction is said to be such as to do away with the trouble and expense of leakage, making it well adapted for use in vacuum systems where tightness is essential.

A New Pipe Calk.

The Union Clay Products Company, of New Brunswick, N. J., has something new in the way of a calk or sealing joint for sewer pipes in cities where there is no ordinance compelling lead calk in soil pipes. This is in the form of a compound known as G-K, which has remarkable power in keeping the pipe tight, even though it be forced out of line after the joint has been made. The risers in a building are set; then the hot compound is poured into the bell which is automatically sealed without the use of calking irons, thus doing away with breakage of pipe or bell. Iron pipe calked with this compound successfully withstands tests of 160 pounds without leak. An additional advantage rests in the fact that if at any time it is necessary to remove a section of the line a plumber's torch applied to the joint will soften the material sufficiently to allow the removal of the length without breakage.

A New Idea in Rules.

Anyone having use for a rule graduated down to 64ths of an inch knows the difficulty of obtaining accurate measurements in laying out work, knows how impossible it is to get the reading instantly, knows of the eyestrain attendant upon reading such graduations repeatedly; all caused by the fineness and the closeness of the lines. It is evident that if the same measurement could be arrived at with the same degree of accuracy with a rule graduated down not finer than say 16 lines to the inch, these difficulties would be overcome.

Both of these things are accomplished in the "Allen" Improved Scale—an article just put on the market by the Lafkin Rule Company, Saginaw, Mich. The "Allen" Scale is a patented article, and embodies an absolutely new idea in the marking of a machinist's scale.

As any even number of 64ths has an equivalent in 32ds, and possibly in 16ths, one side of this rule is graduated in 32ds and 16ths, and this takes care of all of the even 64ths.

The other side of the rule embodies the new idea. It takes care of all the odd 64ths. The first graduation mark on one edge of this side is 1/64-inch from the end of the rule, and is numbered "1"; the next mark on that edge is 5/64-inch from end of rule, and is numbered 5; the next 9; the next 13, etc., up to the first inch mark, and then repeated in each inch.

Here there is a jump each time of 4/64ths, and between the 1/64-inch and 5/64-inch points would come one odd 64th, i. e., the 3/64-inch mark; between 5 and 9, the 7/64-inch mark, etc. All of these off 64ths appear on the other edge of this side of the rule; that is the first graduation mark there, is 3/64-inch from end of rule and is numlered "3"; the next is 7/64-inch, and numbered "7," etc., in each inch.

Thus the object is accomplished; all the odd 64ths are here given, and yet there are only 16 lines to the inch. This makes it possible to number each graduation mark, and by making each second graduation mark slightly longer than the one before and after it, the figures can be put on in two rows, and this allows room to make them large enough to be easily read. The rule is ¾-inch wide, and is furnished in the two thicknesses commonly known as the tempered and the semi-flexible. It is made in various lengths.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Dust Over Radiators.

I would like to ask if any of your readers have had an experience with any device that is put on the radiator to prevent dust from running up the sides of the wall when the radiators are near the wall, or if there is any fault in the radiator that dust accumulates from the hot air. Is there any way to avoid it?

Answer—It never will be fully avoided. Dust particles will float in the air and will form where there is a draft on the dust collector, the heat radiators, the circulation of the air leaving the radiator. Necessarily it radiates the air coming in contact with the dust, and the simplest, plainest and smoothest surfaced radiator will do the same. It is desirable that the building manager in conferring with the architect in the planning of buildings give plenty of clear space between the radiator and the walls to avoid the high air velocity behind the radiator. The generally accepted distance is about 60 per cent. more than half of the width of the radiator.

Steam Boilers.

May I ask you to answer one more question? Where can I find a recently published book on steam boilers?

Answer.—Longmans, Green & Co., of New York, have just published a book covering this subject by W. Inchley at the University College, Nottingham, England. The price is $2.40.

There has been some buying along the new subway routes, particularly in The Bronx and Brooklyn. As a rule, however, both operators and investors have hesitated to close any but obvious bargains so long as the Interborough and B. R. T. contracts remained unsigned. With these contracts settled, there should be a considerable increase of real estate activity in all of the boroughs benefited by the new rapid transit.

In looking over the list of bills introduced into the Legislature, one can hardly fail to be impressed with the high quality of the proposed legislation and the laudable ambition of statesmen to associate their names with measures that promise to be of enduring value and immortal fame. Here is Senate Bill No. 154 (Int. No. 152), which bears the name of Mr. Wende. This notable measure provides that no room used for living purposes shall be repapered or calcimined until the old paper or calcimine has been removed. We do not know the exact status of the bill, but if the Legislature fails to enact it at once we suggest that Mr. Wende recall himself and stand for re-election on the great calcimining reform movement.

To anyone interested in the arts and sciences connected with building, or, indeed, to anyone who takes pleasure in the history of the older institutions of the city, the 127th annual report of the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen, just issued, will make good reading. Among last year's gifts to the society's valuable technical library of 95,000 volumes, we note, was a file of the Record and Guide from 1894 to 1912, presented by John P. Voelker. An old print of the house at 12 Chambers street, used as a school building from 1821 to 1858, is reproduced in the report. This site is now occupied by the new Municipal Building.

The Dual System Assured.

At last it can be said with some appearance of finality that the dual subway system is assured. The statement has been made a good many times in the past and has proved to be untrue. Never has the career of any great public improvement been attended with more vicissitudes. One serious obstacle has been patiently removed only to be succeeded by another which at its first appearance looked if anything even more formidable. The obstacles have been due, not only to the inherent difficulties of reaching a satisfactory solution of such a complicated problem, but to an opposition which was as unscrupulous as it was futile in expedients and tenacious in its purposes. Now, however, all the intrinsic difficulties of the subject have apparently been provided for, and, so far as can be seen, the opposition is finally defeated. While it may have some further legal or political expedient to invoke, we cannot discern any possible weapon which has not already been tried.

It seems certain that the Board of Estimate will sign the contracts not later than the end of the coming week, and that by March 15 the city will be legally committed to the burden and the benefits of the dual subway system. Once the contracts are signed they cannot be abrogated by any future administration—even if its members are opposed to the policy embodied in the contracts. Doubtless an inimical Public Service Commission or Board of Estimate could seriously embarrass the execution of the contracts, but it would scarcely dare to do so. After a start has been made in the building of the new system any board which delays its completion will incur so much unpopularity that it will not dare to travel very far along that road.

Assuming that the contracts are as good as signed, and that their execution will follow without unnecessary delay, the question in which property owners are most interested concerns the probable date on which the several parts of the new system will go into operation. The section of the city which may reap the first benefit will be Queens. There is apparently no good reason why trains should not be running in the Belmont tunnel by this time next year. Of course the extension to Long Acre Square cannot be completed by that date, but it will be possible to operate trains to and from the existing terminus near the Grand Central Station in a comparatively short time, and advantage will undoubtedly be taken of the opportunity. Another fraction of the new system which may be serving the public without the delay of more than a year is the Fourth Avenue Subway in Brooklyn, which is well advanced towards completion, and which can be operated, we presume, in a provisional manner across the Manhattan Bridge. Still another part of the new system whose early utilization is possible is the Center Street Subway, which should be put in commission well in advance of the system as a whole, and which should do much to relieve the congestion at the Brooklyn Bridge terminal.

The benefit which Manhattan and The Bronx are likely to realize from the operation of the new system will not be gathered so quickly, even in part, as the benefit which accrues to Brooklyn and Queens. The two boroughs included in old New York will, of course, be somewhat helped by the third tracking of the elevated roads and the construction of the elevated extensions. These improvements ought to be completed within a couple of years, but they will serve to make life a little easier for the inhabitants of the upper east and west sides rather than to develop much new traffic or to improve underlying conditions. What The Bronx particularly needs are the subways and elevated roads which will be operated in connection with the new east side subway, and what Manhattan needs is the new east side subway, the new lower west side subway and the new Broadway subway. Sections of these subways are already under construction, and doubtless could be made fit for operation within a year or two, but it is difficult to see how they can be operated until other sections not yet begun are also ready for use.

It might be physically possible to operate an east side service between the Harlem River and 42d street, but a service of this kind would add so enormously to the passengers who wished to board the already overcrowded subway trains at 42d street that any attempt to establish it looks unwise. In view of this fact the Record and Guide trusts that the Public Service Commission will do its best to have the new Seventh avenue subway built in record breaking time. The hastening of its construction even at some extra expense will really be an economy, because of the inconvenience and loss which will be saved thereby to the inhabitants and business men of Manhattan.

The Story the Tax Figures Tell.

The figures which show the assessed valuation of taxable property for the coming year tell plainly enough the story of existing stagnation in real estate values. Taking the city as a whole the increase in the assessed valuation of real estate is smaller than the cost of new construction during the year. In Manhattan particularly there has been a decrease in ground values, and the decrease would have been larger than that actually recorded in case the tax department had dared to face the actual facts of the situation. The tax policy of the city is having its inevitable fruits. Assessed valuations of real estate have been raised to a level which leaves no margin for that necessarily dubious element in real estate, prices—the element which depends upon the strength of the general market and the needs of the seller and the eagerness of the buyer. If the policy of levelling up assessments had been accompanied by a stationary tax rate, its effects might not have been harmful, but unfortunately a steady increase in the tax rate followed—an increase so steady and so considerable that it absorbed any expansion in real estate values in the favorably situated parts of the city. At the same time it necessarily deprived less favorably situated real estate of part of its earning power, and actually diminished its value. The consequence is that a great many property owners in Manhattan would only be too glad to sell their realty at a smaller price than that at which the city is taxing it. During the first seven weeks of the current year 176 parcels of Manhattan real estate were transferred, in which the consideration was stated in the deed. Their aggregate value amounted to $6,579,552; but the city was assessing them for taxation at $6,797,962. Thus their owners were on the whole paying taxes on over $200,000 of value which did not exist, and this general fact must have meant that in individual instances the injustice ran very much deeper. The Record and Guide has been collecting the statistics of the assessed valuation of property sold for a great many years, but the year 1913 is the first in which assessed values exceeded actual values.

Manifestly, the system is breaking down. In order to meet the increased expenses of the city there should be an increase in the assessed valuation of taxable property sufficient to raise the money necessary to provide for these larger expenses, but under existing conditions there is no chance of raising the needed in crease in revenue by any such means. The larger revenue has to be raised chiefly by augmented taxes on existing values, the consequence being that existing values are tending to shrink. The city is steadily taking away from the real estate owners of New York some part of their existing property, and as the demands of the city government are constantly increasing, while real estate values are decreasing, the situation is rapidly becoming impossible. You cannot keep on collecting an expanding volume of taxes from a diminishing amount of property without finally reaching a condition in which there is no property to tax. It is abnormal and sinister that in a city whose population is increasing at the rate probably of 150,000 each year the increase in real estate values does not amount to the cost of the improvements constructed. Only one inference is possible. Real estate values are actually diminishing. No sufficient allowance is made in the ffficial figures for the deterioration in the value of existing buildings, so that taxable assets are really diminishing faster than they seem to be diminishing. Yet under these critical conditions no one seems able to suggest additional sources of taxation which have any chance of being adopted, and the real estate men themselves seem to be wholly incapable of agreeing on any way out of the dilemma.

THE WEEK IN REAL ESTATE.

There were no notable features to the real estate market during the week, but there was considerable dealing in good properties. Vincent Astor signalized his appearance as a large investor by purchasing 15 West 32d street from the estate of Townsend Wandell. The parcel abuts the holdings of the Astors in West 33d street, just west of Fifth avenue. A tenement property in Cliff street was sold for the fourth time in three months. It is understood that a profit was taken in each transaction; and, if this is so it is interesting as showing that property in old downtown neighborhoods is not quite as heavy a burden as some claim it is. There was a strong demand for apartment houses of good class both in Harlem and on Washington Heights, while a plot in the latter part of the city was sold for improvement with apartment houses. The sale of an elevator apartment house on the East Side was another interesting sale of the week. Probably the premier transaction of the week was the purchase of a large plot, by Charles A. Gould, at the south corner of Fifth avenue and 90th street, opposite the home of Andrew Carnegie. To be improved with a costly home, this plot marks another step in the improvement of upper Fifth avenue along fine lines. Because Central Park is opposite, it does not seem probable that business will soon, if ever, invade the neighborhood where Mr. Gould has bought. A park that fronts on Fifth avenue for a distance of two miles certainly is not a promoter of business conditions therein. Recent tendencies in Madison avenue seem to show that the Lexington avenue subway will materially aid business conditions in that thoroughfare.

The lease of old Bryant Hall, on Sixth avenue, opposite Bryant Park, proved to be a transaction of much interest to hundreds of property owners in the neighborhood. Adjoining the southwest corner of 42d street, this old building will be practically rebuilt into a modern restaurant. The lease, which is for a long term with renewals, marks another forward step in a part of Sixth avenue which has shown recuperative powers. Ever since the Union Dime Savings Institution erected and occupied a new home for itself at 40th street and Sixth avenue together with a few other improvements, the part of Sixth avenue from Herald Square to 42d street has gained in value and in rental strength. The projected new elevated station at 38th street will be a beneficial factor. The lessees of Bryant Hall, or as some call it Lyric Hall, own a number of restaurants in Philadelphia. Very recently a prominent restaurant owner of Chicago leased the large restaurant space in the Grand Central Station and he has opened several restaurants in other parts of the city. It looks as if New York is a profitable field for restaurants and as if one prominent quick lunch company here is going to experience keen rivalry. All of these concerns want long leases, usually with the privilege of renewal. Because of the advent of these newcomers from Philadelphia and Chicago it is likely that there will be competitive bidding for good restaurant locations from the Battery to 42d street. Only recently the Childs company succeeded for the first time in getting into lower Park Row, having, it is understood, leased number 23. It would not be surprising if some other large quick lunch concern entered the street by paying a premium for a choice location. There is a good all-night restaurant trade on Park Row that some streets do not possess.

The owners of the properties comprising the new Court House site in Manhattan received very little consideration from the Board of Estimate this week regarding their request for some relief from the onerous burden of carrying their holdings until the city gets ready to take title to the parcels in question. The Mayor was rather severe in his remarks to them, even though Borough President McAneny declared in open meeting two weeks ago that there was some merit to their grievance. Flagrant instances of injustice to property owners by the city, such as this one has all the earmarks of being, will simply hasten the day when the city will be compelled to take title to property it wants and carry it. Of course, there is no way to make it do so now.

This Bill Would Interfere With Real Estate Developments.

Editor Record and Guide:

We notice in your issue of March 1 last a note relating to a bill prepared by the Department of Taxes and Assessments, to do away with the rule laid down by the Appellate Division in our recent case of Jackson vs. Smith, by providing that the lien of taxes shall be superior to easements existing against the property taxed. We judge from your article that this bill has received some support from real estate interests.

If this is the case, it would appear that some real estate men are either ill-informed or badly advised. The rule laid down in Jackson vs. Smith is a salutary one and protects easements rights, which are frequently a material part of the value of the land benefited, from destruction by the failure of the owner of the land subject to the easement to pay his taxes. The owner of the land benefited pays taxes on an assessment which includes the additional value given by the easement. The city, by this new legislation, attempts to make the owner, in order to hold his easement right, pay not only the additional tax on his own land but all the taxes against the land upon which the easement rests.

The rule laid down in Jackson vs. Smith is not new. The city has never heretofore attempted to cut off easements by tax sales.

Without further particularizing, some of the effects of the new rule, of interest to real estate men, would be, that no land could be sold, and pass the eye of a competent title searcher, in a development tract in which the streets had not been ceded to and accepted by the city before sale commenced.

No uniform restrictive convenants could be applied to a territory and made to hold. The present existing neighborhood restrictions in New York City would cease to be effective. Lands on streets within the city limits, opened since 1898 but not ceded to the city, will have unmarketable titles, as access to the street system cannot be assured.

Unless these results are desired, the approval of this bill should be withheld.

The bill has yet to pass the test of constitutionality.

WEED, HENRY & MEYERS.

A Correction.

In the list of buildings referred to by the Universal Compound Company in their advertisement on the front cover of the Record and Guide for March 1, reference was made to the residence of Mr. John D. Rockefeller at Pocantico Hills built by the Thompson-Starrett Co. This statement they now wish to correct. The general waterproofing contract taken by the Universal Compound Co. was for the addition to Mr. Rockefeller's house now being built by C. T. Wills, Inc., instead of the original house which was built by the Thompson-Starrett Co.

Big Business.

Five million, five hundred thousand dollars will be loaned by the Prudential Insurance Company of Newark on the property to be improved by F. V. & J. H. Burton for the dry goods firm of Lord & Taylor, on Fifth avenue at the northwest corner of 38th street. This week the sum of $3,500,000 was advanced as part of the loan, which was obtained from the insurance company through the Title Guarantee & Trust Company. While it has attracted only passing notice from the public, it is in fact a most remarkable and significant transaction in real estate finance.

A very few more costly building projects have been financed, but generally by the sale of bonds; rarely if ever has so huge a sum been obtained for a private firm by so simple a method—by a single bond and mortgage in the same way that a person would obtain a mortgage loan on an inexpensive dwelling. The business proceedings at the Title company's office took only twenty minutes. Another noteworthy fact is that this is the first loan of large size that the Prudential Life Insurance Company of Newark has made on New York City property. The transaction as a whole testifies to the good opinion which the financiers of the country have of New York City real estate.

During the panic of 1907 stocks of all kinds shrunk to one-half their former value and many bonds were in default, but there was very little depreciation in real estate values. Mortgage investors lost no money. Walter Stabler, the Comptroller of the Metropolitan Insurance Company, said after it was all over that he did not believe there was a man who had an honest well-invested mortgage who had lost anything on it.

—The Board of Estimate declines to have the city take title to the new courthouse site until the city is ready to utilize it.

THE TAX RATES FOR 1913.

Manhattan, $1.81; Brooklyn and Queens, $1.85, and Richmond, $1.92.

The tax rate on real and personal property in Manhattan and the Bronx for 1913 will be $1.81 on each $100, a reduction of 2 cents on each $100. The Aldermen in special session fixed this rate for the ensuing year. The rate for Brooklyn will be $1.85; Queens, $1.85, and Richmond, $1.92. The reduction also amounts to 2 cents on a $100 in Brooklyn, but the rate in Queens is increased 1 cent on a $100, while in Richmond it remains the same.

A statement issued by President Lawson Purdy of the Tax Department says that the dull real estate market is responsible for the fact that the net increase on the assessment roll is less than the value of the new buildings. The evidence furnished by the sales of real estate with the actual considerations stated, which took place during 1912, shows that assessments are as high as the values warrant.

In Manhattan there were 1,234 sales, with considerations stated during 1912, the aggregate assessed value was $72,675,000, and the considerations totalled $71,539,000. The assessed value was therefore 101 per cent. of the total of the considerations, which include the foreclosures.

In Brooklyn there were 775 sales with consideration stated. The aggregate assessed value was $6,734,000, and the agregate of considerations was $6,723,000. The assessed value was therefore 100 per cent. of the considerations. As in Manhattan, these sales include foreclosures.

Increased Assessment of Real Estate.

The figures showing the increased value of land and the increased valuation on account of new buildings for the year 1912 are also given in President Purdy's statement:

The net increase in the assessment of all real estate is $144,748,971, and the net decrease in the assessment of personal estate is $17,545,100, making a net increase in the assessment roll of all property of $127,203,871.

When the annual record was open for public inspection on October 1 there was an increase for improvements aggregating for all boroughs $140,653,850. It will be observed that this increase is $33,000,000 more than the net increase on the final assessment rolls of all ordinary real estate. These figures show that the assessed value of land is less than for 1912. In several districts in Manhattan, notably the easterly part of Harlem and along Broadway, and adjacent streets, between Fourteenth and Duane streets, there have been decreases. There was a net decline in the territory north of Duane street, from river to river.

In the Bronx there was an increase for new buildings of $20,000,000, and the net increase on the assessment roll is but $17,000,000. The assessments remain on the average about the same.

In Brooklyn there was increase for new buildings of $24,000,000, and the net increase on the assessment roll is less than $3,000,000. In eleven districts in Brooklyn out of twenty-three, the land value for 1913 is less than for 1912.

There is no district in Queens that shows a decrease, but the increase is less than $18,000,000, and of this new improvements provide $13,500,000.

In all but one district in Richmond there was a small increase, but that net increase in excess of new improvements amounted to less than $1,250,000.

New Jamaica Terminal Opens.

With the opening of the new union station at Jamaica, to-day, another new era of growth and improvement on Long Island is begun; and, it is more important than any previous era because it marks the inception of a greater suburban train service throughout all parts of Nassau County and the western part of Suffolk County. The railroad company, long ago, announced that it could not electrify its Montauk division from Jamaica to Babylon, or its main line from Hicksville to Deer Park, or farther east, until the extensive improvements at Jamaica were completed. So far has the Jamaica improvement progressed that another year will witness its entire completion, and that means the elimination of all grade crossings and the establishment of a train yard. So much of the new terminal as is now ready for use means an end to the interminable delay of trains which has been caused by lack of sufficient tracks to handle several trains at a time coming into Jamaica. Now more than one train can come into a platform and there are several platforms. As a result, all parts of Nassau county are 10 to 12 minutes nearer Manhattan and Brooklyn than they were before. Floral Park, Hempstead, Rockville Centre, East Rockaway, Oceanside, Long Beach, Lynbrook and numerous other growing communities just east of the city line are henceforth more accessible.

There is a structural feature of the new Jamaica Terminal that has escaped general observation; and, that is the elimination of tracks crossing at grade. The tracks from Jamaica to the Pennsylvania Station in Manhattan cross the tracks from Jamaica to Brooklyn on a steel and concrete viaduct.

Large Holdings.

Some operators say that corporations and wealthy estates will own practically all of Manhattan in the not very distant future. Even in the dullest times the trend of development is toward powerful concentration. Small holdings are accumulated by operators in order to get large plots. The combined sites are improved with one great structure, either mercantile or residential. The improved property becomes an investment security of the highest class and it passes sooner or later into the control of permanent holders.—R. E. Brokers' Bulletin.

New Rates on the L. I. Railroad.

In anticipation of the opening of the Union Hall station at Jamaica, the Long Island Railroad Company has obtained from the Public Service Commission for the First District permission to file a new tariff of passenger rates on less than 30 days' notice. The new tariff shows that there will be several reductions and some increases in the fare. One-way express train fares will be increased one cent from Union Hall station to Woodside, Forest Hills, Kew, Bushwick, Bushwick Junction, Glendale, Richmond Hill and Woodhaven Junction. The fare to East New York will be increased three cents. One-way express train fares from Union Hall station will be reduced one cent to Hollis, Bellaire, Queens, Bellrose, Floral Park, Stewart Manor, Nassau Boulevard, Garden City, Hempstead Crossing and Hempstead.

A reduction of two cents will be made in the fare to Belmont Park. The round-trip fare will be increased two cents to Woodside, Forest Hills and Glendale; one cent to Kew, Bushwick Junction, Richmond Hill and Woodhaven Junction, and three cents to East New York. It will be reduced one cent to Hollis, Floral Park and Stewart Manor; and two cents to Bellaire, Queens, Bellrose, Nassau Boulevard, Garden City and Hempstead Crossing. One-way express train fares also will be reduced one cent between Jamaica and Bushwick Junction; two cents between Jamaica and Glendale, and one cent between Jamaica and Woodhaven Junction, while round-trip fares to Glendale and Woodhaven Junction from Jamaica will be reduced two cents. Fares for local electric train service will remain the same from Flatbush avenue to Belmont Park, with the single exception of the fare from Jamaica to Belmont Park, which will be reduced two cents.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

New York City Construction Figures for Last Two Months Show Increase in Plans Filed, but $5,500,000 Drop in Value.

In the Entire District, However, Both Volume and Value of New Building Construction Exceed Corresponding Records of Last Year—Market Prices.

MARCH usually is the time when building material interests get their stocks and equipment in shape for the opening of the building season. The size of the orders then coming into the wholesale market give the first positive inkling as to the probable trend of building construction. Usually spring requirements are not placed in heavy volume until after the middle of March, but this year conditions are different. Actual orders are somewhat slow, but there is an active inquiry in regard to prices and accommodations.

When the wholesalers show a disposition to shade on quotations and to give term concessions to any and all buyers it is safe to assume that the outlook is not particularly bright and that conditions are bordering on ultra-conservatism. It is, therefore, significant that during the last ten days the inquiry has been much larger than in any other corresponding time during the last four years, and that instead of manufacturers showing a tendency to concede extended terms and to pay little heed to lists, they are showing increasing independence and are even quoting list subject to sharp advances.

This may account for the slowness of orders and it is entirely probable that small builders will wait for another thirty days to elapse under the new administration before they come forward with actual building orders. In operations involving large sums the higher cost of construction is being met by eliminating certain extras as shown by the fact that up to March 1, 1912, there were but 1,364 new building plans filed, while this year there were 65 buildings in excess of that figure, or exactly 1,429 in New York city. The value of these buildings in the corresponding period in 1912 was placed at $23,623,155, while the total value of new building projects filed up to March first this year figures approximately $5,500,000 less, or exactly $18,190,473.

Wholesalers who analyze statistics prophesy that during the next quarter the temper of these figures will be exactly reversed, for the reason that certain commodities like Portland cement and certain grades of lumber, which have recently advanced in price, will not become stimulants in building costs until after the middle of this month, for the reason that distributors have figured on these building operations on old schedules and on contracts which manufacturers are bound to fulfill.

While construction figures covering the first two months of 1913 for New York city proper show a $5,500,000 decrease in value from those of a corresponding period in 1912, new building work in East Jersey, Westchester and Southern Connecticut makes the record in the Metropolitan district from January 1 to March 1 of this year total 3,912. New building plans filed with a total value of $37,239,144, as against 2,489 in a corresponding period last year, valued at $31,642,009.

This wide difference in figures is traceable to the difference in weather conditions during the first part of these two years. In the first two months of January, 1912, frigid weather prevailed, and in consequence new building operations could not go ahead. This year weather conditions were more favorable to early building operations, and the result was that there was a heavier demand upon suburban distributors' stocks, and in most cases distributors seeing a chance to rid themselves of material which they have been carrying for some time, and to encourage building construction, advanced prices comparatively little, if any, thus encouraging operators to go ahead with their plans.

A positive indication of continued strength in the building material market is the firmness of steel. Instead of February falling behind in the volume of contracts taken, as was predicted early in that month, the total contracts placed in February aggregate 126,000 tons, as compared with 100,000 tons in January One noticeable feature of the February steel business was that the railroads placed very small bridge contracts last month, and since the first of January total purchases of fabricated structural steel on railroad account have been only about 60,000 tons, out of a total of 226,000 tons. Since the first of March there has been a lull in fabricated steel orders, but this will probably be only temporary.

HOLLOW TILE QUOTED HIGHER.

National Fireproofing Co. Makes New List for This Market.

THE National Fireproofing Co. is sending out new quotations on hollow tile fireproofing material for use in the Metropolitan district. There is a big demand for this material and in consequence the price level has been raised to those quoted in the following table:

STEEL IN AN ACTIVE MARKET.

A New Record Made for Steel Contracts in February.

ACTIVITY continues in fabricated structural steel for commercial buildings and manufacturing plants, but railroad orders for bridges are still relatively small—less than one-sixth of the total tonnage booked by the fabricating shops in February.

All of the steel companies have specifications which permit the mills to run as close to full capacity as the steel supply makes possible. In February a new record in daily output of steel ingots was established by the United States Steel Corporation, and it is understood that some of the independent companies have been equally fortunate. Output of steel ingots by the Corporation has been close to $59,000 tons per day.

The McMorrow loft building to be constructed on West 35th street, awarded to the Hinkle Iron Works, will require only 850 tons of steel. Levering & Garrigues will construct two buildings at East Boston for the Mead-Morrison Company, one of which has been formally awarded. There is an inquiry in the market for 250 tons of steel for the Flower Hospital to be constructed at 64th street and Avenue A, this city.

Here in New York the final signing of the subway contracts gives the steel men hopes of heavy rolling tonnages in the summer. Close to 200,000 tons are expected to be used in this work.

LINSEED OIL DROPS 2 CENTS.

Lubricants in Good Demand—Petroleum Firm at Unchanged Prices.

LINSEED oil has fallen off two cents a gallon in this city. Seed is slightly easier at Duluth, making oil here quiet and steady. Current prices for City raw American seed range at 47 and 48, raw Calcutta stands at 65 and the local market is steady.

China wood oil is now quoted at between 7½ and 8. The movement of crude oil is considered easy. Current prices follow: Pennsylvania, $2.50 per bbl.; second sand, $2.50 per bbl.; Tiona, $2.50 per bbl.; Mercer, black, $2 per bbl.; Corning, $2 per bbl.; New Castle, $2 per bbl.; Cabell, $2.07 per bbl.; North Lima, $1.31 per bbl.; South Lima, $1.27 per bbl.; Indiana, $1.32 per bbl; Princeton, $1.14 per bbl.; Illinois, above 30 gravity, $1.25 per bbl.; Kansas and Oklahoma, 88 cents per bbl.; 30 gravity and above; Caddo, La., light, 91 cents per bbl.; Caddo, La., heavy, 60 cents per bbl.; Canada, $1.65 per bbl.; Sommerset, $1.35 per bbl., 32 gravity and above; Ragland, 70 cents per bbl., 28 and 32 gravity.

The mineral lubricant producers are reporting a good demand for all grades and the market is retaining a firm tone. Current prices follow: Black, refined, summer, 13 to 13½; Black, reduced, 27 gravity, 35 to 30 c. t., 13½ to 14; Black, reduced, 30 gravity, 15 cold test, 14½ to 15; Cylinder, light filtered, 21½ to 23; Dark, steam, refined, 15½ to 25; Paraffin, high viscosity, 19 to 26; 23½ to 24 gravity, 15 to 15½; 28 gravity, 13 to 13½; Wax, crude, per lb., 3¼ to 3¾; refined 120 m. p., 412; refined 125 m. p., 4¾; refined, 130 m. p., 5¼; refined, 135 m. p., 6¼.

Current prices of lubricating oils in 5 barrel lots of neutral oils, filtered, are as follows: Prices for cylinder, dark are 20 and 27 cents a gallon, according to test. On the same basis cylinder steam, refined, run from 14 to 22; stainless white neutral, filtered, 30 to 34 gravity, run from 28 to 29; lemons, 33 to 34 gravity, 17 to 19; dark, 32 gravity, 13 and 18.

LUMBER INQUIRY HEAVY.

Wholesalers Report Considerable Movement Toward Purchasing in Suburbs.

THAT the stocks of lumber dealers throughout the Metropolitan district is low is shown in the fact that the inquiry reported by wholesalers is extremely active despite the higher tendency of prices. Quotations for spruce are firm with the demand a little above normal. The flooring market is stiffening with a continued good demand. Hemlock was without change this week. Long leaf yellow pine in all sizes is in good demand. There has been a slight retraction in the activity of shingles, but the supply is limited and it is not at all probable that prices will fall. The following prices rule for cypress shingles: 7x24-in. rived and shaved, $23.50 to $24 per M; 21-in., promiscuous widths, rived and shaved, $8, 4-in. basis; 6x20-in., sawed, $12 per M; 6x18-in., sawed, $8.50 per M; 5x18-in., sawed, $7.50 per M.

The price of oak piling is 22 to 25 cents per lin. ft. Oak piles, 14 ins. in diameter, 2 ft. from butt with a 6-in. top, and 40 to 45 ft. long, are held at $10.50 to $11.50; 50 ft. long, 25 cents per lin. ft. Pine piles, 25 ft. long, 12 ins. in diameter, 2 ft. from butt, with a 7-in. top, held at 17 cents per lin. ft., while those 25 ft. long are 16 cents. In general pine piles can be had at 16 and 17 cents; oak piles, 55 to 60 ft., are quoted at 23 cents per lin. ft.

COMMON BRICK MORE ACTIVE.

Expected Reopening of Navigation Makes Holders of Stacks Nervous.

THE restricted volume of construction work in New York City during the last three or four weeks has resulted in restriction in the movement of stack brick with the expected reopening of navigation at almost anytime. Holders of stack brick have become somewhat nervous especially since the $7.50 level for common brick at the wholesale docks has been maintained by demand. The outlook for demand in this department in the near future is promising and there is every indication that the market's requirements will be materially increased in the near future.

Official transactions for North River common brick during the last week with records covering the corresponding week last year follow:

REAL ESTATE NEWS OF THE WEEK

Brokerage Sales, Leases and Public Auctions

Large Leases Are a Notable Phase of the Week's News.

Dealing in real estate was fairly frequent this week and the character of it was good. Some first-class apartment houses in various parts of the city changed hands, while a large corner plot on Carnegie Hill was sold for improvement with a fine dwelling. The leasing market was as important in some of its phases as the selling market. Our columns will show some very substantial leases, and while it is the time of year when leasing is frequent still some of the leases are of more than ordinary interest. The real estate market in Brooklyn shows a strong undertone and it is in better condition than it was in last week. There is a good market for dwellings; and, in the face of the fact that Brooklyn has been deprived of subway routes it long ago expected, the borough's real estate is responding to the demand for living space in other than apartment houses, while the demand for space in those buildings in Brooklyn is also good. There were a few good sales in the Bronx of apartment houses.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 11 against 17 last week and 26 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 34, compared with 29 last week and 24 a year ago.

From the Bronx 18 sales at private contract were reported, against 17 last week and 21 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,403,423 compared with $2,053,250 last week, making a total since January 1 of $10,430,956. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $646,458, making the total from Jan. 1, 1912, $8,495,400.

THIS METAL CEILING HAS CHARACTER

Beam Ceiling, Craftsman Style, in a Suburban Residence

A plain design—most effective as the "finishing touch." In Craftsman style, grained to match the effect of fine woodwork, it has all the advantages inherent to metal construction. No nails. All joints tongued and grooved. It does not shrink, swell or "craze." It is incombustible and does not harbor insects. Can be put up directly on wooden beams, flat tile arches or placed over plaster ceilings.

W. G. Cornell Co. Expands.

The W. G. Cornell Company, specialists in plumbing, heating, ventilating and electrical work, has enlarged its offices in the Everett Building, at Fourth avenue and 17th street, and now occupies the suite of offices extending across the entire 17th street side of the building at the fifth floor.

Half a decade ago this company began business with small offices in the building they had equipped with plumbing under the architects, Goldwin Starrett & Van Vleck and as sub-contractors to the builders, the George A. Fuller Construction Company. W. G. Cornell, the president. Edward A. Slosson, the vice-president, George W. Simmons, treasurer and secretary, all experts in their line, full of enthusiasm and a conviction that there was a place abreast of other departments of engineering for that of sanitation, other than that of the sub-cellar workshop, reached out for work offered by such builders as the George A. Fuller Construction Company and the Thompson-Starrett Company among others. Offering to architects and builders equipment backed by resources sufficiently large to assure the satisfactory completion of any job no matter how large, success soon made it necessary for the company to extend its field of activity to other cities and so offices were from time to time opened in Boston, Baltimore and Washington.

Continued increase in business here in New York has made further expansion imperative and its facilities are now such as to enable it more easily to take care of its rapidly increasing business.

MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENTS

Public and Local Works Contemplated in the Greater City.

A Summary of the Proceedings of the Local Boards, the Board of Estimate, the Supreme Court and Various Commissions and Bureaus Relating to Street and Other City and Borough Improvements.

The news collected here under the general head of Municipal Improvements is intended to be of service to property owners as well as contractors and brokers. It covers every measure looking toward a change in the City Map, toward the acquisition of title to real estate by the city or toward construction work, including the grading of streets, the laying of sewers, the building of schools, etc. Each such measure is acted upon by one or more—generally by several—official bodies before it becomes a valid ordinance. In these columns the successive official acts pertaining to it are noted from the time it is introduced in a Local Board or in the Board of Estimate. Wherever public hearings on it are granted, the fact is also announced.

Municipal improvements may be divided into two classes—those that are paid for out of the general tax levy and those that are paid for wholly or in part by special assessments on the property owners benefited. The latter, which are the more important to real estate owners, originate in the Local Boards. However, every local improvement, except certain street improvements calling for an expenditure of not more than $2,000, must be submitted to the Board of Estimate for authorization.

The news is classified and is printed in this order: Local Board Calendars, Local Board Resolutions, Proceedings of the Board of Estimate, Public Hearings, Assessments Due and Payable.

LOCAL BOARD CALENDARS.

As regards the majority of city improvements, including all that call for special assessments, the Local Boards are in a sense neighborhood legislatures. They have absolute authority over certain street improvements, costing not more than $2,000. With respect to all other local improvements, they exercise full legislative functions, subject to approval by the Board of Estimate. The Board of Estimate seldom vetoes a measure coming from a Local Board It is before the latter that the property owner should be most watchful to make himself heard concerning proposed improvements. When a Local Board resolution comes before the Board of Estimate, the presumption of expediency is on the side of the measure, as this has been adopted after open consideration by a body supposed to be familiar with local sentiment.

There are twenty-five Local Improvement Districts in the city, each with its Local Board. This is composed of the Borough President and of the Aldermen who represent the Aldermanic districts within the Local Improvement District. The Borough President's secretary acts as secretary of the several boards. Each board has jurisdiction over matters relating to its district. In the case of matters relating to two or more districts, the boards of the districts affected sit in common. The meetings are subject to call by the Borough President.

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

One or more hearings are granted in connection with all proposed improvements. In the case of local improvements, the first hearing is by the Local Board. Such hearings are noted in this news department of the Record and Guide under the general head of Local Board Calendars. Hearings by all other bodies are noted in the present column.

In acquiring title to land for streets, sewers, parks, approaches to bridges, etc., condemnation proceedings are commonly resorted to. A proceeding having been authorized by the Board of Estimate, the Corporation Counsel makes application to the Supreme Court for the appointment of three commissioners. If the cost of the land is to be paid wholly or in part by property owners benefited, the commissioners are known as commissioners of estimate and assessment. They hold their meetings at the Bureau of Street Openings, a clerical and legal organization under the supervision of the Corporation Counsel charged with the management of all legal proceedings which involve awards for damages or assessments for benefit to land.

If the cost of the land is to be paid by the city as a whole, as in the case of school sites, dock property, etc., the commissioners are known as commissioners of estimate and appraisal, whose place of meeting is at 258 Broadway.

In the case of assessments for local improvements of a physical nature which do not have to be confirmed by a court of record the assessments come before three permanent commissioners appointed by the Mayor. They constitute the Board of Assessors, which has to do with assessments for such improvements as the regulating and grading of streets, the laying of sewers, etc.

By the Supreme Court.

"Lapidarit" is a Liquid Cement

Lapidarit is the ideal paint for use on Green or old Concrete, Brick, Tile, Interior or Exterior, Plastered Walls, Stone, Glass, etc.

It is a liquid cement which will petrify mineral and oxide dry colors so that they practically become a part of the surface they are applied to.

Lapidarit is superior to any oil paint for the purpose for which it is intended, because it will not crack, peel, wash or rub off. It is weather and fireproof.

One gallon will cover from 200 to 350 square feet, according to smoothness of surface to which it is applied. It spreads easily and does not require skilled labor to apply. When surface becomes soiled it can be washed with water or if a new color is desired another coat of the liquid can be applied.

Made in all Standard Colors

EXPLANATION OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1912.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number

RIGHTS OF REALTY OWNERS IN THE STREETS

Who Owns Cortlandt Street, the City or the Abutting Owners?—An Injunction Sought Under the Claim That the Fee Was Never Vested in the City.

PROPERTY owners and their legal counsel have not been convinced that, as maintained of late years by the city authorities, they have no special rights—at least no right of possession in any case—in the streets fronting their premises. They have been waiting for some determination by the high courts to settle the question in their minds. William W. Appleton and Col. Daniel Appleton, as trustees for the owners of the premises at 173 Broadway, northwest corner of Cortlandt street, have applied to the courts for an injunction to restrain the City of New York from encroaching upon their property, particularly the vault space under the sidewalk on the Cortlandt street side.

They claim to own this vault space, and the city disputes their claim. The case is pending in the Supreme Court before Justice Greenbaum. The answer to a number of important questions depend upon the final decision in these proceedings. So far as Cortlandt street is concerned, the decision is expected to determine what the rights of abutting owners are in the street beyond the building line.

The Issue.

Briefly stated, the contention of the Messrs. Appleton is, as the Record and Guide has learned from their counsel, J. Hampden Dougherty, Esq., of 27 William street, that the fee in Cortlandt street has never passed to the city. Cortlandt street was opened as a forty-foot street, in 1733. Upon the widening of the street, in 1784, by the addition of a strip of five feet on each side, which took place under an act of the Legislature, the city acquired only an easement and not the fee of the added strips.

The vaults lie under the sidewalks and extend a few feet beyond the added strip. In pursuance of a policy recently adopted, the city, through the president of the Borough of Manhattan, is calling upon occupants of vault space to take out permits and pay rentals. The claim of the Messrs. Appleton is that the fee of Cortlandt street has always remained in the adjoining owner and that the owners of 173 Broadway have a title to the land under the street and sidewalk occupied by their vaults.

In the present case the title is traceable back for nearly two hundred years. Cortlandt street did not become a thoroughfare during the Dutch occupancy of Manhattan Island nor was it opened under any act of the Colonial Legislature. It may be conceded, Counselor Dougherty says, that while New Netherlands constituted a province of the States-General of Holland, the fee of all the streets actually opened during the Dutch administration passed to the sovereign power. But Cortlandt street was not opened until 1733, at which time New York was an English colony, and the street was not opened pursuant to any act of the Colonial Legislature.

If the courts should decide that the land covered by Cortlandt Street does not belong to the City of New York, but to the abutting owners, the policy of the municipality in important particulars will have to be changed. In a number of other instances in Manhattan, it is also alleged that the fee ownership to the streets never passed to the municipality. If this contention is affirmed, it follows that the proprietors have the right to the use of the land under the sidewalks and in the streets in front of their buildings for vault purposes, so long as that use does not conflict with the use of the street by the city for street purposes, and that these vaults cannot be entered for any purpose without due process of law.

A Little Real Estate History.

The premises in question, together with other lands lying north of the latitude of Wall street, between Broadway and the Hudson River, belonged in or about 1730 to Catherine Phillipse. The title came to her through one of the Van Cortlandts, whose daughter, was Mrs. Phillipse, The executors of her estate, in unison with other owners, "staked and laid out" Cortlandt street through their lands. They then notified the Common Council that they had laid out the street in like manner as other public streets and that it would forever continue a public street. They asked to have the dedication accepted and recorded. The prayer of the petition was granted, and the declaration was entered in the minutes.

The contention of the plaintiffs is that this action of the owners and the city authorities constituted a dedication of the street by the owners of the land embraced within and an acceptance of the dedication by the city, and that the legal result was the vesting in the city of an easement, while the title in fee to the street did not pass to the municipality. They allege that the words "staked and laid out" have repeatedly been held to imply the conveyance of an easement only, as no proceedings were taken to vest title in fee in the city.

The present building with the vaults in Cortlandt street was constructed by James E. Cooley in the year 1868, and ever since that date it has remained in the possession of Cooley and the trustees under his will. Admittedly the present legal proceedings have a bearing on the city policy of eliminating architectural projections beyond the building line. It has been claimed that there are a number of other streets in Manhattan, as well as in Brooklyn, where the fee is not vested in the city but in the owners of the abutting premises.

Text of the Dedication.

The dedication in the case of Cortlandt street reads as follows:

"The petitioners and others concerned in the said lands by mutual consent and agreement have laid and staked out a certain new street from the Broadway aforesaid to Hudson's River of forty foot in breadth and called the name thereof Cortlandt street, which begins upon the Broadway aforesaid," etc. The document goes on to say:

"The petitioners declare and make known that the said new street so laid out, of forty-foot English measure in breadth through lands aforesaid and called Cortlandt street shall forever remain, continue and be a public street and highway in like manner as the other public streets of the city now are or lawfully ought to be; and therefore pray this their declaration and petition may be recorded in the record of the common council of the corporation."

No condemnation proceeding was ever instituted and no compensation was ever paid to the owner for the land taken. The original street was laid out by the proprietors of the land adjoining and embracing the street, who presented to the Common Council their petition, asking that their action in dedicating the street be recorded. In other words, whatever title or interest the city received was the result of a dedication by private owners and the city's acceptance of it. It was a dedication made in accordance with the common law which then prevailed in the State of New York, and the Counselor Dougherty claims that the Common Council's acceptance of it gave the city merely an easement in the street, and he supports this claim by citations from numerous authorities.

NINETY-NINE YEAR LEASEHOLDS

Their Advantages to Both Parties Explained—They Provide a Sure Income Through Generations—An Old English Custom Revived.

By ALEXANDER V. C. TAYLOR.

A NEW interest is being taken here in long-term leaseholds. At the late National Convention of Real Estate Exchanges this form of lease was strongly recommended. New York is the only State which makes any attempt to tax, as personal property, the ground rents represented by leases that have a term of more than twenty-one years. Because of this tax, and because, further, the rights of lessors are not sufficiently protected under existing laws, legislation has been introduced at Albany by the Allied Real Estate Interests of the State of New York to remove these objections and make leases for terms longer than twenty-one years merchantable in this State.

Alexander V. C. Taylor, of the real estate firm of V. C. Taylor & Son, of Cleveland, is a strong advocate of ninety-nine-year leaseholds. He believes that for the lessor it is the safest and surest way of providing an income for himself and his descendants; and that, on the other hand, it is the safest form of speculation in real estate for lessees whose means are limited. Mr. Taylor's views on the subject were expressed in a paper read by him before the National Convention of Real Estate Exchanges, and a portion of the paper was reproduced in the Record and Guide of September 14, 1912, attracting wide attention. In view of the evidence of growing interest in the subject, further remarks from the same source are timely.

The Safest Form of Investment.

"The purpose of ninety-nine year leaseholds on the part of the lessor is the entailing of his property rights and interest through leaseholds, as the safest and surest way of providing an income for himself and the generations to follow. It is a matter of history that this old English custom has provided a sure income for heirs through many generations. The lessor on making his will often provides that the fee shall not be sold, but held in trust by some responsible trustee, with authority to pay over to designated heirs certain sums from ground rents sufficient to provide them with a comfortable maintenance. Many trustees of estates and investors seek the fee under ground leasehold, believing that it is the safest form of investment where the property has been improved by the lessee with care and due consideration to the section.

"I believe that an option-to-purchase clause, at an agreed figure, during a fixed term of years, adds greatly to the value and negotiability of the leasehold, it being easier to secure a loan on the lessee's interest if such a clause is embodied in the lease; while a fixed purchase price is generally placed at an amount in advance of the present market value of the land. It is proven that the improvements placed thereon and the changing of the property by improvements to a higher class has stimulated an advanced land value which will accrue to the lessee under his purchase clause, but which would be of no advantage unless this clause was available.

"A straight term leasehold at an agreed rent is the safest and has proven the best. Reappraisal leaseholds having proven cumbersome and unsatisfactory. The improvements placed on the land vary in accordance with the ideas and requirements of the lessee, but should be from one-fourth to one-half the value of the land. Liquor clauses are both beneficial and detrimental. My experience tells me that liquor privilege clauses should not be inserted in a leasehold where the property is in the best retail section, the keeping out of such clauses enhances the value of the land and, if generally adopted by all property owners in that section, retains its high-class retail possibilities and value for a longer period.

In Their Infancy.

"The natural growth of cities with increasing land values has made the conservative operations in leaseholds in the business section the safest form of speculation in real estate, for those of limited means. In many of our larger cities, where leaseholds are in effect, a large percentage of the business section is under lease. That this percentage will grow is evidenced by its success, and I believe that 99-year leaseholds are really in their infancy. I contend that there is as much science in the study and operation of land and its development as in medicine and other professions. Scientific land development is in its beginning, and scientific principles should be adapted to land development and operation as they are applied to any other valuable commodity.

"By studying carefully the marked path of business expansion, the lessee can always be safe in his investment. I have always been impressed with that well thought out statement of Richard M. Hurd in his book, 'The Principles of City Land Values,' where he states that the 'growth in cities consists of movement away from the point of origin in all directions except as it may be topographically hindered, this movement being due both to aggression at the edges and pressure from the center. Central growth takes place both from the heart of the city and from each sub-center of attraction, and axial growth pushes into the outlying territory by means of railroads, turnpikes and street railroads.

Builds Up Cities.

"'All cities are built up from these two influences, which vary in quantity, intensity and quality, the resulting districts overlapping and interpenetrating, neutralizing and harmonizing as the pressure of the city's growth brings them in contact with each other, the fact of vital interest being that despite confusion from the intermingling of the utilities the order of dependence of each definite district on the other is always the same. Residences are early driven to the circumference, while business remains at the center, and as residences divide into very social grades, retail shops of corresponding grades follow them, and wholesale shops, in turn, follow the retailers, while institutions and various mixed utilities irregularly fill in the intermediate zone, and the banking and office section remain at the main business center. Complicating this broad outward movement of zones, axis of traffic project shops through residence areas, create business sub-centers where they intersect and change circular cities into star-shaped cities.'

"Bearing this in mind, you can, with safety, advise the lessee in the selection of property, knowing that if a definite plan is followed on a location within the pathway of business expansion and the lessee keeps within his financial ability, he will be successful.

"One of the most satisfactory liquor clauses that I have ever seen embodied in a lease provides against the sale of intoxicating liquors, at retail, except as the same may be sold in connection with a hotel, restaurant, drug store, or other kindred business, to which such sale of liquors shall be incidental merely, and shall not, in any case, suffer or permit such liquors to be sold or dispensed over a bar, except in connection with the use of the premises for the purposes of a hotel as the principal business, and that no main entrance to such place shall be located upon the street on which the property fronts.

Legal Advice.

"I am indebted to Mr. J. M. Henderson, one of Cleveland's representative and foremost real estate lawyers, for legal advice in the preparation of this article. He advises me that one of the most beneficial provisions of a lease is the one which secures a very full measure of payment to the lessee for buildings which are on the premises at the expiration of the lease. Many lessors are in this respect short-sighted and unwilling to assume that kind of an obligation for full payment for buildings, which is absolutely necessary if the buildings are to be kept in the best possible condition throughout the term, or replaced if they are out of date. Nothing will depreciate the value of a city lot more rapidly than to have an old, out-of-date building upon it, or in its vicinity, and so long as the landlord is unwilling to make the full payment for the structures on the land at the expiration of the lease, it will generally be to the tenant's interest to let the buildings run down and never to replace old ones with new during the latter years of the term.

"The effect of allowing old and ruinous or out-of-date buildings to remain on the land, is to depreciate the value, not only of the particular lot, but of the adjacent or contiguous lots by driving business into more attractive sections, and if there are a number of buildings in any particular section which are thus allowed to become unattractive as business places, it is very certain that business will go elsewhere.

"Summing up all the possibilities of revenue derived from the general real estate brokers' business, I believe that the largest compensation will be derived from the leasing of properties for the 99-year term. Greater financial benefits come to the broker and to the community at large through the upbuilding of cities through this effort.

"Many of us do not accomplish more in our business life because we do not attempt more, and I suggest to you to strike out in this line of operation and you will be astonished at the results to you as an individual and to the city."

MODEL THEATRE BUILDING CODE APPROVED

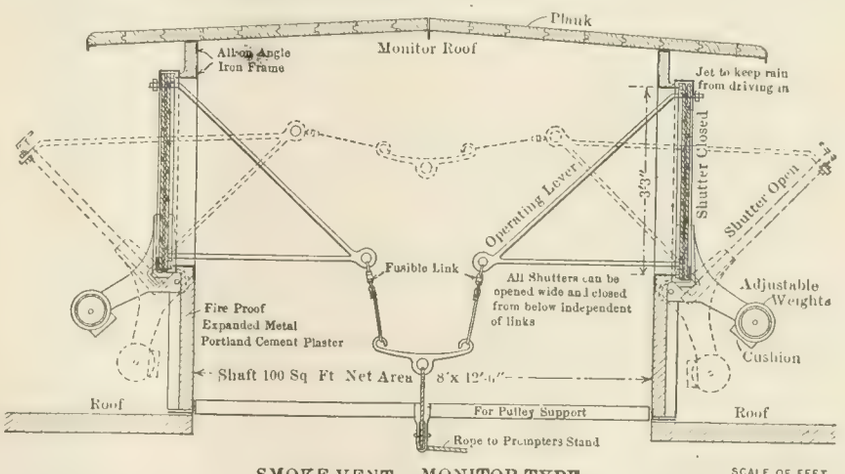
Salient Points of Difference Between National Board of Fire Underwriters' Suggested Ordinance and the Theatre Section of the Present Building Law.

A MODEL code designed to regulate the construction and equipment of theatres in all cities in the country has just been approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters co-operating with the National Fire Prevention Association. It differs in some important particulars from the theatre section of the existing New York city code and it therefore may be considered as having a possible influence upon the final revision of the code now in operation here.

Following the Iroquois theatre fire in Chicago, a universal demand for more comprehensive building codes relating to theatre construction arose. Among other organizations which took up the subject were the National Board of Fire Underwriters and the National Fire Prevention Association. Exhaustive laboratory tests and careful investigations have been carried on since that time by these interests as well as by the city of Chicago. The underwriters prepared the first tentative ordinance, in co-operation with a committee of the National Fire Prevention Association in May 1912. This ordinance was later approved by the latter organization, whose membership consists of architects, builders and engineers throughout the country. It made provisional modifications. These were later adopted by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and is being promulgated by it as a substitute for the theatre section in its model building code.

In general the provisions of this ordinance are in accord with the requirements of the new building code prepared for this city last year by the Joint Committee of Architects, Builders and Engineers. Some, however, are innovations as compared with the existing code for New York city, although similar requirements have been exacted by the theatre code in Chicago since the Iroquois theatre fire.

Provisions Not Prohibitive.



The fire-prevention and fireproofing experts who have been at work on this code for the last few years say these provisions are not as prohibitive as they might appear to be on first reading. Several theatres in this city, notably, the Gaiety, the New Theatre and others, including the new Jefferson theatre in East 14th street, recently opened, have voluntarily included such features as the new model ordinance requires; as, for instance, the rigid curtain, stage ventilation system and safety courts.

In the matter of fire exits most of the theatres in this city have ample exit facilities, owng to the rigid requirements of the existing code; but in the matter of stage ventilation, the ultimate theatre code, if finally patterned at all on the model submitted by the National Boards of Fire Underwriters and Prevention, will, in a measure be changed to conform to the Freeman idea of what good stage ventilation is and which idea is illustrated in the accompanying plates.

In this connection it might be stated that the stage ventilation system used at the Jefferson theatre is very similar to that indicated in the illustration, which system was endorsed by John R. Freeman in his presidential address before the December, 1905, meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The Freeman plan is in accord with the requirements of the Underwriters code.

For the unitiated it might be stated that stage ventilation is in reality a form of construction which mechanically converts a stage into a chimney in the event of a fire breaking out behind the curtain. To quote from Mr. Freeman's paper, "On the Safeguarding of Life in Theatres," these designs illustrate the plan of stage ventilation which obviates any possibility of failure of automatic operation due to the presence of snow, ice or any other cause:

The opening, 8 by 12½ feet, of which four would be needed over the stage of ordinary size, as a roof for protection from rain (which may be of wood or sheet metal) and has vertical sides that contain four small windows for admitting abundant daylight to the rigging loft, and which can be closed by ordinary window shades for dark scenes. All necessity for wire screen is avoided (although in the case of the Jefferson Theatre wire glass is used). The vertical shaft may well be 3 to 5 feet taller than shown. The four shutters fall outward lest the pressure of the updraft tend to hold them shut, and are pulled open by force of gravity (note counterweights in cut), opening to the full area called for. The pull on the rope holds them against their seat, which, if made with a thin edge pressing loosely against fibrous material, as shown, will be more tight against cold-air drafts than a common window sash or house door. Fusible lengths are inserted in each of the four branches of the cord. Sprinklers are never placed up within the monitor containing these lengths and care is taken that the lengths are of a thin, quickly sensitive type.

SMOKE VENT. MONITOR TYPE
VERTICAL SECTION

SOME THEATRES IN THIS CITY HAVE VOLUNTARILY ADOPTED VENTILATORS OF SIMILAR PRINCIPLE.

This is considered to be an improvement over the old sliding roof method required by the present city code.

In the new code considerable stress is laid upon this feature and in the illustration showing Freeman's idea of an ideal theatre this device positively keeps smoke and fire out of the auditorium.

In the drafting of this model theatre construction code the engineers have taken great care not to recommend anything that will make the cost of installation in any sense prohibitive. It has been the purpose of its drafters to establish a minimum standard so far as it is commensurable with positive safety, eliminating as far as possible the human element in making theatres proof against fire.

One of the most conspicuous evidences of this consideration of the economical side of fire prevention in construction and equipment is in the change of court areas which give back to the owner considerable valuable stage room which existing ordinances covering theatre construction in large cities now set aside for emergency exit purposes.

One more important change is conspicuous in the suggested theatre ordinance. It has to do with the ways and means of scientifically calculating and determining just how many exits shall be provided in a theatre. The engineers who worked upon this code determined that they would set aside the hap-hazzard method of fixing the number of exits, width of stairways and substitute for it a mathematically perfect theory.

Figuring Exit Capacities.

The engineers assumed that human beings in a crowd were comparable to units of coal, wheat or water passing through a conduit. Following out this idea, the statistical archives of the Public Service Commission were consulted and then the trail led to the library of the American Institute of Architects. There the engineers discovered that a large number of actual counts made by reliable authorities (see paper entitled "A Terminal Station," presented by Messrs. J. Vipond Davis and J. Hollis Wells before the American Institute of Architects at Washington, D. C., December, 1909) showed that with freely moving crowds going in one direction, an average of thirteen (13) people per foot of width per minute will pass down a stairway. This figure was accordingly selected as the basis for estimating the combined width of extrance and exit stairs, allowing a period of two minutes in which to empty each tier.

Considering the probability of unfavorable conditions due to a panic or other causes, the width of entrance and exit stairs is figured on the assumption that two-thirds of the audience may pass out at either side of the auditorium.

The calculation under the above conditions for determining the necessary total width for entrance and exit stairways, for any given number of people such for example as 500, would have this form:

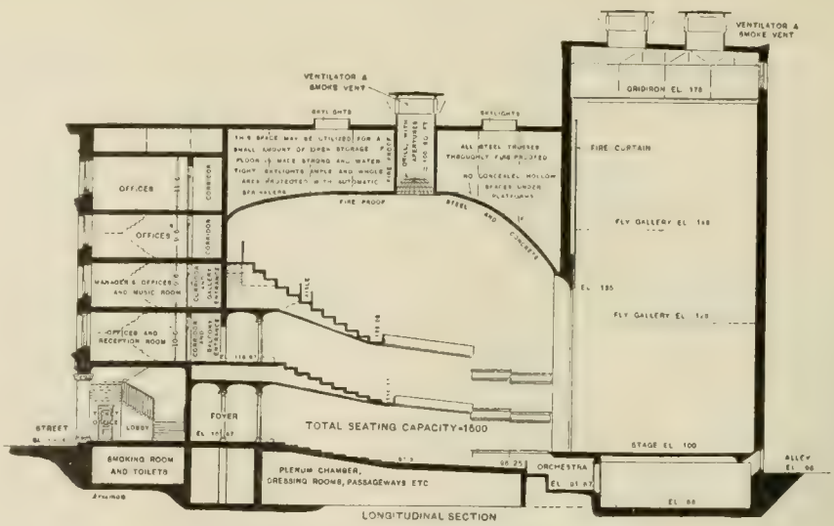
$\frac{2+3\times500}{2\times13} \times 2$, or in reduced form 500:19.5.

For further simplification, the derived number is assumed as 20 instead of the actual 19.5. This will give stairs but slightly narrower than those which would be obtained by applying the formula in detail, and makes the calculation extremely simple.



It is further specified that the width of the entrance stairs shall be at least fifty per cent. of the total stairway capacity provided by this calculation.

To encourage the audience to divide and thus offset in part at least the instinctive tendency to escape by way of the most familiar entrance, the aggregate width of exit doorways opening from each gallery shall be at least 60 per cent. wider than the exit stairs to which they lead; persons after reaching the exit stairs and balconies required in this ordinance are comparatively safe when they have passed beyond the exit doorways opening from any tier under consideration.

Calculation Scientifically Correct.

Attention is also called to the minimum requirements for both stairways and doorways which must always obtain. The code reads: "The width of entrance stairs shall be at least 50 per cent. of the combined width of the entrance and exit stairs, and the aggregate width of exit doorways opening from each gallery shall be 60 per cent. more than the stairs to which they lead."

Whether the actual figures employed in this computation are ultimately proved correct in some future panic or fire stampede, the engineers are not inclined to say at present, but of this they are positive; that the method of computation is scientifically correct and gives a much greater measure of safety to the individual in a place of public assembly than did the arbitrary and unscientific method heretofore generally employed.

PLAN FOR MODEL THEATRE AFTER FREEMAN.
SUGGESTED IN THE N. B. F. U. CODE.

May Erect Buildings Over Auditoriums.

Another concession granted builders in this model code is that fireproof buildings may be erected over auditorium, but under no circumstances may this building ascend above the stage. The section permitting this follows:

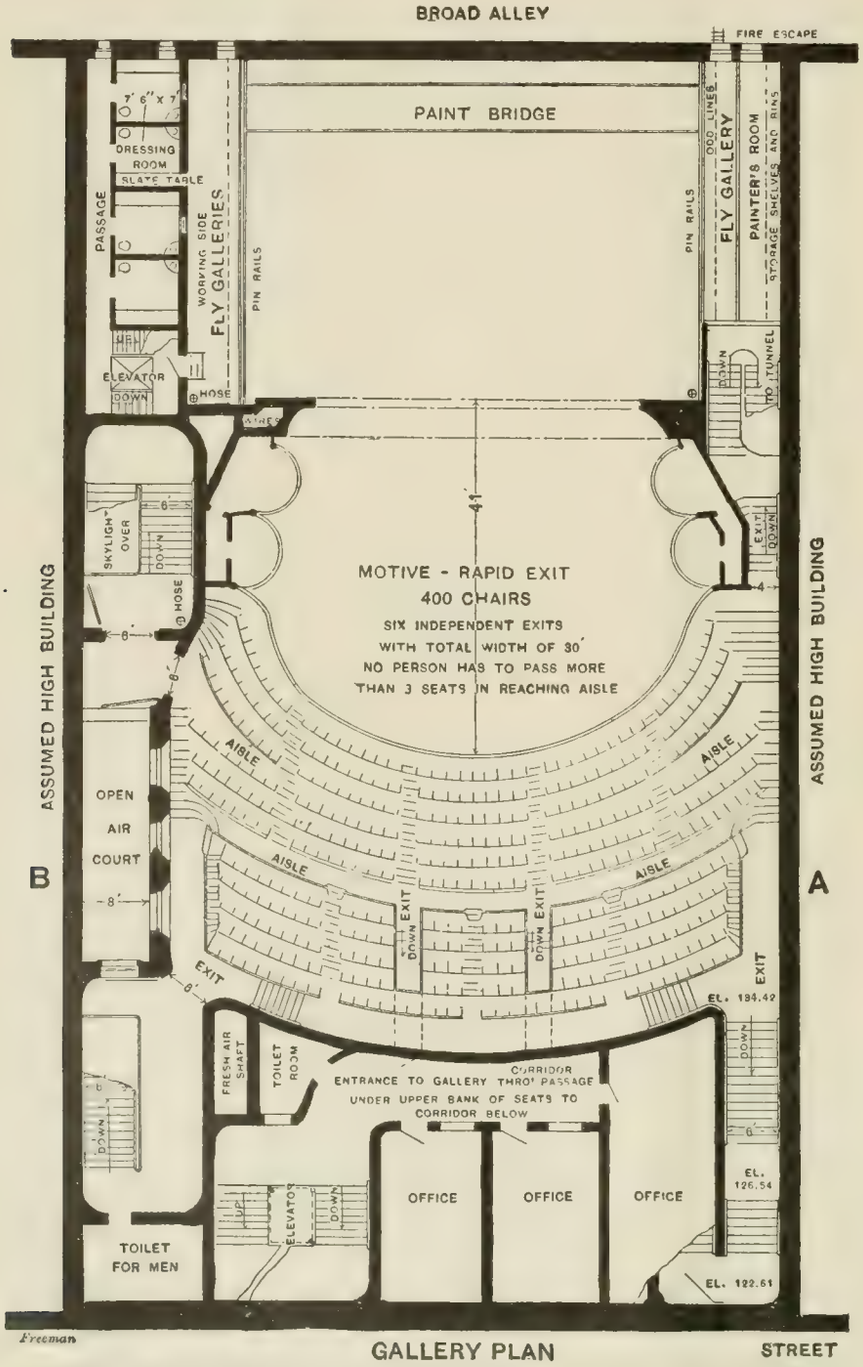
Nothing herein contained shall prevent the construction of a thoroughly fireproof building above a fireproof theatre, opera house or motion picture show, providing no part of such fireproof building shall be placed above that portion of any such building which is known as the stage section. The portion containing the theatre, opera house or motion picture show, including all passages, lobbies and other accessories connecting therewith, shall be cut off vertically from such fireproof building by unpierced fire walls of solid masonry not less than 12 inches thick and horizontally by unpierced fireproof floors of strength to safely sustain a live load of 150 lbs. per sq. ft. on every superficial foot thereof.

This is what the existing code has to say on this subject:

"No portion of any building hereafter erected or altered, used or intended to be used for theatrical purposes as in this section specified, shall be occupied or used as a hotel, boarding or lodging house, factory, workshop or manufactory, or for storage purposes, except as may be hereafter specially provided for. Said restriction relates not only to that portion of the building which contains the auditorium and the stage, but applies also to the entire structure in conjunction therewith."

Smokeproof Exits.

The Underwriters' code recommends the use of smokeproof towers for gallery exists in accordance with approved methods of taking care of emergency conditions in this part of the house. If they are not used, however, the code stipulates only that open-air stairways be employed. While the extra cost of installing smoke-proof stairways might prove burdensome, it was said, the lower rate of insurance that possibly might be obtained for a theatre thus equipped would tend to compensate for the additional initial expense.



Referring to emergency courts in this connection the model code says:

There shall be reserved for exit purposes an open court or space on the side or sides of the building as follows:

In the case of a plot with streets on front, rear and both sides, or in the case of a double corner plot where both sides of the theatre border on streets, no courts will be required. On a double corner, single corner or inside plot when one side only of the building borfders on a street, one court will be required located on the opposite side. On an inside plot where only the building front borders on the street, courts will be required on both sides.

In buildings used for motion picture shows and having no stage, the exits and courts above required may be replaced by equivalent exits and courts at the rear if consistent with the adequate distribution of the entire entrance and exit facilities.

The minimum width of open courts shall be eight feet when the total capacity is 750 or less; ten feet when the capacity is between 750 and 1,000; and when the capacity exceeds 1,000 people the width of the courts shall be increased one foot for each additional 500 people or fraction thereof in excess of 1,000.

SHOWING THE FREEMAN PLAN OF SAFE EXITS INDIFFICULT SURROUNDINGS.

The existing code says:

The width of such open court or courts shall not be less than seven feet where the seating capacity is not over one thousand people, above one thousand and not more than eighteen hundred people, eight feet in width, and above eighteen hundred people, ten feet in width.

Fireproofing the Stage.

A great deal of attention is given in the new code to fireproofing the stage. The type of ventilator recommended has already been described. The chief difference is that the new code requires a counterbalanced window opening, while the existing code calls for a sliding sash roof. But the curtain is the main point of difference between the existing and the suggested code. Following are verbatim reports of the so-called curtain section of both codes. The Underwriters' code says:

The proscenium opening shall be provided with a rigid fireproof curtain, built in conformity with the following specifications, or their equivalent in efficiency when approved by the Building Inspector.

The curtain shall have a rigid, rivet-jointed, steel framework. The front or audience side of the frame shall be covered with sheet steel of a thickness not less than No. 16 U. S. gauge. The back shall be covered with vitrified cellular asbestos boards at least one inch thick, or other material equally fire resisting. Both coverings shall be securely attached to the framework and the joints properly sealed. The curtain shall be designed to resist a wind pressure of ten pounds per square foot of surface without flexure sufficient to interfere with its closing.

The thickness of the curtain shall be not less than 3 inches where the width of the proscenium wall opening is 30 feet or less, and curtains for larger openings shall increase in thickness in proportion to the increase in width of opening they cover.

An abestos roll of a diameter not less than one-half the thickness of the curtain, shall be securely attached to the bottom of the curtain to form a smoke seal between the curtain and the stage.

The curtain shall overlap the proscenium wall opening at least 12 inches at each side of the opening and not less than 2 feet at the top.

The guide members at the sides shall be rolled steel shapes, none of which shall be less than ⅜ inch thick, and shall be of such character as to conform a continuous smoke stop from top to bottom, with a clearance of not over ⅜ inch, except that one inch shall be allowed at each edge of curtain to provide for lateral expansion. They shall be installed in such manner that in case of fire on the stage the pressure of heated gases against the curtain will act to close the guide joints tightly. Provisions shall be made to prevent the curtain from getting out of the guiding channel into which it shall project at least 2 inches. The proscenium wall shall have an offset at each side of the opening, so located and of such thickness and height as to be suitable for the attachment of the curtain guides.

The wall over the proscenium opening shall be smooth and plumb to approximately the top of the curtain when it is down, and shall then offset at least 4 inches for the rest of its height, thus leaving a bench along the line of the top of the curtain between which a smoke seal shall be formed. Such a seal may conveniently be provided by arranging for the edge of a rolled steel shape attached to the curtain to dip into a trough of sand resting on the bench.

No part of a curtain or any of the curtain guides shall be supported by, or fastened to, any combustible material.

The hoisting apparatus for the curtain shall be designed with a factor of safety of 8.

The points for curtain suspension shall always be an even number, but never less than four. Two of the suspension points shall be located at the extreme ends of the curtain, and the others may be placed at such points as best suit the design, but in no case shall the distance between any two point of support exceed 10 feet.

Half of the cables attached to these points shall lead to one set of counterweights and half to another. The curtain shall be operated by hydraulic or other mechanism approved by the Building Inspector. If hydraulic mechanism is used, the water may be taken from either the house tank or sprinkler tank supply. If from the latter, the supply pipe for curtain mechanism shall be so located in the tank that it cannot reduce the quantity of water below the amount necessary to fulfil the sprinkler requirements.

The device for controlling the curtain shall be simple in design, and capable of convenient operation from both sides of the stage and from the tie galleries.

The drop speed of the curtain shall be uniform and not less than 1 foot per second, but when the curtain is about 2½ feet from the stage it shall automatically slow down so as to settle on the stage without shock. In addition to the regular operating mechanism, there shall be an emergency device which will cut off the power and allow the curtain to drop by gravity. This device shall be so arranged that it can be easily operated by hand from each side of the stage, under the stage, and in the tie galleries. The device shall also be so designed that its operation will be controlled by fusible links located at each of the above named points.

The audience side of the curtain may be decorated with a paint in which no oil is used. No combustible material shall be applied or attached to the curtain.

Drawings for every such curtain shall be submitted to the Building Inspector, and be approved by him before it is erected.

This is how the existing code reads:

The proscenium opening shall be provided with a fireproof metal curtain, or a curtain of asbestos, or other fireproof material approved by the Department of Buildings, sliding at each end within iron grooves, securely fastened to the brick wall, and extending into such grooves, to a depth of not less than six inches on each side of the opening. Said fireproof curtain shall be raised at the commencement of each performance and lowered at the close of said performance, and be operated by approved machinery for that purpose. The proscenium curtains shall be placed at least three feet distant from the footlights at the nearest point.

No doorway or opening through the proscenium wall, from the auditorium, shall be lowered above the level of the first floor and such first floor openings shall have fireproof doors on each face of the wall, and the doors shall be hung so as to be opened from either side at all times. There shall be provided over the stage metal skylights of an area or combined area of at least one-eighth the area of said stage, fitted up with SLIDING SASH and glazed with double-thick sheet glass not exceeding one-twelfth of an inch thick, and each pane thereof measuring not less than three hundred square inches, and the whole of which skylight shal be so constructed as to open instantly on the cutting or burning of a hempen cord, which shall be arranged to hold said skylights closed, or some other equally simple approved device for opening them may be provided. Immediately underneath the glass of said skylights there shall be wire netting, but wire glass shall not be used in lieu of this requirement.

The rigid curtain idea approved by the new code differs considerably from the generally accepted idea of the old steel fire-proof curtain. Where the former was merely a connected series of heavy steel plates, the modern rigid curtain is not only fireproof, but smoke-proof and is not a patented article. It consists, as in other curtains of this kind, of a framework of structural steel members, rigidly riveted together and covered on the auditorium side with sheet steel and on the stage side with sheets of cellular asbestos one inch thick forming an air space of two to three inches between the two coverings. It is raised and lowered exactly as a heavy fire door is made to slide up and down and may be operated either automatically by means of a fusible link or by a rope connected to the prompter's box or from the fly gallery.

In the illustration showing the Freeman model theatre ventilator the position of this fire curtain is shown, as well as the position of the courts where the theatre is located on an inside lot with tall buildings on either side. The short court is shown permitting the extension of the stage to the entire width of the lot.

More Sprinklers Recommended.

A slight difference in wording of the sprinkler sections of the two codes makes it entirely possible that more sprinklers will have to be put in theatres of the future. The model code says:

A standard wet-pipe system of approved automatic sprinklers shall be installed throughout the theatre, except in the auditorium, foyers and lobbies. Sprinklers will not be permitted over dynamos and switchboards or above the fusible links immediately under the automatic ventilators over stage.

This is how the existing code treats this part of the ordinance:

A separate and distinct system of automatic sprinklers, with fusible plugs approved by the Department of Buildings supplied with water from a tank located on the roof over the stage and not connected in any manner with the standpipes shall be placed on each side of the proscenium opening and on the ceiling of the roof over the stage at such intervals as will protect every square foot of stage surface when said sprinklers are in operation. Automatic sprinklers shall also be placed whenever practicable in the dressing rooms, under the stage and in the carpenter shop, paint rooms, store rooms and property rooms.

The Importance of this Code.

The importance of this code lies in the fact that some of the experts who have, in the past worked on the revision of the existing code, have collaborated on this one which, having the approval of the insurance interests of the country, makes its recommendations of sufficient importance to cause future revisors to give at least some consideration to the suggestions it contains. The model code is available to those interested and copies will be provided to those of our readers who are interested.

BUILDING REGULATION.

Steel Construction and the Elevator Removed Old Limitations.

It is hoped that the committee appointed this week to investigate and report on the advisability of limiting the height or bulk of buildings will not fail to have real estate represented on its advisory subcommittee by practical real estate men. The discernment which characterizes Mayor Gaynor did not fail him when he chose the members of this important committee. The Borough Presidents of Manhattan, The Bronx and Brooklyn, Messrs. McAneny, Miller and Steers, are particularly well situated and informed to weigh the economic and legal questions interwoven with the subject at issue.

Old-Time Stair Limitation.

In the past, New York City has had either natural or economic limitations upon building height. Before the elevator era the unwillingness of the public to climb more than five or six flights of stairs constituted a limitation on the height of buildings and caused a steady outspreading and fairly even distribution of population. It was a limitation, furthermore, which compelled a more regular distribution of real estate values and consequently of rents and taxes, as well as of business opportunities, than obtains now.

The Masonry Limit.

Before the era of steel construction there was a limit to the height which a building might rise, owing to the impossibility of making masonry walls heavy enough to support a taller structure. Beyond this it was unprofitable to go.

For twenty years or more we have had no limit, either natural, mechanical or economic, except upon tenement house construction. With the facilities afforded by the steel frame, thinly veneered with masonry, buildings have been raised to a height of seven hundred feet or more. Perpendicular expansion, succeeding horizontal spreading, has kept the business of Manhattan Island within its former narrow limits. The skyscrapers have created comparatively few new business sections, but they have intensified old ones. They have multiplied land values and rents in the old spots.

After the committee has satisfied itself as to the constitutionality of the proposed limitation, the most important decision will turn upon the nature and method. Under some of the proposed architectural schemes the city may still have beautiful towers—but less bulkier buildings. The fire and building authorities seem to favor, on the whole, an arbitrary horizontal deadline. Chief Kenlon says he will promise to get everybody safely out of an eight-story building in case of fire, but he fears dreadful consequences from flames in taller buildings. Assistant Superintendent of Buildings Ludwig affirms that fireproof skyscrapers are merely stoves in which the stairways and elevator shafts are the flues and the non-fireproof contents the fuel. The stove itself may not burn, but the fuel will.

Transit Improvement on Staten Island.

The Public Service Commission for the First District has ordered the Richmond Light and Railroad Company to construct and operate such extra tracks as may be necessary to provide a complete double track of its entire Castleton avenue or Brighton Heights route between St. George, New Brighton and Broadway, West New Brighton. Work must begin by June 1 and the double track completed and ready for operation by November 1, 1913.

A THEORY OF VALUE.

Unearned Increment Not Confined to Land—It Is Created by the Community, but so Is All Value.

THE unearned increment tax is advocated not on the ground of municipal protection afforded and benefits derived, but on the ground that the community produced such increase in value, and not the individual, and that the community should receive a percentage of, if not all of, such increase.

There is no inherent value in anything. In the first and last analysis, value is created solely by the desire of possession; and the community alone creates the value of all things, whether lands, buildings, crops, hotels, theatres, stores, factories. The greater the congestion of population, the greater the demand and the greater the value.

If, therefore, the community is entitled to any percentage of the increased value of realty, it is equally entitled to 100 per cent.; and if so entitled, it is equally entitled to any or all the increased value of all things. The logical outcome of this is state ownership and operation of all things, the people to be employed by the state.

Further, the community does not create land values as land. It creates the value of the products of the land, whether they be stomach crops, housing crops, or clothing crops. There is no difference between a crop of wheat, oats, etc., and a crop of bricks and mortar; both are essential to the wants of man.

Why is it that the unearned increment tax advocate confines his theories to realty? If he advocated its application to all human endeavor, its fallacy would be exposed.

Every New York City wage and salary earner receives more than he would outside New York, due to congestion of population; why not tax these increased earnings as unearned increment?

The congestion of population increases the profits of the purveyors of food, clothing, luxuries, amusements and the good will of their business; why not tax this unearned increment?

Why should not the farmer be taxed on the unearned increment due to the increased demand for food stuffs in consequence of the more rapid growth of the urban than of the rural population?

If the farmers of the United States have a stock of wheat or other produce, and by reason of the failure of like crops elsewhere or by reason of war in Europe prices go up, why should the farmer be entitled to such increase in price? He did nothing to create or produce it; why should not such increased value, being unearned increment, be confiscated to the community?

A railroad is built in a farming country where none previously existed, thereby increasing the value of the farmers' crops for all time; why should not such increase in price be annually confiscated to the community, as the farmer did not produce such increase in price? Growing food crops on land are not different from growing hotel, dwelling, theatre, office or factory building crops on land.

Every person in every country, from the monarch or president down to the tramp, derives profits due to individual efforts and also profits due to community efforts; the man does not live that can differentiate between the active and passive activities and the resulting profits.

To tax "unearned increment" when earned may be folly, but to tax it before it is earned is a crime, and yet "unearned increment taxers" would tax realty's unearned increment before it is earned, the process being as follows: The assessor guesses (because that is all he does) the value of certain real estate to be say $1,000,000. The next year he guesses it to be $1,050,000, and so on. The owner pays the tax rate on a guessed up valuation, which is bad enough, but he is now asked to pay a tax also on the guessed difference in value between the one year and another.

STEWART BROWNE.

THE SUBWAY CONTRACTS.

Eight Different Instruments, Providing for an Expenditure of $300,000,000.

It is hoped that "next week" will really see the consummation of the negotiations for the building and operation of the Dual System of rapid transit which will stimulate the real estate market and give to New York City a subway and elevated system having 629 miles of single track and costing, for new work and new equipment, upwards of $300,000,000. The Public Service Commission for the First District, having adopted the contracts with the operating companies on March 4, sent them to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which gave a public hearing upon them on Tuesday of this week. Final action was then postponed until next Tuesday.

The only contract not included was the certificate for the third-tracking of the elevated railroads in Manhattan and The Bronx. This certificate originally was made out to the Manhattan Railway Company, owner of the elevated roads, which refused to accept it. The commission thereupon made out a new certificate to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, as lessee of the roads. A public hearing on this certificate will be held to-day, March 15, and after this hearing it is expected the certificate will be approved by the commission and forwarded to the Board of Estimate.

Excluding the assignments of Contracts Nos. 1 and 2, covering the existing subway, for which the new contracts will be substituted, there are eight different instruments involved in the new agreement. These are as follows:

What the Contracts Are For.

Operating contract with Interborough Rapid Transit Company, covering the existing subway, the proposed extensions thereof, and the equipment and operation of the enlarged system.

Operating contract with the New York Municipal Railway Corporation (Brooklyn Rapid Transit), conveying to new subway system to be operated by that company and its existing elevated lines, to be operated in conjunction therewith and the reconstruction of those lines, and the equipment and operation of all.

Certificate to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for extensions of the elevated railroads in Manhattan and The Bronx, the equipment and operation thereof.

Certificate to the New York Municipal Railway Corporation (Brooklyn Rapid Transit), for various extensions of the elevated railroads in Brooklyn and Queens, the equipment and operation thereof.

Certificate to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, for the construction and operation of additional tracks on the Second, Third and Ninth avenue elevated railroads.

Certificate to the New York Municipal Railway Corporation (Brooklyn Rapid Transit), for the construction and operation of additional tracks on the Brooklyn elevated railroads.

Agreement between the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation (Brooklyn Rapid Transit), conveying to the latter trackage rights over the Queens rapid transit lines.

Agreement with the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, giving that company, as grantee under the elevated certificates, trackage rights over the Jerome avenue, White Plains road and Steinway Tunnel extensions of the subway system.

When all these contracts are signed, the Public Service Commission will push the work of letting construction contracts on such portions of the new system as have not been already awarded. The most important of these are the proposed extension of the existing subway from Times Square down Seventh avenue to Park place and under the East River to Brooklyn, and the Broadway-59th street subway, running from the Queensboro Bridge to Seventh avenue and down Seventh avenue and Broadway to lower Manhattan and a tunnel under the East River to Brooklyn. There are also the tunnel under the East River at 14th street and its extension through the Eastern District of Brooklyn, and the cut in 38th street, Brooklyn, and the new tracks in Flatbush avenue necessary to connect the South Brooklyn lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system with the Fourth avenue subway and Centre street loop subway, now about completed.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment has approved the construction contracts awarded by the commission for the building of the main portions of the new rapid transit lines in Queens. These are the elevated roads projected from the Queensboro Bridge to Astoria and Corona, over which both the Interborough and Brooklyn companies will operate trains. The contractor for the Astoria line is Cooper & Evans, and the contractor for the Corona line is the E. E. Smith Contracting Company.

Tenement Legislation.

Prominent speakers urged tenement house reform in this city and recommended legislation to that effect, at a meeting conducted last Wednesday evening at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church under the auspices of the Tenement Economics Society of New York. The proposed legislation seeks to encourage more building of open-stair tenements.

Henry Atterbury Smith, the architect who designed the Vanderbilt Model Tenements on East 77th street, pointed out, with the aid of stereopticon views, the advantages derived from this kind of construction. All available floor space is utilized, resulting in more light, more air, the prevention of contagion and greater facilities for escape in case of fire.

Dr. William Shannon endorsed the proposed legislation. The Academy of Medicine, he said, was aiding in the work to change the present law.

Prof. Charles F. Chamber, who was president of the Board of Health from 1873 to 1884, when it was within the jurisdiction of the health authorities to approve or disapprove any tenement built in the city, declared that he had watched with great interest the gradual improvement in tenement house construction, to be finally perfected in the Vanderbilt Model Tenements.

—The stock transfer tax bill having been recalled from the Legislature by Governor Sulzer, there remains some hope that the rights of property in New York City will yet be reasonably respected by the State Legislature. The times have been hard enough for stock brokers and consequently for real estate owners in the financial district without having the State drive any more tenants out of business.

PARK AVENUE'S BREAK.

To Be Mended By a Change of Grade—Two Plans Presented.

The city authorities have long had a plan for improving the grades at the intersection of 34th street and Park avenue. It involves changing the grade of Fourth avenue, from East 32d street to East 34th street; of Park avenue, from East 34th street to East 35th street; of East 33d street, from Fourth avenue to a point 256 feet easterly therefrom, and of East 34th street, from Madison avenue to a point 238 feet east of Park avenue, Borough of Manhattan.

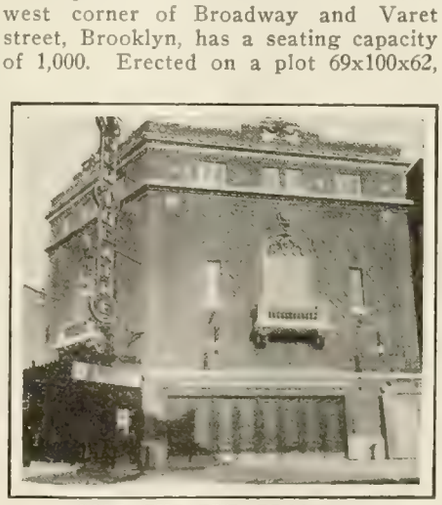
The break in the roadway of Park avenue between 32d and 34th streets, caused by the opening of the old Harlem River tunnel now used by the surface cars, leaves only one narrow ramp for the passage of vehicles on the westerly side, and compels all passengers transferring from the crosstown car line to the lines north and south to climb a series of steep steps in order to make their connection. The line at 33d street east and west is broken abruptly.

A Great Thoroughfare of the Future.

The improvement of Park avenue north of the Grand Central Station, and the connection of the north and south section of the avenue by means of the 42d street viaduct soon to be built by the city, will make of Park avenue, with its natural extension southward through Fourth avenue, one of the principal north and south thoroughfares of the city. With its broad and boulevard-like approach to the Grand Central Station from the north, and its extension around the new station and across the viaduct to the south, it will offer, says Chief Engineer Nelson P. Lewis, immediate relief for the rapidly increasing congestion of Fifth avenue, and will serve as a noble approach to the station from either direction. The one break in its physical continuity continues to be that at the 34th street crossing.

The plan presented for the consideration of the Local Board, although prepared by the borough engineers, was based almost wholly upon a scheme advocated by the Fourth Avenue Association, and originally devised and elaborated by Mr. Lloyd Collis, its Consulting Engineer. The Fourth Avenue Association is a body of property owners, chiefly recruited from those located and doing business on Park or Fourth avenue, south of 34th street. Their plan contemplated the lowering of the surface of 34th street 6.22 feet at its intersection with Park avenue, with consequent reductions of grade on 34th street east of Park avenue for a distance of 238 feet from 4.54 per cent. to 1.86 per cent.; and on the block to the west, between Madison and Park avenues, from 2.13 to 0.79 per cent. The grades on Park avenue were also to be readjusted.

The re-arrangement proposed will also make it possible to carry 33d street across Fourth avenue, where it is now interrupted, thus securing a considerable betterment of crosstown traffic conditions; the incidental relief of 34th street, and the very material improvement of surrounding property. Heavy damages will doubtless be claimed by property owners on both Park avenue and 34th street; but the value of the improvement as secured, it is believed, will much more than outweigh these adverse considerations.



The Wetmore Plan.

The substitute plan, which is referred to commonly as the Wetmore Plan, is supported by certain property owners on Park avenue north of 34th street, and by others in 34th street—some as far west as Sixth avenue. Mr. Wetmore represents chiefly the Vanderbilt Hotel, which, if the regrading plan is adopted, will lose the use of a considerable amount of vault space held under temporary permits from the City, and which would be damaged in certain other respects. Mr. Wetmore suggests that the present grade of 34th street be not disturbed, and that the tunnel portal also remain as it is. As a relief for the north and south traffic, he proposes the building of a vehicular ramp at the easterly side of the ascent between 32d street and 34th streets, corresponding to the present ramp on the westerly side, though necessarily of narrower width. In order to leave the open cut approach to the tunnel in its present condition, and to gain the space to the east necessary for the proposed new ramp, he would reduce the sidewalk width to ten feet for the entire distance between 34th and 32d streets.

The cost of the general solution he advocates would be, according to his own estimates, about $138,000, while there would be practically no cost for damages. The principal opponents of this scheme did not at first arrange for or believe in the eventual necessity for a crosstown 34th street subway. It would be physically impossible to run a standard type tube between the roof line of the pres-Interborough and the tracks of the Fourth avenue-Madison avenue surface line, carried at their present levels. Mr. Wetmore has, however, more recently suggested that room for a subway structure might be provided through raising the grade of 34th street an additional ten (10) inches above the present grade. The borough engineers believe that this would produce an impossible surface traffic condition and have given this solution, therefore, no support. They have come to the conclusion that the so-called Collis Plan, notwithstanding the somewhat greater scale of cost that it would involve, offers the best solution. A hearing will be held by the Board of Estimate on March 27.

Theatre Claimed to Be Fireproof.

The Gold Theatre, which has recently been opened for vaudeville on the northwest corner of Broadway and Varet street, Brooklyn, has a seating capacity of 1,000. Erected on a plot 69x100x62, the building has two balconies and an interior finished in a modern French Renaissance style of architecture, richly decorated. The predominating colors are green and gold. Statuary groups top out the boxes and proscenium opening.

GOLD THEATRE, BROOKLYN.
Shampan & Shampan, Architects.

A special equipment of electric lighting has been installed with concealed lamps at ornamental decorations to offset various shadows and details of the statuary work. The draperies, curtains and seats have been carefully designed to conform to style and color of the interior finish. A mural painting entitled, "The Oriental Dancer," surmounts the sounding board.

The facade of the building is designed in a Florentine style of architecture with constituting materials of buff colored tapestry brick laid up in a Flemish bond with raked joints and matt glazed polychrome terra cotta and granite trimmings. The structure has been erected under the most rigid regulations of the Fire and Building Departments, and is reputed to be an absolutely fireproof building, not containing a particle of wood. The Gold Theatre was designed and erected under the supervision of Shampan & Shampan, architects, 772 Broadway, Brooklyn.

THE NUMBER OF SKYSCRAPERS.

Not So Many Proportionately as Generally Supposed—Statistics from Supt. Miller.

It depends upon what one denominates a skyscraper whether such buildings are numerous or not, but in all New York there are no more than 117 buildings over sixteen stories in height. If we are to include in this classification only those which are higher than it was possible to go with the old forms of masonry construction, before the era of steel-frame construction, then the list is not so very long.

After you rise above the thirteenth story you will find but forty-four fourteen-story buildings, only twenty-seven fifteen-story buildings and only twenty twelve-story ones, while there are no less than 389 in the thirteen story class.

No. of Stories.	No. of Buildings.	No. of Stories.	No. of Buildings.
12	191	26	4
13	389	27	2
14	44	31	1
15	27	32	1
16	28	33	3
17	31	38	1
18	13	41	1
19	13	45	1
20	12	55	1
21	15
22	11	Total	1,156

This list includes all buildings irrespective of occupancy and those rated as semi-fireproof.

Basements also are included in this list where the floor of the first story is above grade and there is an entrance into the basement from the street. And roof structures or pent houses when actually occupied for janitors' dwellings or some purpose other than for housing elevator machinery, stair exits and the like are considered as an additional story by the building department.

If all the buildings in the foregoing list were piled one upon the other the tower thus constructed would be nearly 35 miles high, or equal to more than 180 Eiffel towers.

From this table it appears that the average height of the skyscrapers in Manhattan (assuming anything ten stories or more in height as a skyscraper) is thirteen stories. Superintendent Miller estimates the total number of buildings in Manhattan is 120,000.

—With the operating contracts for the Dual Subway system signed, as they will be next week, more construction contracts for the Broadway-Lexington avenue line will immediately be let. Then will follow in due course contracts for the construction of the various other lines composing the Dual system. Three hundred and forty-five million dollars will be spent for construction and equipment. Good times are ahead for mechanics and laborers, and let us hope the real estate market will soon come to life again.

—And still it is "next week" when the subway contracts will be signed.

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Company.

RENTAL PROPERTY ACCOUNTS.

How to Keep Income and Maintenance Accounts So as to Afford Useful Data.

By R. Kinniburgh,
Auditor American Real Estate Company.

THE investor in income producing real property who desires to obtain the fullest return from his investment will endeavor not only to fill all rentable space in his buildings with the best class of tenants and at the highest rents obtainable, but must also watch expenses closely. Only by analysis of expense and frequent comparison can he hope to secure the best results, and it is therefore important that his accounts should be so arranged as to readily afford useful data.

It is proposed to outline herein a system of accounts suitable for the business of an owner and operator of office and loft buildings, stores and apartment houses and other rentable property. Whether he be owner on a large scale or on a small one, he must provide accounts that will record as to each property:

(1) The book value.

(2) The amount of mortgage, if any.

(3) Gross income from rents.

(4) Operating expenses.

(5) Rents accrued and rents received.

(6) Expenses incurred and expenses paid.

Before going into detail it might be well to make a few general suggestions. All available information concerning the properties should be in the possession of the accountant, and all leases, insurance policies and other contracts be filed with him. He should have in handy form such information regarding each property, as:

Location, street number, block and lot as shown on city map.

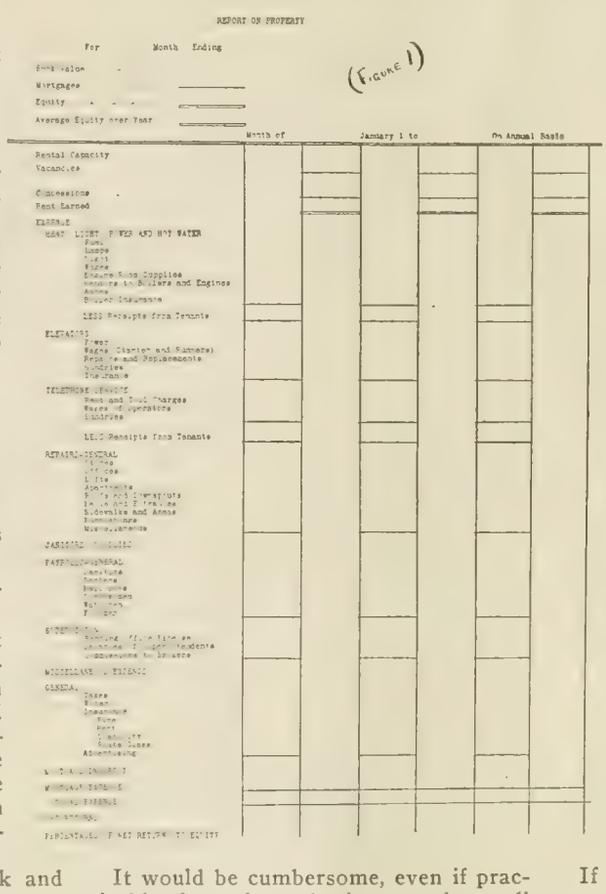
Area and dimensions of land.

Full description of the building; cost and kind of construction, cubic feet capacity, height and number of stories, rentable area by floors, number of stores, lofts, offices or apartments, number and make of elevators, if any, etc.

Assessed value of land and of building.

Amounts and rates of each class of insurance.

Owner's equity.



Rentable value of vacant space.

The above items are statistical and do not enter into the actual books of accounts.

Laying Out the Accounts.

If we now introduce a form (Fig. 1), which is to be filled out each month for the guidance of the owner or manager, it will serve as a basis for laying out the accounts. The system should be such as will give the information called for by the form readily and accurately immediately after the close of the books for the month.

Note that the form contains six columns for figures (not ruled for dollars and cents because intended to be filled out on the typewriter). The two columns on the left hand are for the results of the month just ended; the two middle columns for results from the beginning of the fiscal period to the end of the month just closed, and the remaining two columns to provide an estimate for the operations of the current fiscal year based partly on the experience to date and partly on conditions expected during the remaining months of the year.

It would be cumbersome, even if practicable, for a large business to keep all its accounts in one book. The General Ledger should, therefore, contain for the most part controlling accounts and the details of these accounts be recorded in subsidiary books.

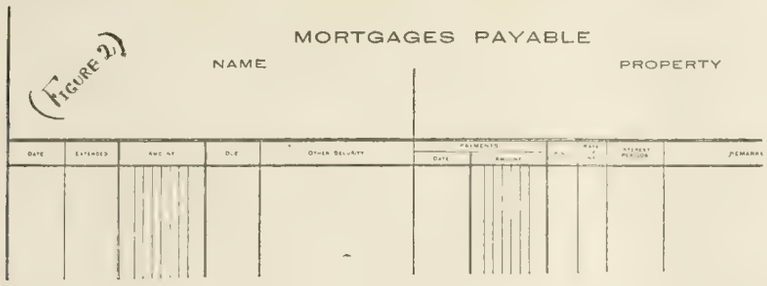
The Accounts Payable Register.

By means of an Accounts Payable Register, bills for expenses are brought into the accounts as soon as received and without reference to the time of their payment. This book may be kept open for a few days after the end of the month if desired, to accommodate bills that are late in arriving. As much as possible all bills should be included in the operations of the month to which they belong. The Accounts Payable Register is also used for classifying expenses under general heads.

Some expenses foreseen, but not due, are brought into the accounts through the General Journal, and the distribution of certain expenses over the fiscal year, so that no month will be charged with more than its pro rata share of the same, is also made through this book.

The Cash Book should contain a column on the debit side for Rents Receivable and on the credit side one column for Accounts Payable, and another for Discounts, in which any discount deducted from a bill upon its payment is noted, while at the same time the gross amount of the bill is entered in the "Accounts Payable" column.

An Accounts Payable account is provided in the General Ledger, to the credit of which each month's total of bills is posted from the Register and which is debited with the total of the Accounts Payable column in the Cash Book. When these postings have been made, the balance of the account will equal the total of the unpaid bills, which would not be the case if the account were debited with net instead of gross payments. A subsidiary Accounts Payable Ledger containing individual accounts and controlled by the General Ledger account will be found useful in many respects.



The books so far mentioned are common to all kinds of business, and we will now pass to the books and accounts required in the particular business we are dealing with.

Books with Special Forms.

Whatever consideration may be given for a piece of rental property, whether cash, mortgage or value in other property, is to be charged to the rental property account of that property, as also any expenses in connection with the purchase, such as lawyers' fees, surveys, title insurance, etc. To this account should also be charged betterments and assessments. The balance of the account at any time is called the "book value" of the property and would appear as an item in any statement of the owner's assets.

If there be only a few individual rental properties owned, a separate account for each may be opened in the General Ledger. If there are sufficient units to warrant it, the individual accounts should be kept in a subsidiary ledger; one ruled in the usual way will suffice. This ledger will be controlled by a "Rental Property" account in the General Ledger; that is to say, all amounts entering into the book values of the properties are posted both into the Control account in the General Ledger and into the individual accounts in the subsidiary ledger, so that at any time the combined balances of the individual accounts will equal the balance of the Control account.

The amounts of all mortgages on the properties are credited to a "Mortgage Payable" account in the General Ledger, and the mortgages are recorded individually in the "Mortgage Register" (Fig. 2). Payments reducing the principal of mortgages are debited to the account; payments on account of interest are charged to operating expense. The difference between the balances of the "Rental Property" and "Mortgage Payable" accounts is the book equity of the owner in his properties, and it is on this amount that he looks for a return in net rental income.

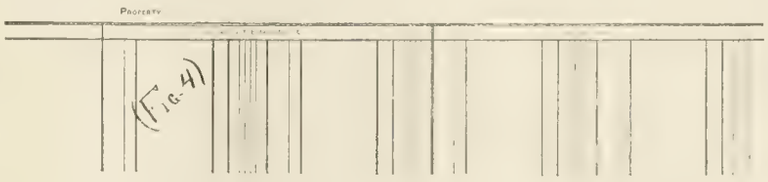
Rents are usually payable monthly in advance, but no matter how payable the rent from occupied space should be accrued monthly, an account being kept in the "Rent Register" (Fig. 3) with each tenant. It will be noted that the register is so arranged that it will accommodate several accounts to a page.

Public Service Items.

It is not unusual for a landlord to contract with the lighting company for all electric current to be used in the building, buying it wholesale and selling it to his tenants retail. Similar arrangements are frequently made with the telephone company for telephone service, and loft tenants as a rule are responsible under their leases for water consumed in their premises. All such charges and any others to be borne by tenants are charged in the column provided in the Rent Register.

Should any free rent be allowed, the amount of the same is entered in the "Concession" column and also noted in the month to which it applies to ensure its not being overlooked and accrued against the tenant in error.

Deposits made by tenants to secure rent or to guarantee the return of keys are not entered as rents but are carried as liabilities in a Rent Security or Key Deposit account until returned, forfeited or applied on rent due.



Let us suppose the Rent Register to be completed for the month of February; that is, all February rents charged to tenants in the "Rent" column, and all January charges for light, telephone, etc. (which, of course, were not ascertained until after the January account had been closed), entered in the "Charges" column, and the totals of both columns for each building owned obtained. The next step is to prepare a journal entry in which the rents and charges are recapitulated by properties. The grand total of this entry is debited to "Rents Receivable" account; the rents are credited to Income from Rental Properties account, and credit is given to Maintenance account for the charges.

The Monthly Balance.

It is most important that all receipts of rents and charges should be noted at once in the Rent Register in the column provided so that the condition of each tenant's account may be seen at a glance. At the end of each month the Cash Book is closed and the total of "Rents Receivable" column is posted in the General Ledger to the credit of Rents Receivable account.

This account has now been debited with rents and charges accrued and credited with rents and charges collected. The balance of the account must, therefore, equal the unpaid rents and charges as shown in the Rent Register, which can be quickly verified by drawing off a list of such items. Such verification should be made every month after the close of the books. If everyone concerned has done his part the list should be a very short one.

Separate income and expense accounts of each property are kept in a subsidiary ledger conveniently called the "Income and Maintenance Ledger," which is controlled as to income by the "Income from Rental Property" account and as to expense by the "Maintenance" account in the General Ledger. This book should be in fact a double ledger, providing on each page two sets of debit and credit columns (Fig. 4).

The Right to Sublet.

In many leases for the renting of property, there is a clause, which reads somewhat as follows: "The lessee is not permitted to sublet the premises, without the written consent of the landlord." Please inform me whether this clause is absolutely binding upon the lessee, even if he intends to sublet to a party who is absolutely respectable and reliable, and whose occupancy is exactly of the same kind and character as the lessee's, and is no more hazardous or injurious to the property; the lessee is to continue to pay the rent to the landlord or to hold himself responsible for the payment of the rent to the expiration of the lease. Can the landlord withhold his consent? And if he does withhold it, is there any redress for the lessee? Can the lessee compel the landlord to give his consent, if he (the landlord) cannot give a valid reason for withholding it? If not, is the lessee compelled to continue to pay the rent till the expiration of the lease (whether he continues to occupy the premises or not), or if the landlord persists in withholding consent, is the lessee obliged to relinquish the lease (the landlord being willing to have him do so) even if the lessee does not want to relinquish it?

Answer.—The clause is binding upon the lessee, although under the above circumstances there does not appear to be any good reason why the landlord should object to the subletting of the property. Subleasing without the consent of the landlord when such permission is required is frequently done, but ordinarily the landlord does not interfere or attempt to oust the tenants as long as his income remains secure and his property uninjured. He has, however, the right to bring an action for damages (if he can prove damage) for the breach of the covenant prohibiting subletting, against the lessee; or he can enter upon the property and expel the lessee or those holding under the lessee.

Since a lease is a contractual relation, the landlord is bound to perform only that which is stipulated in the contract. Since he is not required to give consent under the terms of the lease, he does not have to give any reasons for the withholding of such consent. He cannot be compelled to do anything except what he covenants to perform.

Since the original lease is still in force, the lessee would continue to be liable for the rent if he violated any clause in the lease. Neither of the parties can safely relinquish the lease without the permission of the other, and each would be liable to the other for any breach of covenant therein contained. The lease can be made void by the mutual agreement of the parties, just as any other contract can be invalidated.

In a letter to Borough President Miller, Mr. N. Serracino suggests that the proposed Bronx Civic Center be established on the north side of 180th street, near the Bronx Park subway station. That location, he points out, is virtually the geographical center of the borough and is readily accessible from all quarters of the Bronx or Manhattan, while property there is inexpensive.

The campaign conducted by Borough President McAneny to relieve congestion in the crowded districts by removing encroachments in front of the building lines has brought up a question which is to be settled by the courts. The test case to be litigated will determine whether the landlord or the lessee shall sustain the losses, resulting from the removal of floor space and shortening of show windows. The Peckham Estate, whose property at Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street has been affected by the removal of several feet, appears as plaintiff in the action commenced recently in the Supreme Court.

When the present laws relating to leaseholders in the State of New York were adopted, the Legislature thought it wise to discourage leases running for more than the life of one generation. Double taxation was, therefore, resorted to in the case of leases extending beyond twenty-one years. Thus, the rents are taxed as personalty and the land and its improvements as real estate. Furthermore, the right of the holder of a mortgage on a leasehold to official notification of dispossess proceedings brought by a freeholder against his lessee is not recognized by law. These obstacles to investing in long-term leases will be removed, if the Stilwell bills introduced into the Legislature on the initiation of the Allied Real Estate Interests are enacted.

The Cause of the Real Estate Depression, and the Remedy.

No one who watches closely the condition of public opinion among New York taxpayers can fail to be impressed by the gathering alteration in their attitude toward their own troubles. Until recently they did not exhibit any very lively and omnipresent interest in the effect which the tax policy of the city government was having upon the condition of the real estate market. Of course they grumbled at the increase of taxes, and their discontent was sufficiently obvious and expressive to play a certain part in the last municipal campaign. But still they were not thoroughly in earnest.

They did not take the prevailing depression very seriously. They did not attribute it chiefly to causes connected with the policy of their city government. They had been familiar with periods of depression in the past, and they remembered that after some years of agitation a sudden revival of prosperity supervened and their grievances were swallowed up in the beneficial effects of enlarged business activity and a return of confidence. They have anticipated that the present prevailing period of depression would vanish in the same way and that nothing which they could do as citizens and voters would contribute much either to the acceleration of the return of prosperity or to its retardation.

Recently, however, they have begun to evince a more serious and responsible interest in the situation. General business prosperity has in a large measure returned without benefiting real estate in New York City. The number of transfers recorded are smaller than they were during the past two dull years. The amount of building is on the decrease. Very little money is being invested in real estate. Speculation is at a standstill. The general condition is worse than ever, while at the same time there can be no doubt as to the cause of the depression. Real estate is almost unsalable, except in a few favored locations or at a sacrifice, not because the city is not increasing in population and business, not because its general prospects and situations are not as flattering as they ever have been in the past, but largely because of the effects of past increases in taxation and the threat of future increases

The growing public understanding of the real cause of the existing depression has increased the prevailing sense of responsibility among property owners as to the adoption of an active, protesting and remedial policy. They are beginning to realize that conditions will not substantially improve until something is done to make them improve—until something is done, that is, to remove the threat which is now hanging over the future of real estate values in New York City. This action must be taken by the municipal authorities and it must assume either one or both of two forms.

Either new sources of revenue must be discovered and tapped that will provide for the increase in the city budget, or else a policy of the most rigid economy must be adopted. In truth a combination of these two methods of meeting the difficulty will be necessary, and it will not be taken without the exercise of active pressure on the municipal authorities by the property owners of New York. The time has come when it is necessary for the property owners to exercise their latent political power. Even in the matter of votes a large proportion of the taxpayers of the city would be in a position to exercise a great deal of pressure, and their indirect influence, if properly mobilized and executed should be still more powerful.

In this connection, however, property owners should remember one important fact. In New York municipal elections take place only once every four years and the possible political influence they possess cannot be exercised oftener than that. An election takes place next fall and that election will provide the taxpayer with the only opportunity to make himself felt that he will enjoy for a long time. It promises to be a very interesting election, during which questions of municipal policy will receive an unusually fine and enlightening discussion. It will be the fault of the property owners of New York and their organizations in case if this discussion does not emphasize the real needs of the existing situation and the real grievance of taxpayers. They should take care that the discussion turns chiefly upon methods of economic administration and the problems of taxation. Every candidate of all the parties should be pledged, if possible, to a definite program of economy and of tax reform, and preparations looking in the direction of effecting these results should not be left until after the summer vacation, but should be begun during the spring and pushed just as far as the general situation will permit.

Public Opinion and Building Restriction.

It looks very much as if public opinion will finally be prepared to sustain a modification of the Building Code looking toward a regulation of the height of buildings. The matter has been frequently agitated in the past, but nothing could be accomplished because of the prevailing opinion that any vigorous regulation would hurt the business development of New York. The idea has been that if a property owner were free to build as high as he wanted to build, property values would be increased while at the same time rents would be kept down. Hence it was argued that in this respect the interest of the individual property owner coincided with that of the city as a whole.

An argument of this kind could be plausibly made during those years in which skyscrapers were few in number, not over eighteen stories in height, and when their erection was confined practically to the financial district. But now that skyscrapers are built in so many different locations, now that an eighteen-story building is considered an example of moderation on the part of its builder, and now that the city has had enough experience to understand the practical working of the lack in this respect of restrictive regulation, it can no longer be urged that the city has the same interest as the individual property owners in permitting buildings to be run up to any mechanically and economically practicable height.

In fact, it can be urged with very much more reason, as Mr. Lawson Purdy pointed out with great force in a recent number of the Record and Guide, that both public and private interests are really injured by the want of effective regulation. Its only desirable effect is to add to the early increase in the value of very desirably situated property, particularly on corners, but in every other respect its effect is injurious both to property owner and public. It encourages mere speculation and promotes the convulsive appreciation and depreciation of real estate values, and it hinders that normal, steady, widely distributed increase in property values and new construction, which is beneficial to the largest number of people. The increase in real estate value, instead of being spread over a large area and of being participated in by many people is concentrated in a few favorably situated locations.

Rents are just as high, public convenience is not promoted, many thousands of people are deprived of proper light and air, and a condition of congestion is created, which in an emergency might be really dangerous. All these effects have been much more conspicuous of recent years. New York has been passing through a period of activity in building accompanied by depression in real estate. The increase in taxation has encouraged the erection of costly buildings by making it expensive for the owners of under-improved property to continue to hold their parcels. They have, consequently, had them improved and they have had to offer exceptional inducements to prospective tenants. The over-building, which resulted, has rendered the depression in other parts of the city more acute, which in turn has increased the burden of taxation elsewhere and tended still further to accelerate building. It is seriously proposed in the Legislature to swell this whole train of causation by encouraging building still further and by adding to the depression of real estate values. But the proposal is not likely to prevail. There is every probability, however, that as a result of the existing condition property owners will wake up to the necessity of imposing some legal restriction upon the height to which buildings can be erected.

THE WEEK IN REAL ESTATE.

A strong tone characterized the real estate market during the week, and it is very likely that the coming week will witness interesting sales. There were notable instances this week of lessees buying the properties they occupy, namely, the Hotel Collingwood and the parcel at 323 Sixth avenue adjoining the northwest corner of 20th street. Private dwellings and sites for similar buildings in the streets adjacent to Fifth avenue, north of 59th street, were in good demand. Henry D. Babcock, who for many years lived on Fifth avenue south of the Cathedral, bought for improvement with a fine home for himself the plot 45x100.5 in 71st street adjoining the southwest corner of Madison avenue. Dr. Walter B. James bought a plot in 70th street that originally was part of the Lenox Library site and which he will improve with a fine home for his own use. Reimprovement of all of this old site will in all probability be witnessed this year. Already thirteen fine homes have either been built upon it or are in contemplation. Only six lots of the total block which the library and grounds occupied are now vacant. Recent indications point to the fact that high-class property is in good demand. A plot in West 79th street, between Columbus and Amsterdam avenues, changed hands for improvement with high-grade apartment houses. Another plot was sold on Fourth avenue, and that will undoubtedly be improved along modern business lines before another year has passed.

That a great transition is taking place in the character of commercial neighborhoods is indicated by the leasing of an entire building in the old silk district in Green street to a firm of metal manufacturers from South street, particulars of which will be found in our real estate news columns. Dommerich & Company, who were in the neighborhood for fifty years, have followed the uptown movement of their line of business, the silk trade. It may be that this lease of the old Dommerich building will establish a precedent for an influx of new lines of business to the lower West Side.

The section of Broadway between Times and Herald Squares will soon witness a big improvement if the terms of a lease made during the week are carried out. The Hobart estate leased the northeast corner of Broadway and 37th street, for a long term of years, and the lessees intend to improve the plot with a 12-story office building, work upon it to begin next May. It is understood that the Hobart estate is interested in the improvement to the extent of $500,000. The property is known as 1372 to 1380 Broadway and 107 to 117 West 37th street. There are eleven old structures on the site now. The plot fronts 129.3 feet on Broadway and 154.10 feet in 37th street. The building is to contain a theatre with a seating capacity of 1,200 persons.

Wages of Sheet Metal Workers.

Editor of the Record and Guide:

The schedule of wages paid in the building trades issued in January by the United Board of Business Agents, and reproduced in the Record and Guide, as the prevailing rate of wages, is in error as far as the wages of sheet-metal workers in our employ are concerned. The rate is given in the list as $4,75 a day, whereas the employers in our association pay their men at the rate of $5 a day. In order that correct estimates may be made by architects and builders, we desire to have it understood that the real prevailing rate of wages for sheet-metal workers, tinsmiths and metal roofers is $5 a day.

Hot Air Heating Defended.

Editor of the Record and Guide:

In Mr. Herbert's admirable article on suburban houses is a misleading statement, viz.: "The old hot-air furnaces are too dirty," etc.

When a hot-air furnace is properly designed and not cheaply installed, it will heat the house better and not "burn" the air we breathe, as is the case with steam or hot-water. The latter can be installed without ventilation, but it is almost impossible to heat with a hot-air furnace without introducing healthful and pleasantly warmed air.

The complaint about dusty inlets and the system a dirty nuisance is not the fault of the system but because the fresh air inlet is improperly constructed.

GEORGE MARTIN HUSS.

The New Civic Center.

Congress having appropriated $3,000,000 for a new site for the Federal Building, the new civic center project is a step nearer realization. The condemnation proceedings for the site of the new County Court House have reached the stage where the present owners of the premises to be taken have finished submitting evidence. Charles D. Olendorf, Assistant Corporation Counsel, who is in charge of the city's case, says he expects to prove that the values claimed by the owners are far too high. The city will not take title to the property until the Court House Board is ready to award the contracts for the building. As yet, the architects have not been chosen.

—Plans for Lord & Taylor's new building on Fifth avenue provide for ten stories. Once it was said that six stories was the proper economic height for store buildings, but later-day experience discovers no great objection on the part of the buying public to going higher.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY.

For Accidental Injuries—Two Legislative Measures Compared.

Much interest has been manifested in industrial and insurance circles in the workingmen's accident compensation bills which are pending in the New York State legislature. One of the bills, the McDonough bill (also called the Murtaugh-Jackson bill), if enacted into law, would create a radical change in the legal position of employer and employee as regards the liability of the employer for damages by reason of industrial accident. The measure creates new conditions in this State in that it makes the employer responsible for practically all industrial accidents, irrespective of cause, provides for a State fund to meet claims for industrial accidents. The fund will be raised by assessments upon the employers who come within its provisions, and it will be administered by State officials.

Under this bill the employer will have the alternative of contributing to the fund to meet his liability for accidents to his workmen, or will be subject to suit for damages for such accidents as occur with all common law defenses removed. The compensation provisions of this bill are excessive, and, while the employer has an elective right of coming under this feature, should he decide not do so, he will be liable for all accidents with the amount of damage to be determined by a jury.

Another bill, known as the Foley-Walker bill, provides for free competition regarding the manner in which the employer shall insure his employes. He may either carry the insurance in a mutual company or in a stock liability company, or he may carry it himself if he be of sufficient ability to do so; or he may file sufficient security with the Superintendent of Insurance to permit him to carry his own insurance, or he may contribute to a State fund under the administration of the Insurance Department.

Under the Foley-Walker bill it is claimed that the employe is absolutely secured. He may feel sure that he or his dependents will receive the compensation once it is awarded to them. All of the insurance plans are under the absolute jurisdiction of the Superintendent of Insurance. He will supervise all of the associations and companies and see that they have sufficient assets before they are permitted to carry the risk.

The McDonough bill was opposed and the Foley-Walker bill favored by the Building Trades Employers' Association and the various associations of contractors of this city, and also by most builders and contractors up-State.

The latest advices state that the abandonment of practically all the workmen's compensation bills, pending in the Legislature, and the substitution of a so-called compromise measure embodying features of the Murtaugh-Jackson, Foley-Walker, McClellan-Esquirel, Carswell and Argetsinger bills, has been agreed to by the Senate Insurance Committee.

Do You Really Know Queens?

"Few people realize how great a city the Borough of Queens considered by itself would be," says Walter I. Willis of the Queens Chamber of Commerce. "Queens to-day ranks nineteenth in population, seventeenth in value of its manufactured products and fourth in its building development, among the principal cities of the United States. It includes forty per cent. of the land area of the City of Greater New York and has 196 miles of natural waterfront and twenty miles of docks. There are more churches per capita than in the Borough of Brooklyn. Many millions of dollars are to be expended this coming year within the borough on new homes, factories, rapid transit, waterfront developments, etc."

An Old-Time Lease.

At No. 12 Chambers street there stood until the site was cleared to make room for the Municipal Building a row of three-story buildings which for many years were used as a school under the auspices of the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen. The land was held by the society under a sixty-year lease from one William Mooney and the corporation of the city of New York, for which the sum of $1,000 was paid, plus an annual rental of only $125. The buildings were erected as one, on two lots, at a cost of $7,000, in the year 1821, and the lease expired in 1881.

The society now has a beautiful building in 44th street, where it trains boys in architectural, mechanical and sheet-metal drafting, estimating for builders, decorative designing, modeling, industrial electricity, applied mechanics, physics and mathematics. Over two thousand students are enrolled in the various classes. The society has a great library, a long membership roll and a fine history.

Once there was in every city a few select societies to which our daddies were proud to belong. A membership certificate from any one of them was considered a badge of honor. The Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen is one of the sort. Its membership roll of the present and past is the best list extant of the men who since the year 1785 have been the foremost builders, master mechanics and supply men of the city.

Commendation for Register Grifenhagen.

Register Max S. Grifenhagen has received special commendation from the citizens' commission appointed by the Mayor to advise the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on new sources of city revenue. The commission consisted of former Deputy Comptroller Edgar J. Levey, Joseph French Johnson, William Jay Schieffelin, F. S. Tomlin, Robert S. Binkerd and Robert McIntyre.

In the report of the commission the frequent contention of Mr. Grifenhagen that a public office conducted to safeguard property interests should be self-sustaining, is fully approved. Discussing this topic the commissioners say:

"In no other county office visited by the commission's representative did it appear possible to procure such exhaustive data as was obtained here—and particularly worthy of mention when extended in a manner most accommodating, frank and courteous, hence the adoption of the records of this office as a basis of computation for the Register's offices in general."

Legislative Matters.

Assemblyman Walker of New York, chairman of the Assembly Insurance Committee, introduced a bill prohibiting the State Underwriters' Association from charging a fee for inspecting electrical installations in this State and prohibiting insurance companies from raising rates of insurance to cover these inspections. At present the builder, owner or contractor pays for such an inspection for the protection of the insurance company, and by this system the underwriters' association employs a staff of inspectors whose salaries are paid by the public.

The making of provisions for one practical instrument in place of the separate bond and mortgage of real property is a task given to the State Board of Statutory Consolidation in a bill introduced by Senator McClelland of Manhattan.

New Brooklyn Elevated Connection.

The Public Service Commission for the First District has approved a contract made by the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation for the construction and operation by the latter of an elevated connection between the Myrtle avenue elevated line in Brooklyn and the Lutheran Cemetery line, so that under the new rapid transit system trains on the Myrtle avenue line may be operated continuously over the Lutheran Cemetery line from Wyckoff avenue to Metropolitan avenue and return.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

Lime Prices Will Be Advanced from 5 to 10 Cents to Cover Higher Costs of Production and Shipment.

Brick Weakens Slightly When Hudson Navigation Reopens With a Bigger Supply in Shed Than Estimators Had Calculated—The Building Outlook.

COMMON brick was a weak factor in the building material market, and the range is somewhat narrower in quotations. Prices dropped from $7.25 and $7.37½ to $7 and $7.25. A few isolated cargoes moved out at $7.50 on specification, however.

Portland cement stiffened further, although there was no actual increase in price. Lime was so firm on demand that it was unofficially announced that an advance of from five to ten cents a barrel would be made probably in April to cover increased cost of cooperage, fuel and transportation.

Certain lines of lumber are also reported to be firming. They are hardwoods and yellow pine. Copper is weaker, which gives the flashing interests a chance to supply themselves with raw material in a sick market for a brief period. Steel products were not quite so active on demand, which was a source of considerable gratification to the producers who are just about able to make their deliveries meet the volume of new business.

The Hudson River is again navigable, which means that many dealers who have depended upon continued cold weather to finish riding from their stacks, may have to sell at prices below original calculations, unless the market improves.

A new condition has arisen in this department which the dealers carrying Hudson River brick did not anticipate. There is a great deal more brick up the river than estimators last fall figured on, despite the open winter. The cause for this over supply may be found in the fact that an exceptionally large quantity of Raritan River brick has been towed into New York and Newark this winter with the result that Hudson River brick has not been in its customary demand. By June new brick should be coming into New York and consequently consumers are looking forward to lower prices when the manufacturers start to clear their sheds to make way for the 1913 production.

If the volume of expected new building operations comes forward with the freedom that builders have anticipated during the winter, much of this surplus brick will be taken care of and for that reason, even the most optimistic dealers do not look for a very extensive change in prices.

Another condition which seems to favor the accomplishment of a continued firm building material market is that the steel companies are reporting a slight falling away in volume of new structural orders, thus permitting them to catch up with some of their delayed deliveries. If they are successful in reducing their unfilled tonnage there should be a greater demand for other basic building materials by the latter part of April when the building season gets fairly under way.

Advices from the bar mills, dealing with reinforcement, fire-escape and architectural ironwork, show that they are sold up to an extent that makes premium business surprisingly large. This means that concessions will be hard to get in the very near future.

AGGREGATE MARKET STRONG.

Crushed Stone, Sand and Gravel Scarce and Stiffening.

THE condition of the concrete aggregate market from Portland cement right down to sand is increasingly stiff and the indications are that with the exception of cement the supply will be below the demand.

In the crushed stone market advances are momentarily expected. Current quotations are 1½-in., 85 and 95 cents; ¾-in., 90 cents and $1, and screening, 90 cents and $1. All on 500 cu. yd. orders at dock New York.

In the gravel market the new price level of 85 and 90 cents is stiffly held despite the fact that orders have considerably fallen off during February. The prospects for a heavy demand when the spring contracts come out are good and further advances are confidently expected.

Sand is in a temporary lull, but prices are stiffly held at 50 cents for full cargo lots delivered along side dock New York.

COMMON BRICK WEAKER.

Navigation Again Open—No More Covered Cargoes.

THE condition of the common brick market is weak and dull. Prices range from $7 to $7.25 with some select brick moving out at $7.50. Dealers' stacks are getting low, but the supply of brick up the river appears to be somewhat larger than the manufacturers suspected earlier in the season. This may be due to greater activity in the foreign brick market, notably Raritan rivers.

Official transactions for North Ricer common brick during the last year with records covering the corresponding week last year follow:

BUILDING METALS STEADY.

Copper and Pig Iron the Only Factors That Are Not Holding Firm Positions.

IF the temper of the general building materials market is gauged by the metals' market there is no cause for worry. The steel companies have been in the market heavily for pig iron in the past so that there has been little buying so far this month. The result has been a decline in prices, particularly in the South.

The demand for light steel products, however, is very strong and the monthly report of the unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation showed a decline of 170,654 tons at the end of February below the January record. The total tonnage of forward business on Feb. 28 was 7,656,714 tons, in comparison with 7,827,368 tons on Jan. 31, 7,932,164 tons on Dec. 31, 7,852,883 tons at the close of November and 7,594,381 tons at the end of October. A year ago unfilled orders amounted to 5,454,200 tons, and the year before that 3,400,543 tons.

The corporation's advance business has been on a decline since last October. In that month bookings amounted to about 80,000 tons a day. January orders averaged no more than 38,000 daily and, in February about 35,000 tons were placed a day. It is estimated that the mills still have enough business under contract to keep them in operation nearly at capacity until past mid-summer.

Pittsburgh quotations on structural steel for prompt shipments of angles and beams are 1.70 cents basic. Future delivery is quoted at 1.45 cents and is somewhat easier than February quotations. Other prices follow: I-beams over 15-in., H-beams over 18-in., angles over 6-in., 1.50 cents; deck beams and bulb angles, 1.75 cents; hand railed tees, 2.25 cents; checkered and corrugated floor plates, 2.40 cents. The following extras are named for cutting to specified lengths: Under 3 ft. to 2 ft., inclusive, 25 cents per 100 lbs.; under 2 ft. to 1 ft., inclusive, 50 cents per 100 lbs.; under 1 ft., 55 cents per 100 lbs. No charge is made for cutting to special lengths of 3 ft. and over.

Pipe discounts are not as firm as last month and shading from 2½ to 5 points is reported on some kinds of business. The sheet metals are operating at 30 per cent. of capacity and none of the large producers are showing a disposition to accept orders later than July 1 at present quotations. The second half quotations which are expected to be announced about the middle of April may show a sharp advance and some authorities think it will reach $2. Prompt shipments of plates from Pittsburgh are held at 1.70 cents and from this city at 1.86 cents. Future deliveries are held at 1.45 Pittsburgh and 1.61 this city.

HIGHER LIME PRICES EXPECTED.

Cost of Cooperage and Fuel Responsible for a Possible Stiffening to from 5 to 10 Cents a Barrel.

THERE has developed in the lime market a decidedly stiffening tone. Prices are expected to advance this spring from 5 to 10 cents a barrel, especially on finishing lime. This advance is necessary, according to the lime interests, because of the high cost of cooperage, fuel and transportation. Prices for 200 bbl. lots in this market during the last ten years follow:

	Finishing Lime	.60
1901	Common Lime	.65
	Finishing Lime	.75
1902	Common Lime	.80

	Finishing Lime	.95
1905	Common Lime	1.02
1906	Finishing Lime	1.12
1907	Finishing Lime	1.12

During the same years a 350-lb. package of Finshing Lime was $1.62 a package.

Average price in		Per barrel.
1908	Common Lime	$0.92
1909	Finished Lime	1.02
1910	Selected Lime	1.62
1911	Selected Lime	1.62

In 1912 the prices averaged about 5 cents a barrel less.

The current price of plaster blocks in New York City follow: 2 inches, 7 lbs. per sq. ft., 6 cents; 3 inches, 8 ½lbs. per sq. ft., 6½ cents; and 4 inches, 8½ lbs. per sq. ft., 7¼ cents. All these blocks are 32 inches long by 13½ inches wide, containing 3 sq. ft. of surface. Only the 2-inch blocks are solid. Current prices for ⅝ plaster boards are 16 cents per sq. yd.

THE LUMBER SITUATION.

Suburban Dealers Coming in Freely With Fair Sized Spring Orders.

LUMBER interests here are beginning to feel the strain of the building movement out in the suburbs. Dealers are reporting an active demand and supplemental spring orders have been received by some houses, especially those handling spruce, hemlock and hardwoods. In the latter the greatest scarcity is found in the low grade stocks, but the price lists are so far, fairly steady.

Spruce in the wholesale market is in its dullest season as far as the Adirondack product is concerned. Most of the prompt delivery orders now being placed are going to West Virginia. Eastern schedules are quoted at $23 and $27, according to sizes, nominal. Few mills will accept orders now at these figures, the trend being unmistakably toward higher levels.

There is no change in lath quotations, $4.10 and $4.15 being the usual range. This commodity is scarce. Hemlock is reported to be well sold up on a $23 base, market. Timber and scantling are in moderate demand. Boards are in the heaviest call. There is little unsold dry hemlock available for this market.

North Carolina pine is especially strong. There have been advances in this department ranging from 50 cents to $1 per thousand on all classes of timber, and to this should be added a further increase of freight rates by water. Vessel charters to New York from Georgia and Florida points range from $6,75 to $7 per thousand thus making a clear advance of $2 over the normal rates at this season of the year.

White pine holds a steady position. There will be no changes, however, before spring, in quotations.

UPTURN IN LINSEED MARKET.

Quotations Move Up One Cent—Mineral Lubricants Prices Firm.

IN the oil department there was a recovery of one cent in the current quotations on linseed oil. Producers reported a good demand from all consuming quarters. There was no oil obtainable at less than 45 cents and some crushers reported an increase in the volume of business in moderate quantities thus apparently indicating that the upward movement will continue. Current prices follow:

Linseed.—City, raw, American seed, 47 to 48; boiled, American seed, 48 to 49; out of town, raw, American seed, 47 to 48; raw, Calcutta seed, 65.

These quotations rule on mineral lubricants:

REAL ESTATE NEWS OF THE WEEK

Fifth Avenue Property Was a Feature of the Dealing This Week.

There was considerable character to the dealing in real estate this week. Prominent among the transactions was the sale of 206 and 208 5th avenue, running through to Broadway; an old holding on Sixth avenue near a 20th street corner; numerous dwellings in streets intersecting Fifth avenue opposite Central Park, and important sales in Harlem and on Washington Heights. The Bronx also contributed some good sales to the market, notably a block front of apartment houses. Selling in Brooklyn comprised good properties in important parts of the borough. There were a few large transactions on Long Island east of the city line.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 42.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 18, against 11 last week and 20 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 24, compared with 34 last week and 21 a year ago.

From The Bronx 17 sales at private contract were reported, against 18 last week and 23 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,986,809, compared with $1,403,423 last week, making a total since January 1 of $12,417,765. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $982,500, making the total from Jan. 1, 1912, $9,477,900.

TITLE INSURANCE is a simple and inexpensive safeguard against loss of property through incorrect survey or faulty title.

You may have maps of your property-but maps have many times been proven inaccurate.

Your title may seem perfectly clear-but supposedly clear titles have many times been clouded by unknown heirs turning up or through disputes as to the meaning of some old will.

The only surety of absolute and continued safety of your property rights is title insurance by

Modern Improvements

Isn't it true that ofttimes some small modern improvement goes a long way towards selling and renting your houses?

Take for example the plan that has recently been adopted by some builders of placing in newly built apartment houses electric washing machines and outlets in the kitchen for electric ironing and cooking.

Does any one doubt, all other things being equal, that these apartments are the ones that will be sold or rented first?

Families of today are educated to demand the comforts and conveniences of electric service, and they are quick to see the advantage of living in an apartment that will minimize the drudgery of housekeeping.

We have other ideas along these same lines. Drop us a line and we will talk them over with you.

Kompolite is the "clinching" argument to use in

Renting Your Vacant Loft

1st, a floor which does not "dust" or gather dust.

2nd, a floor which is soft, resilient and requires no covering.

KOMPOLITE

New York Mortgage and Security Company's Most Prosperous Year.

The past year, as Clinton R. James, president of the New York Mortgage and Security Company, states, has been the most prosperous in the history of the company, and thus far each year has, without exception, shown a steady increase, both in gross and net earnings over the preceding year.

From the organization of the company, in 1902 to March 1, 1913, the total investments in bond and mortgage have been $116,731,419.73, the net earnings for the year ending March 1, 1913, were $270,798.07, and there was added to surplus $90,798.07. Dividends of 12% were paid during the year.

The amount of outstanding mortgages guaranteed by the company on March 1, 1913, was $35,315,737.98.

Definition of the Word "Hotel."

There is an increasing demand for a nicer statutory definition of the word "hotel." So far as the traveling public is concerned, any place at which one may stop for the night is a hotel. Hotel men object to the general use of the word "hotel," because the business as a whole suffers from reflections brought upon it through the action of proprietors of houses which have nothing in common with high-class institutions managed by the better class of hotel men.

MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENTS

A Summary of the Proceedings of the Local Boards, the Board of Estimate, the Supreme Court and Various Commissions and Bureaus Relating to Street and Other City and Borough Improvements.

LOCAL BOARD CALENDARS.

As regards the majority of city improvements, including all that call for special assessments, the Local Boards are in a sense neighborhood legislatures. They have absolute authority over certain street improvements, costing not more than $2,000. With respect to all other local improvements, they exercise full legislative functions, subject to approval by the Board of Estimate. The Board of Estimate seldom vetoes a measure coming from a Local Board. It is before the latter that the property owner should be most watchful to make himself heard concerning proposed improvements. When a Local Board resolution comes before the Board of Estimate, the presumption of expediency is on the side of the measure, as this has been adopted after open consideration by a body supposed to be familiar with local sentiment.

There are twenty-five Local Improvement Districts in the city, each with its Local Board. This is composed of the Borough President and of the Aldermen who represent the Aldermanic districts within the Local Improvement District. The Borough President's secretary acts as secretary of the several boards. Each board has jurisdiction over matters relating to its district. In the case of matters relating to two or more districts, the boards of the districts affected sit in common. The meetings are subject to call by the Borough President.

CURRENT BUILDING OPERATIONS

Including Contemplated Construction, Bids Wanted, Contracts Awarded, Plans Filed and Government, State and Municipal Work

New Geological Survey Building.

The United States Geological Survey has received recognition at the hands of Congress in the authorization of an expenditure of $2,596,000 for the construction of a fireproof building "of modern office building type of architecture." With this sum it is proposed to erect a building on ground already owned by the Government which shall accommodate, besides the Geological Survey, the Reclamation Service, the Indian Office, and the Bureau of Mines, all bureaus of the Interior Department whose work is closely related to that of the Survey and among all of which there is more or less constant cooperation. The public buildings law, which carries the Survey item, authorizes an immediate appropriation of $596,000, the balance to be appropriated as needed in construction. While this omnibus building law is only an "authorization" measure, leaving the actual appropriation of the money to a future act, $96,000 of the amount included in the measure can be expended immediately, having been appropriated by a former Congress in connection with the purchase of the site on which the Survey building is to be erected. Plans can thus go forward at once for the construction of the new building. Address the U. S. Geological Survey, George Otis Smith, Director, Washington, D. C., for information.

Woodbury Granite Company Secures Ellis Plant.

By the decree of the court of chancery in Washington County, Vt., in the matter of the foreclosure suit brought by the Thompson-Starrett Company, of New York, against the E. B. Ellis Granite Company, of Northfield, the sum due the Thompson-Starrett Company was fixed at $247,788. Of this it was decreed that the Ellis Company pay $70,000 by February 1, 1913, or be forever barred from all claim in the premises. This sum was not paid February 1, so that the title of the Thompson-Starrett Company became obsolete on that day, says the Stone Trades Journal.

The mortgage upon which the foreclosure was brought covered the entire plants of the Ellis Company at Northfield and Bethel. The history of the debt dates back to the building of the Union Station, at Washington, D. C. The stone was furnished by the Ellis Company, and the company not having the necessary funds with which to do the work, borrowed about $200,000 of the Thompson-Starrett Company and gave the mortgage to secure the debt.

The Woodbury Granite Company, of Hardwick, has purchased the mortgage of the Thompson-Starrett Company, and are in possession of the entire plant, both sheds and quarries.

Buying Coal Scientifically.

The Pennsylvania Coke & Coal Corporation, of 17 Battery place, is issuing to those interested in the subject of coal buying a little booklet describing "The Engineer's Problem in Selecting Coal," an article by George H. Bayne. It has this preface: "In selecting coal one is not concerned so much with the actual heat contents as with the ability of a certain coal to produce the greatest evaporation under the particular operating conditions. With this in view, directions are given for making standardization tests to determine the comparative evaporative efficiency of the various coals under consideration."

TRADE LITERATURE

New Reliance Catalog.

The Reliance Ball-Bearing Door Company, of 1 Madison avenue, is distributing its new 1913 catalog. The work is complete with prices and illustrations showing the different hanger devices for all kinds of folding doors and their application. The famous ball-bearing feature of this company's hangers is shown in detail. Copies may be obtained upon application.

A Wall Plaster Hand-Book.

The United States Gypsum Company, of 1170 Broadway, is issuing a booklet describing hard wall plaster, what it is made of and what its advantages are. It contains interesting comments in regard to Sackett plaster board and the application of cement plaster, wood fibre plasters and prepared plasters. Copies may be obtained by addressing the company at either the New York or Chicago offices.

The Western Electric Company in 1912.

On account of the world-wide ramifications of the Western Electric Company the final figures as to the results of the year 1912 will not be completed much before April 1st. The sales will be between 71 and 72 millions, which is slightly more than in 1906, the previous largest year in the Company's business. The increase has been in American sales outside of the Bell system, which have increased about 100 per cent. over 1906, and in European sales, which were the largest in the company's history. The results have been accomplished by an energetic selling campaign in the face of increased and increasing competition.

The company is now selling to upward of 30,000 customers in the United States alone. It is expected that the profits will be satisfactory considering the wider distribution and increased competition.

The Board of Directors has established two additional vice-presidents in the company's organization, and has appointed to these newly created positions Gerard Swope, General Sales Manager, and A. L. Salt, General Purchasing Agent.

Warehouse Freight Handling.

In the issue of Commercial America published by the Philadelphia Commercial Museum is contained an article by R. S. Clapp on the subject of freight handling in warehouse, wherein is described the Telepherage System for handling detachable motor truck boats loaded with packages of miscellaneous sizes.

Solving the Floor Problem.

One of the most practical pieces of literature of its kind that has come to our attention is that of the S. C. Johnson & Son, of Racine, Wis. The book that they publish and distribute contains veneers of the different woods themselves, and therefore gives a perfect idea of the specifier as well as to the small users as to the results that may be expected from using the Johnson wood finishes.

There is another little booklet published by the company which describes the different Johnson products, and this is sent free on request. A description is given of Johnson's prepared wax, paste wood filler, flat wood finish, and under-lac, which is a thin, elastic, spirit varnish. The booklet goes on to describe Johnson's wood dye, instructions for finishing new hard wood floors, also soft wood floors, furniture and floor and wall coverings such as linoleum or wood coverings. This work is valuable for building managers, especially to those who are constantly confronted with problems of decorations of various kinds in their offices. The perusal of the book may give them some valuable ideas regarding ways and means of making their offices attractive.

To Preserve His Voice 250 Years.

A new use for a sheet metal product has just been discovered in the recent order placed by Adolph Melzer, the multi-millionaire of Evansville, Ind., for a few sheets of Toncan metal made by the Stark Rolling Mill Co., Canton, Ohio. Mr. Melzer has given to the city of Evansville a gift of $1,000,000, which is to be deposited with one of the banks at 4 per cent. compound interest.

This is to remain in the bank for 250 years, gathering interest, and its total sum to be turned over to the city of Evansville at the end of this period, at which time the original $1,000,000 will amount to almost $20,000,000. The subject naturally arises as to the keeping of the certificate and the saving of the phonographic record which will contain the voice of the giver. Pottery was considered and other materials, but it was not until Mr. Melzer had tested and considered all products that he finally specified for this unique purpose Rust-Resisting Anti-Corosive Aoncan Metal as the best adapted to last the length of time required. He, therefore, placed his order with the Stark Rolling Anto-Corrosive Toncan Metal as the best the tabs will be made of Toncan metal and then silver plated and put in the vaults of the city for safe keeping until the year 2162 rolls around.

Roof Protection at 40 Below Zero.

Forty degrees below zero! Did you ever stop to consider how cold this is? At this temperature a pail of water placed outdoors will freeze almost before you can turn around. Yet a temperature of 40 below is quite usual in the vicinity of South Porcupine, Canada, a good mining settlement 500 miles north of Toronto. Accordingly when the Northern Electric Heat & Power Co. built their new plant in this town they were up against a pretty big roofing and insulating problem. They required a material that would prove an effectual insulation against this excessive cold—and which at the same time would not crack and go to pieces under low temperatures. Furthermore, it was necessary to have a roofing that would withstand the melting snows of spring, without rusting or rotting—and that wouldn't dry out and run during the short but often hot Canadian summer. In short, owing to the extreme climatic conditions, a practically indestructible roofing was required. And on top of these conditions they demanded a roofing and siding that would afford perfect fire protection. In 1911 the town had been swept by a terrific fire, resulting in the loss of much valuable property and many lives. The conflagration has taught its lesson. They finally adopted asbestos roofing.

A copy of a recently published booklet describing this roofing material in detail will be forwarded by the H. W. Johns-Manville Co., New York, to anyone interested in difficult roofing problems.

Better Buildings.

The American Sheet and Tin Plate Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., recently issued a second edition of its popular booklet entitled "Better Buildings."

Devoted, as the title denotes, to improvement in building, this attractive booklet is extremely interesting and valuable to those connected with building and the allied trades. It is fully illustrated and contains detailed descriptions of formal metal roofing and siding materials especially adapted for houses, public buildings, churches, fireproof garages, barns, grain-bins—practically any and every kind of building no matter whether new or old. Many facts are given which cannot fail to impress those who read them with the advantages and safety gained by using metal sheets suitable for building construction. Attention is drawn to the safety from fire and lightning, strength, durability and consequent economy in the erection of buildings of steel. Throughout this booklet is information concerning the latest ideas and most modern improvements in building.

Numerous illustrations are given showing steel roofing, weather-proof siding, culverts, etc. A number of very useful tables of weights and measures are also given and the issue is bound in a manner serviceable and instructive. The previous edition of "Better Buildings" proved exceedingly popular. Architects are advised to send for a copy of the second edition before it is exhausted, to the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, Pittsburgh, Pa. They are sent gratis, if the name of the Record and Guide is quoted.

EXPLANATION OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1913.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page, is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

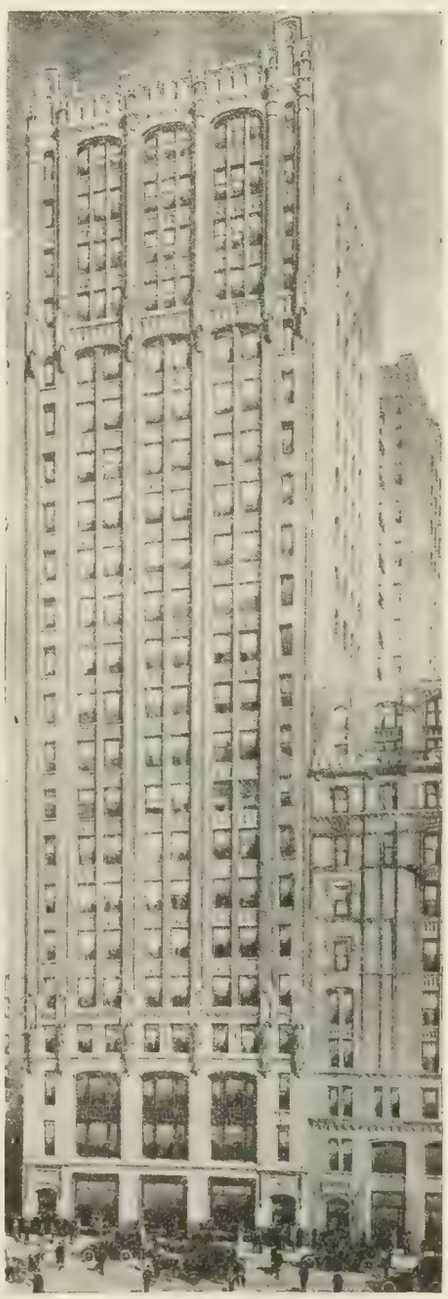
THE LEWISOHN BUILDING

A High Class Modern Loft Building—Details of Construction and Equipment—The New Home of The F. W. Dodge Company and Allied Interests.



A BUSINESS man sat by his desk one day about a year ago in an inconspicuous office in lower Fifth avenue. Before him lay a picture of the New York Central's Gateway to the West. He idly thrummed a pencil as he dreamed of half a million people who would pass through it every day. He saw ten blocks away another mammoth station that could hold 500,000 more, and then he pictured other millions both above and beneath the busy streets halting briefly in their tube trips to and from their surburban homes.

He looked closely at the new station with its ramps and second-story street, and noted that all of its vehicular traffic would be discharged, not in 42nd street, but into 40th street. He figured that 41st street was destined to be a sort of back door or utility street to the new crosstown artery, 42d street, and concluded that 40th street possessed embryonic dividends for the far-seeing investor, provided he had resources sufficiently elastic to carry him over the pioneering stage.

Not long afterwards the newspapers told the story of the passing of Mendelssohn Hall, which had witnessed the evolution of quaint old residential 40th street into a heavy trafficked highway connecting the trunk line railroads going North and East with trunk lines to the South and West. Mendelssohn Hall itself had had a hand in the transition of the street because twenty years before it had encroached upon the quiet of a residential thoroughfare that boasted its proximity to, yet seclusion from, the pulsating life of the geographical center of the Greater City. As Alfred Corning Clark had been a pioneer in establishing the home for the Mendelssohn Glee Club in a residential center, so Philip Lewisohn must be recorded as having been one of the pioneers in establishing commerce in a thoroughfare which until recent years promised to develop along institutional lines, with banks, clubs and theatres.

When Mr. Lewisohn bought the property from the Clark estate for about $400,000 he announced that he would put up a twelve-story building. The more he considered the future importance of 40th street the more he realized that the plot was not sufficiently extensive to be improved in accordance with the commercial prospects in the Grand Central Zone; so he reached over to 41st street and acquired a 60-foot plot running from No. 114 to 118. This gave him a site of about 14,000 square feet, upon which he decided to erect the present twenty-two story structure, known as the "Lewisohn Building."

It is owned by the "West Fortieth and Forty-first Street Realty Company," of which Philip Lewisohn is president. Record time was made in the construction of the building, which was erected from plans by Maynicke & Franke. The building is not only the largest mercantile structure north of 23d street, but in other respects also it is perhaps the most notable of the products of the current building activity in the mid-town section. It adjoins the Tilden building on the west, and will make quite a difference in the landscape view from Bryant Park.

Maynicke & Franke, Architects.
THE LEWISOHN BUILDING.
An Example of the Most Modern Type of Commercial Construction.

Construction.

Reflecting the trend to soften the outline of modern business structures in architectural treatment, and at the same time embodying the latest improvements for the efficient conduct of business, are the characteristics of the Lewisohn Building.

The Building is a high-class loft structure with a frontage of 79 feet, 6 inches in 40th street and 60 feet in 41st street, with a depth of 195 feet, 5 inches. The materials of construction are limestone, terra cotta and brick.

Appearance Pleasing.

In consonance with a spirit which is removing the old shaft and boxlike business structures and dictating a more attractive architectural treatment, the new Lewisohn Building presents a distinctive appearance, with its modern Gothic facades. The style is a free Gothic in treatment, studied with conformity to details in character with the material used. Terra cotta lends itself to the rendering of Gothic details, fallen into disuse on account of the prohibitive cost in stone. The modern introduction of terra cotta into general use as a decorative material is hardly more than a decade old. When the steel frame came in, the use of terra cotta in place of stone as the principal material of the exterior, as well as of the interior, was imperatively indicated, not only by the cheapness of the material in the comparison, but by its superior adaptability to the expression of the construction. For the expression of a frame, which must be wrapped to protect it from the elements, it is clear that great advantages are offered by the use of a material originally plastic, which can be moulded so as to conform to the structure which it at once conceals and reveals.

Terra Cotta Adornment.

What may be taken as the base of the building is emphasized by the introduction of six symbolic figures, typifying as many arts and industries, freely rendered in the vein of the mediaeval Gothic grotesque. Little touches of this kind, lending character and individuality, should be encouraged in our architecture, which tends to be too impersonal, stereotyped and purely utilitarian. As a writer on the subject has said, "One is inclined to feel kindly towards the grotesque—it leavens the severity of architecture and furnishes that 'touch of nature' which is said to 'make the whole world kin.' The man who passes by in the street, happily unversed as to whether this building is an adaptation of Gothic or of Eighteenth Century French architecture, will smile with no less warmth at the caricature which looks down at him. There is a humanizing quality in the grotesque which has its peculiar appeal, no less to be reckoned with in latter-day architecture than in the monuments of the past."

The body of the facade is perfectly plain, a frank expression of its destiny—the housing of business. The crowning stories are diversified and emphasized by a restrained repetition of the Gothic treatment of the base stories, with an introduction of the canopy motive over the figures below.

The elevator entrance gives a pleasant impression of a free treatment borne out by the handling of the main elevator lobby. It has a base course of marble reaching to the door-tops, with panels formed by Gothic tracery, the ceiling delicately handled with a suggestion of groin vaulting .

Rests on 62 Caissons.

The building, occupying an area of approximately 14,000 square feet, rests on 62 caissons, founded on rock, at an average depth of 27 feet below datum. These caissons are reinforced with ½-inch round bars, placed transversely on 6-inch centers, 6 inches below the top, and form the rest for the grill shoes from which the structural steel rises. The bearing walls, thoroughly waterproofed, are from 28 to 44 inches in thickness, sprung in arches, as a support for the side walls. The structural steel work, amounting to 4,000 tons, offered no engineering problems out of the ordinary, as the usual type of cage structure was used, with the necessary wind bracing.

Material Used.

Beginning at the sidewalk level, the materials of construction consist of a polished granite base to a height of six feet. The same material was also used for facing both facades up to the third story. Above the granite base course is the Indiana limestone, laid in ashlar courses, and also used for the large window arches. From here up to the top there is a combination of decorative terra cotta and brick.

After the sidewalls reached a height above the normal level of the surrounding buildings, an iron spot repressed gray brick and a plain repressed buff front brick were used. These different styles of facade brick were used mostly in broadly decorative belt courses on both front and sides. A common hard brick was used on other sections of the building. All brick is laid in cement mortar.

The steelwork is protected by two coats of protective paint and is thoroughly fireproofed by metal lath, with triangular mesh reinforced concrete and fireproof partition blocks and insulating tile system.

Floor Construction.

The floor construction throughout is of the reinforced slab type, five inches thick. The concrete was made of screened and washed cinders and Portland cement, laid over triangular mesh reinforcement on flat tile arches. Each floor is provided with a cinder fill for the necessary conduits and pipes. In the main corridor the floor is laid with mosaic tile.

Promenade Roof.

The roof is also of the slab type of reinforced concrete, thoroughly waterproofed with five-ply paper, and overlaid with quarry tile, making it a very pleasant promenade. The roofs of the pent houses are made up of a specification of five-ply paper under asphaltum and grit.

A Construction Innovation.

An innovation somewhat out of the ordinary in the matter of construction detail is the method of mixing the brown on the walls. The specifications called for the brown to be made of a one-third mixture of Pine Cone limseid and Cow Bay sand. The benefit said to be derived from this process is that a firmer brown is obtained and the walls are not so liable to crack, even under quickly changing temperature.

Admirable Fenestration.

The fenestration is admirable and particularly well adapted for the commercial uses of the building. The store fronts have plate glass with prism-glass tops and all other windows are provided with fireproof wireglass. This is an unusual improvement, not called for by the laws of the municipality or the requirements of the Fire Underwriters. The object is to prevent the floor above from catching fire in case the flames should burst through windows beneath. This is the manner in which most loft fires take place in buildings which are otherwise fireproof. The window sashes are of hollow metal, and all sills for windows as well as doors are of cement construction. In addition to the forty-two windows which light each of the various floors, the twenty-second floor is equipped with ten skylights, making it one of the most economical and efficient for business purposes in the entire city.

THE LEWISOHN BUILDING—FROM BROADWAY.

Fire Hazard Minimized.

Every precaution has been used for decreasing the fire hazard and the entire building contains nothing of a combustible character, even the trim being of bronze and iron. On both sides of the building, from the third floor to the roof, provision is made for air shafts, in the event that tall buildings should be erected on either side. Into these air shafts the fire escape system has been built, as shown in illustration, so that ready exit may be had from the side windows, as well as from the emergency doors, which are equipped with patent panic latches, which unlock and throw open the doors to the fire escapes with the least pressure of the hand. These balconies lead to what are known as "smokeproof towers," to which access is gained solely by way of the balconies, having no direct communication with the building. One of these towers is located on each side of the building, back of the interior staircase wells, and protected from them as well as the elevator shafts by fireproof blocks. These escapes will empty a floor in less than three minutes. Each landing of these towers is lighted by electricity.

In addition to this protection there are two separate sets of interior stairways, built entirely of concrete and equipped with patent treads, making to all intents inside fire towers, so that any possible congestion at the fire escape exits will not interfere with the emptying of other parts of the loft.

Complete Sprinkler System.

Supplementing this, there is a complete sprinkler system, supplied by four 7,500 gallon tanks, twoof which are connected with the lower half and two with the upper half of the building. Heretofore, buildings of this type have been supplied by two tanks. The separation of the tanks is a decided innovation. If a leak should occur in one half of the building, the other half would not be affected. Again, in case of fire, if an alarm should be sounded in the central station, firemen when they arrived would know in which half of the building the flames were to be found. This would do away with the breaking in of the doors on every floor until they found the flames. An emergency wooden tank is also located in the penthouse. These tanks are automatically fed by a Class H 5 B pump. There is also a system of hose and hydrant fire defense and an automatic fire alarm system has been installed as auxiliary protection.

Sanitary Equipment Perfect.

The sanitary equipment of the building is probably the latest achievement of present day practice. In the first place care was used in safeguarding the business rooms from atmospheric contamination by the installation of hung ceilings in the toilets. On every floor there are two lavatories, equipped with eight wash basins and from six to ten water closets with spring self-raising seats, the flushes operating with chain pull. The doors and partitions are of metal construction, and the floors are tile on concrete.

There is a distinct novelty in the toilet ventilation, equipped with a double set of pivoted, chain-controlled ventilating wind window s of opaque wireglass. These are set vertically in tandem, the lower ones providing natural ventilation for the water-closet compartments on the lavatory side of the room. In order to provide complete ventilation the architects designed a hung ceiling, about four feet below the normal ceiling height and open to the upper pivoted windows, permitting two distinct currents of fresh air to enter the appartments.

Best Modern Elevators.

The elevators are the best that modern practice affords. They are of the overhead, electric traction type. The cars, tested to 4,500-lb. capacity, are brass-sheeted, and the flooring is of rubber tile. The enclosures are of architectural metal-work. A feature of these elevators is the emergency exit door at the side of the cars. These doors are so constructed that, should an accident occur and the elevator be stopped, beyond further moving control, it can be opened and the elevator in the adjoining shaft be run up to a corresponding level for the transfer of the passengers.

The power for the operation of the elevators, pumps and lights is from the New York Edison Company's mains. The boilers for the heating plant, two in number, are located in the basement. In order to facilitate the handling of the coal and ashes a conveyor system has been installed, with coal supply chutes on the 41st street sidewalk. The radiators throughout are of the most modern type.

DETAIL OF THIRD, FOURTH AND FIFTH STORIES OF LEWISOHN BUILDING SHOWING FIGURES TYPIFYING ART AND INDUSTRIES

VIEW OF CORRIDOR IN LEWISOHN BUILDING LOOKING TOWARD 40TH STREET, SHOWING LIGHTING FIXTURES, MARBLE AND MOSAIC WORK AND DETAIL OF ELEVATORS AND TERRA COTTA TRIM.

The New York office of the F. W. Dodge Company and the offices of the local concerns affiliated with it will be removed on April 1 to the Lewisohn Building. The affiliated concerns are the Record and Guide, the Realty Records Company, the Architectural Record Company—which publishes the Architecural Record and Sweet's Catalogue of Building Construction—and the National Press Intelligence Company.

New Home of the Record and Guide.

The group of establishments headed by the F. W. Dodge Company at present occupy several floors in the Metropolitan Annex, at 11 to 15 East 24th street. The main purpose of the removal is to bring the establishments together on one floor, partly for administrative reasons, but more especially for the sake of convenience to patrons, who under the existing arrangement of offices frequently have to be passed on from one part of the building to another.

The modern structure into which the F. W. Dodge establishments are moving answers this purpose. The top floor, of which a long-term lease has been taken, contains 12,000 square feet of space, the equivalent in area of about five city lots. The building is designed especially to meet the requirements of users of large floor space. The upper stories are adapted for publishing concerns and the lower and middle stories for importing and jobbing houses. There will be no manufacturers among its tenants.

The New Publishing Center.

A consideration which influenced the F. W. Dodge Company in taking quarters in the Lewisohn Building is that it is advantageously situated in the new midtown publishing center. The building is about halfway between the Grand Central and the Pennsylvania Station, at each of which railway terminals there is a branch post office equalling or excelling the main, downtown post office in mail handling facilities. The development of the publishing center in and near 40th street, while furthered by excellent post office facilities, is primarily a consequence of the uptown migration of wholesale and retail trade and of light manufacturing. Already most class publications not devoted to finance find that their chief news and business interests lie in the midtown district rather than downtown, and the new publishing center has had such notable accessions as the McGraw Publishing Company, the American Press Association, the Hill Publishing Company, the A. B. Swetland Company, the Root Newspaper Association, the Class Journal Company and the David Williams Company. The publishing houses in this partial enumeration issue about thirty-five class papers.

Real Estate and Building News.

The F. W. Dodge Company and its subsidiary companies deal, as a group, with every phase of real estate and building news; and investigation has led to the conclusion that the sources of such news can be reached more expeditiously from the Bryant Park neighborhood than from any other.

The average person can have but a faint notion of how important the news pertaining to real estate and building has grown to be or how many and varied are the business interests which make use of it. Upwards of 200 persons are employed by the New York offices of the F. W. Dodge Company and of the local concerns affiliated with it, and about 200 lines of business are represented by the subscribers to the Dodge Reports.

Growth of a Big Business.

Founded in Boston Jan. 1, 1892, the F. W. Dodge Company now has offices in that city and in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Chicago. Its news service covers twenty-one States, with an area of 555,265 square miles and a population of 51,455,433. In this territory 73 per cent. of the architects in the United States practise their profession, and the building operations for which they furnish plans aggregate $500,000,000 a year.

The company issues on an average 250,000 reports each working day. These cover successively every step in the progress of a building operation; and are so classified that, for example, a general contractor or a subcontractor or a department store may subscribe to the special kind of news required. The reporters for the company average 2,000,000 calls a year upon architects and builders and upon owners of and agents for real estate, and investigate clippings from 2,500 daily and weekly papers.

A New Idea.

The figures just cited evidence a remarkably extensive demand for the sort of news furnished in the Dodge reports. The demand, in so far as it is limited to this particular service, is of course a result of the quality of the news and the manner in which it is supplied. Mr. Dodge, it is believed, was the first publisher to apply the principles of the library card index to issuing business news. The adoption of these principles opened the way for a practically valuable classification of news items, based upon intimate knowledge of the numerous divisions and subdivisions of work in the building industry. The news, as thus handled, may be incorporated without intermediate clerical labor into the office files of subscribers, where its mechanical and topical arrangement make it readily available for reference. As, in addition, the news service is the most comprehensive of its kind, and as every item issued has been verified, the Dodge reports have become indispensable to a great variety of business interests, including a surprisingly large number not directly connected with the building industry.

The Demand for News.

Aside from the unique experience of the F. W. Dodge Company, the demand for real estate and building news has grown with amazing rapidity; and as readers of this newspaper are aware, the growth is symptomatic of important changes in the real estate and building professions, as well as in architecture, engineering, sculpture and allied arts and sciences.

The removal to more spacious quarters will enable the Record and Guide to enlarge the scope of its editorial work—to extend its news service materially and to devote systematic attention to professional topics heretofore discussed, perforce, incidentally and irregularly.

With this issue, the Record and Guide rounds out its forty-fifth year. The paper was established forty-five years ago on the 21st of March, 1868, by Mr. Clinton W. Sweet, who continued to be identified with the paper until April, 1912. We believe it no exaggeration to say that in the span of nearly half a century since the Record and Guide was founded the prospect in real estate and building has never looked more inviting than it does now. The conjunction of forces productive of real estate activity is, indeed, without precedent.

NEW FACTORY LAWS TO DEPRESS REALTY

Old Buildings Will Suffer Most—Cost of Alterations May Amount to Confiscation in Many Cases—Tenants Will Be Forced to Leave.

TWO hundred million dollars is the estimate of the total cost to owners and tenants of factory buildings in this city of the alterations or improvements that will be required by the factory bills now pending in the State Legislature. Without adding anything to the income of the property affected, this will simply be a price paid out in order to keep the premises occupied.

Old buildings used for manufacturing purposes will have to be rebuilt in large part, and even then in a large proportion of cases tenants will be compelled to leave old buildings and seek quarters in new fireproof buildings, in order to be surrounded by the conditions required by the State. Otherwise manufacturing firms will not be permitted to retain their present number of employees. Hence it is particularly upon the owners of the old loft buildings that the blow will fall heaviest—if the score or more of new factory bills which the State Factory Investigating Commission has manufactured are enacted.

For a number of years the State Legislature, under the prodding of political job-seekers, has been enacting legislation which has had the effect of imposing new burdens on New York City real estate. First came a change in the factory law which made the owners of buildings equally responsible with tenants for compliance with the orders of the State Factory Bureau.

Until that time the orders of the factory inspectors had been served on the tenants. The owner of the building in each case protected himself by means of a standard clause in the lease stipulating that the tenant should comply with violation orders emanating from the State and municipal authorities.

Clubbing Property Owners.

With this club to hold over owners, the State Factory inspection system began to do things. First came an order requiring owners or tenants to install extraordinary ventilating apparatus, such as would have entailed a large expense. The Record and Guide made a fight in behalf of property owners and succeeded in having the factory department's policy modified. Various "strike" measures have been introduced in the Legislature. Ever since the Triangle factory fire a steady stream of bills has emanated from one source or another, seeking to advance political or personal interests at the expense of taxpayers and rent payers. Thus, the Fire Prevention Bureau has come into existence, the factory laws have been extended and many more men and women than formerly are commissioned to go around inspecting premises and leave a trail of violation notices. So greatly have the burdens of property owners been increased in recent years that the real estate market has been finally prostrated Responsibility Indefinite.

The bills which the Factory Investigating Committee has introduced are notably indefinite in placing the responsibility for making the alterations in buildings that are required by the law. They fail to state specifically whether the owner or the tenant shall make certain improvements. For example, fire-alarm systems are required, but the bill does not set forth who shall order and pay for them. An owner certainly ought not to be held responsible for the enforcement of the fire-drill law in the shop of one of his tenants. The uncertainty will immediately breed trouble between owner and tenant, and ultimately the owner will lose. The laws are also likely to conflict with orders already given by the Fire Commissioner of the city, although there is a clear statement in the bills that they shall not be considered to limit the power of the Fire Commissioner; still they can be more stringent than even his requirements are.

Confiscation Threatened.

In many cases it is feared that the cost of the alterations will amount to confiscation of the building. Yet the small, old-style buildings on which the bills bear heaviest are, in the opinion of the fire and building authorities, safer buildings than the fireproof skyscrapers. The occupants in one case know they can get out quickly in an emergency, in the other case no one is certain—the fire department can give no guarantee. The Factory Investigating Commission is of the opinion that all buildings over four stories in height hereafter erected should be built fireproof, if intended to be used for factory purposes.

In the opinion of every expert on the subject, the vertical hazard constitutes a very grave danger. How many buildings can be emptied by means of their elevators in ten minutes, or even in fifteen? How many have fire towers, or stair halls that are smokeproof? The Factory Investigating Commission believes that, in order to prevent congestion, it is necessary to limit the number of persons permitted to occupy any floor, irrespective of the exits provided for that floor, and has incorporated this belief in the pending bills. The consequence to manufacturing firms cannot be otherwise than diminished capacity.

Limitation in Number of Occupants.

No more than fourteen persons are to be employed on any one floor for every eighteen inches in width of stairway provided for such floor. For every additional sixteen inches over ten feet in height of any story, one additional person may be employed on that floor. Thus, if the stairway to a factory is but thirty-six inches wide, only twenty-eight persons may be employed on that floor, if there is but the one stairway. Should the stairway be fifty-four inches wide, forty-two persons may be employed on the floor; and double the number when there are two such stairways.

The amendment, by restricting the number of employees, will have the effect of reducing in a greater or less degree the chances of a factory loft being advantageously rented, unless in its construction the provisions of the law have been anticipated. Under such circumstances the value of the building will be lessened, unless the owner makes alterations and improvements that will bring his property within the bounds of the law.

If he will enclose his stairway and stair halls with fireproof partitions, which may be constructed either of brick, terra cotta blocks or reinforced stone concrete, and provide them with fireproof doors and windows, such additional persons may be employed on any one floor as can be accommodated by the stair-hall on that floor, on the basis of three square feet to each person. The cost of a fireproof enclosure from the ground floor up to the roof of a loft building is no small item in any case.

The provisions in the bill relating to the enclosure of stairways do not apply in cases where at the time the act takes effect stairways are already enclosed in fireproof partitions not less than four inches in thickness and constructed in the manner approved by the Fire Commissioner and the Superintendent of Buildings.

What An Owner Must Do.

After the owner of a loft building that is used for factory purposes has enclosed his stairways with walls of brick terra cotta blocks or reinforced concrete, he can make the building still more available by building a fire wall up through the middle of the building from cellar to roof. Then such an additional number of persons may be employed on any one floor as can be accommodated in the smaller of the two spaces, on the basis of three square feet for each person. If the owner will go farther and make a connection with an adjoining building by means of a balcony, or, better, by cutting a door through the side walls, then an additional number of persons may be employed at manufacturing in his building. If he will install a sprinkler system, he may employ fifty per cent. more hands than can be utilized in a building without fireproof stairways.

There must be in any event not less than thirty-six square feet of floor space on each and every floor of a non-fireproof building, or for every person employed on that floor, in any one factory, where more than one factory is contained on a floor, and not less than thirty-two square feet of such floor space per person in a fireproof building.

Fire-Escapes to Be Lighted at Night.

Not only must there be fireproof stairs and halls in factory buildings but the steps and landings must be covered with rubber, asphalt, or other plastic material. Doors must be made to open outwardly or slide freely. At least two means of egress or escape from fire must be provided, and these must be remote from each other, leading to fire-escapes on the outside of the building or to stairways on the inside; and no portion of any floor of the factory shall be farther away than one hundred feet from at least one such means of egress. Upon the outside of the building one or more fire-escapes must be built, unless there is some other safe way of escape at hand for the occupants. Upon the balconies of the fire-escapes lamps must be placed, to be lighted at night when any portion of the factory is in operation. Windows and doors leading to fire-escapes must be fireproof.

HENRY W. DESMOND.

Henry W. Desmond, formerly vice president and general manager of the Record and Guide Company, and one of the founders of the Architectural Record and of Sweet's Catalogue of Building Construction, died at his home in Cranford, N. J., last Tuesday, at the age of fifty. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Desmond was born in Dublin, Ireland, January 24, 1863. His father was a business man in easy circumstances, and young Desmond received the academic education customary to a youth in his station. As a young man, he accompanied his father on a business trip to the United States. Arriving at New York in ill health, he remained here at a hotel to convalesce, while his father proceeded onward to California. At the hotel, Mr. Desmond made the acquaintance of a fellow guest who proved to be the owner of the Titusville, Pa. Times. An offer of a position on that paper induced Mr. Desmond to remain in the United States, a decision for which his father's approval was obtained when the latter returned from the West.

Mr. Desmond began work for the Titusville paper at a time when the Pennsylvania oil boom was at its height, and his enterprise in reporting the local oil news attracted the attention of the Metropolitan newspapers, including the Evening Post, from which he received an offer of a position that brought him to New York.

Later on, when connected with the Times, he was invited by David Goodman Croly, editor of the Record and Guide, to take charge of the building news department of this paper. During Mr. Croly's long illness, Mr. Desmond acted as his assistant in the editorial management of the Record and Guide, and shortly after Mr. Croly's death, in 1889, succeeded to the editorship.

Two years later, Clinton W. Sweet, then proprietor of the Record and Guide, founded the Architectural Record, which was begun in 1891 as a quarterly. In 1906 Sweet's Catalogue of Building Construction was established. In 1905, upon the death of Mr. Sweet's brother-in-law, J. T. Lindsey, Mr. Desmond became business manager, as well as editor, of all the Sweet publications. His health began to fail about four years ago, and last spring he retired altogether from the publishing business and gave his attention to the commercial development of a photo-engraving process of which he was one of the originators.

Mr. Desmond, in his prime, was a man of energy and versatility. He found time to write fiction, to edit books on technical subjects and to experiment in chemistry and in photography. Among his works may be mentioned the novels "Raymond Lee" and "The Heart of Woman." In compiling "Stately Homes of America," he collaborated with Herbert Croly, son of the Record and Guide's first editor; and with H. W. Frohne was joint author of "Building a Home." He was a contributor on architecture and allied subjects to Scribner's, the Ladies' Home Journal, Good Housekeeping, and other magazines. At the time of his death he was one of the contributing editors of the Architectural Record.

In an appreciation of Mr. Desmond's editorial work on the Architectural Record, Montgomery Schuyler writes: "In the beginning Mr. Desmond had no special competency, in aptitude or training, for the editorship of an architectural periodical. He was a man of letters, a maker of graceful verse and a vigorous prose writer. But he was a man of quick intelligence, improved by education; and he came near exemplifying Dr. Johnson's definition of genius as 'a mind of large general powers, accidentally determined to some particular direction.' In the publications under his editorial charge, he set high standards."

For years Mr. Desmond sought recreation in amateur photography. The familiarity with the scientific principles of photography which he thus gained, coupled with his knowledge of the technique of engraving as applied to magazine illustration, led him to search for an improved and simplified method of making photo-engravings. In this search, he enlisted the co-operation of Dr. Spencer Carleton, Prof. William Hallock, of Columbia University and C. M. Cooper, and a new photo-engraving process was finally evolved, which is now being put to commercial use by the Atkin Engraving Company.

H. W. DESMOND.

Mr. Desmond was a man of social tastes, with a spontaneous courtesy and the faculty of stimulating and entertaining conversation. He was a member of the National Arts, Century, City and Faculty clubs, and of the Cranford Golf Club. He is survived by his wife, Sadie Ferguson Desmond, and by two children, Elaine and Lorna.

A New Market Building.

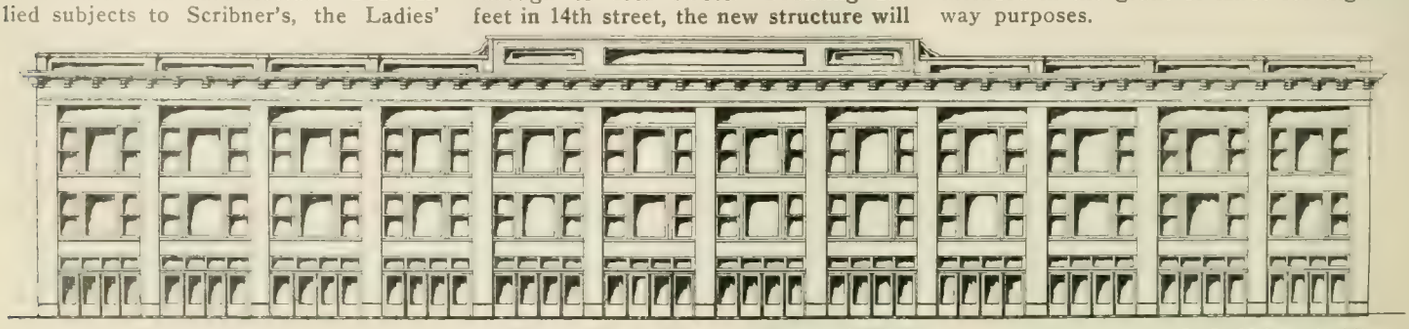
A notable addition to wholesale market space in the lower West Side will soon be made when John J. Gillen completes the projected 3-story Gillen Building at 413 to 435 West 14th street, running through to 15th street. Fronting 250 feet in 14th street, the new structure will embody practically twelve buildings and it will be 200 feet in depth. The ground is owned by the Astor estate and the building will be completed in June of this year. James S. Maher is the architect and the Duross Company has been appointed the renting agent. A large part of this structure is already under lease on the plans.

The building will contain every modern facility for the transaction of the wholesale produce and poultry business. Cold air refrigerating plants, steam heat for offices, modern plumbing and installation consisting of pressed cork and cement are among the structural features. One of the largest wholesale dealers in produce in the city, observing the provision of modern space for its line of business in this building recently leased large quarters in it and will remove there from further downtown.

ABUTTING OWNERS' RIGHTS.

Upheld by Supreme Court—Injunction Against the Degnon Construction Co.

An abutting owner, who also owns the fee of the bed of a street, has a cause of action to enjoin an encroachment upon the street for purposes inconsistent with those uses to which streets have ordinarily been subjected.



This principle has been laid down again by Justice Benedict in a case which Harry L. Bradley and other property owners in 79th street, Brooklyn, between Fourth avenue and the Shore Road, brought against a subway contractor who was using the street for a railroad bed. It appears from the moving papers that the Degnon Construction Co. constructed on said street, between Fourth avenue and the Shore Road, a distance of about one-half mile, a narrow-gauge railroad about three feet in width, with steel rails laid upon ties on the surface of the street.

The defendants sought to justify their right to construct the railroad by reason of a permit from the Public Service Commission for the First District authorizing the construction of the railroad in question, and by another permit from the Department of Parks of the Borough of Brooklyn giving the Degnon Contracting Company permission to cross the Shore Road to Seventy-ninth street with a narrow-gauge railroad.

There was no question, Justice Benedict said, in granting the application for an injunction, but that the plaintiffs were entitled to maintain the action. The court affirms the following principles of law in the course of its opinion, which will be found in full in the Law Journal of March 18:

Authority to use public streets of a municipality for railroad purposes is a franchise proceeding from the state, and the municipality has no power in respect thereto except such as is expressly given by statute, and then only in the manner and upon the conditions prescribed.

The use of a street for municipal purposes or individual purposes, independently of its use for street purposes, is an additional burden upon the fee not included in the grant of lands for highway purposes.

CHIEF GUERIN EXPLAINS.

Defends Fire Prevention Bureau's Orders Before the Realty League.

William Guerin, Chief of the Bureau of Fire Prevention, appeared to outline and defend the policies of Fire Commissioner Johnson relative to the Bureau before a meeting of the Realty League at the Manhattan Hotel on Tuesday evening. The issuance by the Fire Prevention Bureau of a great number of drastic orders which property owners considered unreasonable had prompted the Realty League, of which Wm. C. Demorest is president, to call the meeting.

Chief Guerin declared that Commissioner Johnson had not sought the passage of the law creating the Fire Prevention Bureau; the law had been thrust upon him without consultation or sanction, yet it had to be executed. The spirit which actuated the entire department, he said, was to carry out the laws as they exist on the statute books, with the least possible expense to the owners affected.

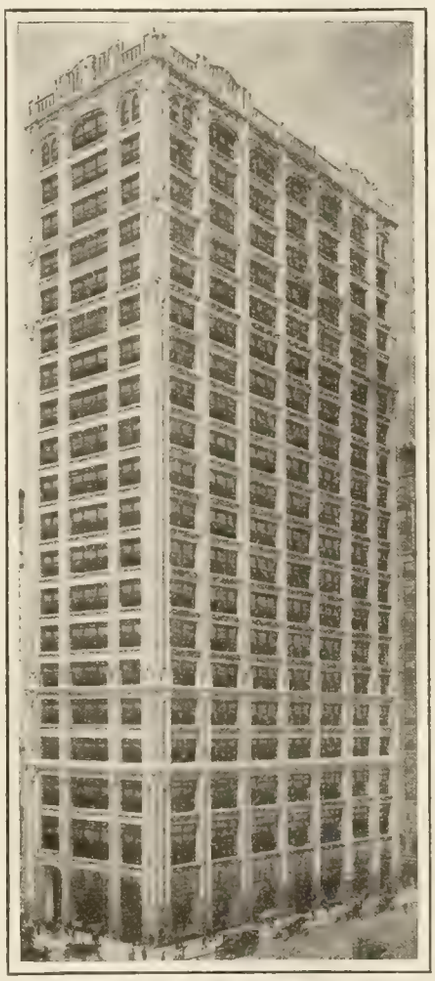
No doubt some of the orders were drastic, but they were based on what the statute demanded. The oft-repeated charge that the Commissioner was acting outside of his jurisdiction in some cases would soon be settled in the courts. The Chief said it was difficult to get architects to comply with the fire law. He cited one big office building in which a single well for elevators and stairway provided exit for over 5,000 people.

Mr. Guerin attacked the proposed legislation transferring the powers of the Bureau of Fire Prevention to an industrial commission. "Trust the Fire Department," he said, "which has served you faithfully for years in preference to this new untried body. I predict you will not find so conservative or just an enforcement of the law as under the present system."

John P. Leo suggested to Chief Guerin that in order to obtain substantial justice a board should be appointed to act as a court of appeal in all cases arising out of orders of the Fire Department which a property owner considers unjust, the board to be competent to judge in such matters. Mr. Guerin answered that under the present system a property owner had the right of appeal to the Board of Survey. He agreed that certain changes could be beneficially made in this branch of the Fire Prevention Bureau, and stated in behalf of Mr. Johnson that the latter would welcome any suggestion which would tend toward the public benefit.

An Owner's Protest.

Charles Kaye, citing his own experiences, pointed out the great difficulties encountered in opposing orders. He declared that he had been told to install fire sprinklers in a new building which conformed in every detail with the existing law and that he spent over $1,200 in fighting this order, which was unwarranted.



Carlisle Norwood showed that in a case where an owner's position regarding an order was just, and the Fire Department's entirely unjust, the owner had to employ experts at big expense to refute the contentions of the Fire Department. The present Board of Survey was of no account, he asserted; no relief had been obtained through any appeal to it, nor had the obtaining of a writ of certiorari been of any avail. The Bureau of Fire Prevention, he said, stretches the law and substitutes requirements of its own.

Alfred R. Kirkus attacked the proposed personnel of the Factory Commission, to be appointed as a result of the recent factory investigations. The committeemen from up the State, where factory conditions are totally unlike those in this city, are totally unqualified, he said, to legislate on matters concerning New York City. He urged home rule. We would be worse off, he said, if we were governed by a board of Gubernatorial appointees than we are today. He declared that the request to have a real estate man on the board had been disregarded.

Among those present were C. H. Burdett, Henry Metcalfe, Henry R. Browne, A. R. Conkling, Richard Deeves, Leon Tanenbaum, A. R. Bastine, P. L. Watkins, and E. N. Taylor. Wm. C. Demorest presided.

tin and Delmonico's, will present an advance in many ways in the best store and office planning. There will be six high-speed passenger elevators, furnished by the Otis Elevator Company, interior built-in fire towers and vaults, and a 100 per cent. sprinkler system furnished by the Automatic Sprinkler Company of America.

The architects, Messrs. Schwartz & Gross, have provided unobstructed floor spans on all stories, clear of columns, which is quite unusual in a building of this width and height. The doors throughout will be strictly fireproof, of Underwriters' construction, and every floor will be furnished with ice water. Although the exterior walls have just been completed to the roof, several leases have already been reported. The Exchange Buffet Lunch, of 3 Broad street, has leased the entire basement floor for ten years at a total rental of $300,000. Two other floors have also been leased to S. Steen & Co., woolens, of Fifth avenue and 18th street, and a part of a floor to B. Kuppenheimer & Co., clothiers, of 114 Fifth avenue, for show rooms.

Wennemer Bros., Inc., have the mason work; Milliken Bros., Inc., steel; Rudolph Seus, cut stone; The Reliance Fireproof Door Company, Brooklyn, hollow metal and copper covered sash frames; the Mulhern Steam Heating Company, heating; Chas. Darmstadt, plumbing; Oberg & Blumberg, wiring; Benjamin Reisner, roofing and sheet metal work; the Reisler Iron Works, ornamental iron; Grassi Bros., Inc., plastering; Adin G. Pierce Company, floor arches, and the Grinden Art Metal Company, interior doors. Canavan Bros. Company did the excavating and shoring, and Jacob Volk the wrecking. F. A. Burdett & Co. are the steel engineers. The renting is in charge of Mark Rafalsky & Co. The cost of the building is placed at $1,000,000.

A PROSPEROUS SEASON.

To Follow From the Signing of the Contracts for the Dual Subway System.

"The immediate benefit from the signing of the subway contracts is sentimental," says Vice President Bailey, of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co., "in that it removes doubt, and doubt is a fearful bugaboo. It now holds the entire world in its grasp, and general real estate conditions cannot improve until the doubt of war, the doubt of money rates and the doubt of intent of the new administration have had their sway and are, to an extent past.

"The signing of the subway contracts should end the depression, and I believe that unless world-wide conditions prevent, we will now have a prosperous realty season."

The Subway Contracts Signed.

The dual system subway contracts were signed on Wednesday in the large hearing room of the Public Service Commission on the third floor of the Tribune Building in the presence of all the members of the Public Service Commission for the First District, former Commissioners William R. Willcox, William McCarrell and Edward M. Bassett, Borough President McAneny of Manhattan, Borough President Cyrus C. Miller of The Bronx, Borough President George Cromwell of Richmond, Corporation Counsel Archibald Watson, and the principal officers and counsel of the Commission and of the Interborough Rapid Transit and Brooklyn Rapid Transit companies.

There were eight separate contracts and thirty-six originals all-told were signed. They comprised the operating contracts for subways and subway extensions with the Interborough and Brooklyn companies; the elevated extension certificates with each company; the third-tracking certificate with the Brooklyn company and the third-tracking certificate with the Manhattan Railway Company; a supplementary agreement for trackage rights to the Brooklyn company over the Queens lines; and a supplementary agreement for trackage rights to the Interborough for elevated railroad operation over Lexington avenue subway extensions.

The construction contracts already awarded under the Dual System of rapid transit cover 26 miles of new road, of which about 18 miles are subways and 8 miles elevated lines. Of this amount

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

How to Keep Income and Maintenance Accounts So as to Afford Useful Data.

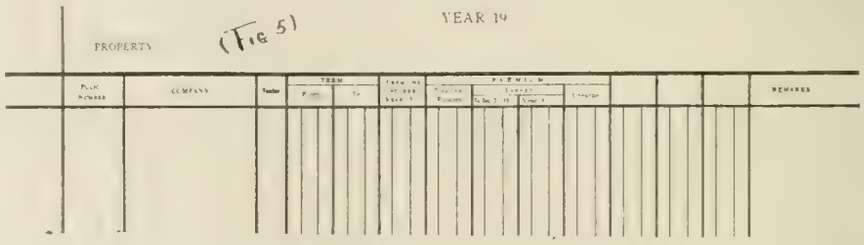
By R. Kinnibaugh.
Auditor American Real Estate Company.

Part II.

SOME expenses in connection with building management are fixed as to amounts, and others are variable; some are compulsory, others optional, and again, others are payable at regular intervals, and others irregularly. Expenses payable monthly, such as wages, are easily dealt with. They are vouched and entered in the Accounts Payable Ledger, as they fall due, and thus pass into the operating account within the months to which they belong. Bills for electric current, gas and telephone are rendered monthly and may also be brought in the same way directly into the Maintenance account. Fuel bills, however, must be treated differently.

In New York City it is customary to make contracts in advance for the season's consumption, and, if there is any bunker capacity, to store coal in early summer. In large business buildings coal may be delivered during each day of the cold season, but in any event the deliveries of coal in any month do not coincide with the consumption. It is, therefore, necessary to make an inventory at the end of each month of the coal on hand, which can be approximated by the engineer of the building by measurement. He will also supply a memorandum of coal delivered at his building during the month. The accountant will thus be enabled to determine the month's consumption, and through the journal will debit the Maintenance and credit the Fuel account with the cost of the coal consumed. Bills for coal when booked will be charged to the latter account, and the balance of the said account (all bills for coal delivered having been entered) will show the cost of fuel on hand.

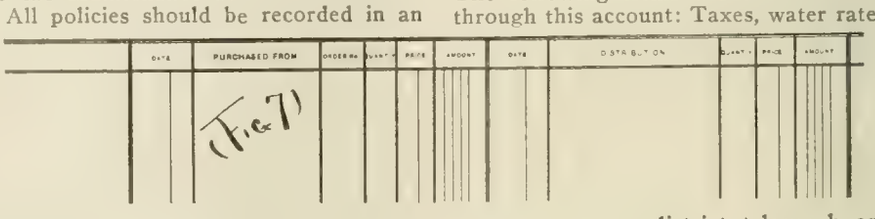
Other supplies may be treated in the same way under the head of Repairs, Janitor's and Engine Room Supplies, care being taken that correct inventories are prepared each month from actual count.



In this connection it may be stated that the books should show the actual cost of maintenance for each month. If no fuel is consumed in any month, there should be no charge for fuel in that month, but fixed charges, such as mortgage interest, taxes and insurance, are to be apportioned evenly over the year.

Insurance Accounts.

If it is the owner's policy to protect himself as much as possible against contingencies, he will carry the following insurance wherever required:

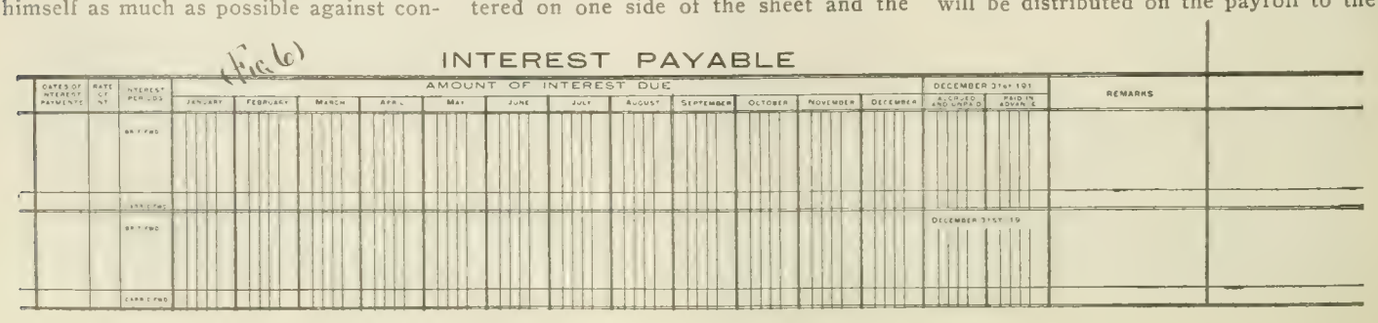


Fire,
Rental value or rent occupancy,
General and elevator liability,
Boiler,
Plate glass,
Sprinkler.

Part of the accountant's duties will be to see that the required insurance is procured and renewed on expiration in reliable companies at the lowest premium cost, and to suggest inexpensive alterations in the buildings or additions to the equipment that will lead to reduced rates, in all of which he will be greatly assisted if he is fortunate in the choice of a broker. He will find that he can save in the annual cost of the greater part of the insurance carried by taking out three-year rather than one-year policies, and he should arrange the insurance so that all policies will expire on the first day of a month.

As a rule, the whole premium, whether for one or for three years, is payable in advance, and, as it would be manifestly incorrect to charge it all to the Operating account of the month in which it is paid—which would be the case if it were charged direct to the Maintenance account—an "Insurance" account is provided, and the actual earned premium is transferred from the same each month to the Maintenance account.

All policies should be recorded in an Expiration Book, obtainable at any insurance stationer's and in addition a "Premium Distribution Book" (Fig. 5) should be kept and will be found a useful means of recording accurately premiums, additional premiums and rebates, and for fixing the asset for premiums paid in advance at the end of the financial year.



Mortgage Register.

Mortgage interest is most conveniently recorded in the Mortgage Register, the particulars of each mortgage being entered on one side of the sheet and the interest accruals relating to it on the reverse side of the same sheet (Fig. 6). Interest is accrued in the "month" columns, and the total accruals for the month are carried to the credit of "Interest" account in the General Ledger and at the same time charged to maintenance. As interest is paid it is charged to Interest account and noted in the register.

Still another item of expense requires a separate General Ledger account, namely mortgage expense. In placing a mortgage or renewing one there is a tax in this State of ½ of 1 per cent. of the amount of the mortgage payable to the Registrar of the county, and if a broker is employed a commission to be paid to him, also based on the amount of the mortgage. This expense should run with the mortgage, a pro rata part of the same being charged to maintenance each month. At the time of placing a mortgage the expense is therefore debited to a "Mortgage Expense" account.

Commissions paid to brokers for leasing to tenants should run with the leases and be apportioned to maintenance in the same way, and to provide for this and all other expenses that should not be charged directly to maintenance, an account is provided, conveniently called "Sundry Expense of Rental Properties." The following items are taken care of through this account: Taxes, water rates, gas range rents, district telegraph and fire alarm signal service, etc.

Repairs and replacements are chargeable to maintenance as made, also alterations that do not add to the value or earning capacity of the building. If material is kept in stock, it is transferred from the Repair Supply account as used. Fig. 7 is a convenient form for a Stock Ledger. Material and supplies should be given out only against written requisitions. If the owner has mechanics in his employ for repair work their time will be distributed on the payroll to the buildings according to the actual work done.

Re-decorating is an important item of repair work, and as a help to the manager of apartment houses, where leases are not required of tenants, and where, accordingly, there may be more frequent change of occupancy, a record should be kept of the decorating done in each apartment. (See Fig. 8.)

Overhead Charges.

The cost of advertising covering several houses should be charged to the respective houses in proportion to the number of vacant apartments or stores in each. If a manager has charge of more than one building, his salary should be equitably apportioned to each, and the same rule applies to all overhead expense. All bills affecting his buildings should pass through his hands for approval and classification before payment and for his guidance he should have before him a classification sheet. (See Fig. 9.)

All expenses are brought together under the proper heads in the Expense Distribution Book (Fig. 10), which is controlled by the Maintenance account, so that when all postings have been made for a month it is the work of a very short time to prepare a statement of results for each building.

At the end of the year the Income from Rents and Maintenance accounts are closed into the Profit and Loss Account, the balances of the other accounts mentioned entering into the balance sheet as assets or liabilities of the owner. A statement of the assets and liabilities of a concern confining itself exclusively to the ownership and operation of rental properties would consist of the following items:

Assets:
- Book Values of Properties.
- Cash in Bank and in Office.
- Accounts Receivable for uncollected rents and charges.
- Fuel and supplies on hand.
- Office Furniture and Fixtures.
- Insurance and Expense paid and not absorbed in the operating account.

Liabilities:
- Mortgages outstanding.
- Interest on same accrued and unpaid.
- Accounts Payable.
- Deposits held as rent security and key deposits.
- Rents paid in advance.

There are numerous forms and devices required in handling rental property accounts besides those which have been mentioned in these articles. The principal forms used, however, have been exhibited herein, and it is only necessary to add that most, if not all, of the subsidiary records may be kept with advantage in loose-leaf books.

—A note from Charles E. Horton, of Seattle, president of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, to friends in New York, states that the steel for the L. C. Smith forty-two story office building is now above the twenty-fifth story. This is probably meant as an intimation that New York is not the only place where real skyscrapers are built.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Brokers' Fees.

What are the standard commissions paid to those who effect sales of real estate and agents managing estates?

Answer: For selling real estate within the limits of New York and Brooklyn, 1 per cent; leaseholds, 2 per cent.; for selling real estate in the suburbs of New York and Brooklyn in the country, 2½ per cent. For selling leases and leaseholds in New York suburbs, 5 per cent. For procuring loans, 1 per cent., or by agreement.

In the case of exchanges, a full commission shall be paid on each side. Few sales are made for a commission of less than $25. Should the title of property prove imperfect whereby a sale cannot be consummated, the claim for commissions is not invalidated thereby. Brokerage is considered earned when the price and terms are arranged between the buyer and seller, the minds of both parties having fully met. It is due and payable when the contract is signed.

The fee for renting for a term of one and under three years is 2½ per cent. of the first year's rental. For renting for less than one year by special arrangement and leasing for a term of three years and upward, the fee is 1 per cent. on the gross rental, except by special agreement. For leasing country property the fee is 5 per cent. of the first year's rental and for renewals to the same party, 2½ per cent. The fee for renting and collecting, excepting by special arrangement, usually is 5 per cent.

Rights in Dispossess Proceedings.

Can a tenant who has been dispossessed regain the use of his premises by meeting all his obligations to the landlord?

Answer: Where a tenant has a lease not expiring for a term of years, and the landlord has obtained possession of the premises through dispossess proceedings for non-payment of rent, the tenant has a legal right to redeem the premises by tendering to the landlord all arrears of rent due to the time of redemption.

Form of Quit Notice.

Please give me in your question and answer department the legal form for quit notice from tenant to landlord.

Answer.—"Please take notice that, on the first day of —— I shall quit possession and remove from the premises I now occupy, known as house and lot No. ——, in —— Street, in the City of ——.

Dated this —— day of ——, 19—.

Yours, etc.,
(Tenant's name).

Statute of Assignments.

Will you please let me have through your Question and Answer column a digest of the Statutes of Assignments for New York State.

Answer: Assignments must be acknowledged, filed, and recorded. The assignee must sign and acknowledge his assent, which may be in or appended to the assignment. Within twenty days after the assignment an inventory and schedule must be filed by the debtor. If he fails to do so the assignee must act within ten days thereafter. Assignee must give a bond. He can take possession but cannot sell until his bond is approved and filed. Notice to creditors must be published for six weeks. A creditor failing to prove his claim in time loses his right to share in dividends which have been paid. Assignee may be allowed by the judge to compromise claims.

Wages are preferred by statute. Other preferences are allowed, but only to the extent of one-third of the assets. Limited partnerships and corporations cannot make preferences.

New Insurance Policy.

The committee of the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners having charge of the question of the revision of the standard fire policy held an important conference last Friday at the local office of the New York Insurance Department and discussed the points raised against the present standard form, giving due consideration to Commissioner William B. Ellison's report. A tentative draft of a new contract of simpler and briefer form was drawn up, and the meeting then adjourned until Monday, March 24, when the draft for a new standard form will be put in final shape. After that it is probable that it will be submitted for legislative enactment in the various states.

It took a long time to get the dual subway contracts signed, but the job is done thoroughly, and was worth waiting for.

Signs of spring are multiplying rapidly. The air is balmier and more fragrant and the days have lengthened out sufficiently for commuters to arrive home before dark, while suburban advertisements are growing in numbers in the Sunday papers, but as yet there are mighty few indications of the "active spring season in real estate" that should have been here before this time.

That was a fine and well-deserved compliment which Judge McCall paid to Comptroller Prendergast, Borough President McAneny, and the other public officers who represented the city in the subway negotiations when he said that the subway contracts constituted the best bargain that any municipality ever had made with an individual or a corporation the wide world over. This sounds good after what the yellows have said.

A book of practical use to firms engaged in the export trade has been issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. It is devoted to an exposition by Commercial Agent Archibald J. Wolfe of credit methods and facilities in Germany, England and France, in which he shows how and by whom long terms of credit are granted in the export markets, and what facilities make these extended credits possible, and an important series of consular reports from all parts of the world is included. In these reports American consular officers describe fully the local credit conditions. Copies of the book (Special Agents Series, No. 62) may be obtained upon application to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., at 30 cents a copy.

What the Dual System Will Do for New York.

The operating contracts for the new dual subway system were signed during the past week with a lack of commotion that contrasted strangely with the existing vicissitudes that attended the whole previous career of the project. The bargain which has been made is certainly the best bargain which could be made under existing conditions. The great profit from the transaction will be gathered not by the Interborough or the Brooklyn Rapid Transit companies, and not by the taxpayers and the property owners of New York, but by the larger public that will travel on the two new systems. All that the Interborough company gains is freedom from disastrous competition with the possibility at the end of ten years of a share in profits, which at the best will never amount to much. The Brooklyn company by virture of its line through the heart af Manhattan will gain more. The Broadway-Seventh avenue subway will unite Manhattan more effectually to Brooklyn than it ever has been united in the past, and will tend to divert to Brooklyn a larger share of the population of New York. The earnings of the Brooklyn company's surface lines will benefit considerably from this increase in population, but as an offset it will have to meet severe competition from an extension of the Interborough system in Brooklyn.

When the system gets finally into operation the value of residential property in outlying districts will be increased, but the increase will be spread very thin. So much new land will be made available for settlement that no one section can obtain a benefit corresponding to that which accrued to Washington Heights after the present subway was put into operation. The largest increases in value will probably take place in the central districts of Manhattan, whose value for business purposes will be substantially increased by the better connection which it will obtain with the residential regions of the whole city. On the other hand, the value of certain tenement and apartment house districts in Manhattan may actually suffer from severe competition, while property all over the city will have to bear the burden of the increased taxes which will result from the operation of the contracts. There will be a deficit to be met probably for a decade after the system gets into operation, which will fall upon the taxpayers. Thus, the only group of people who can look forward to the completion of the dual system with unalloyed satisfaction is the traveling public of New York. For the first time during the past forty years, the currents of travel can run without impediment in practically every direction throughout the city. Its population will be able to travel longer distances in more varied directions at greater speed for a nickel than can the people of any other city in the world.

This is a great achievement, and inasmuch as the benefits of it will be shared by practically everybody, but particularly by the poor, public opinion may well be reconciled to the fact that the propertied interest will obtain any very considerable advantage.

In only one respect may the general interests of the city suffer from the signing of these contracts. Even with all the assistance received from the Interborough and the Rapid Transit companies, the strain placed upon the credit resources of the city will be severe. The credit margin that will remain to be devoted to other municipal purposes will be very small. It will not be large enough to pay for those improvements, such as the proposed civic centre which have already been authorized for the new schools, and for other necessary corporate purposes. Any comprehensive plan of dock and transportation improvements will apparently have to be abandoned unless the money necessary to carry out such a plan can be obtained from interested corporations. There seems to be no way of escaping from the inconveniences of this situation. The assessed valuation of real estate all over the city has already been increased to the limit. There are no more subway or dock bonds to be exempted. The subways, which are being built with the corporate stock now being issued will not be self-supporting for many years, and consequently cannot be exempted. There seems to be no alternative consequently but scrupulous parsimony in the authorization of new improvements. After many years of stretching the limit, whenever it was approached, the real limit has finally been reached.

Neither will much help be derived during the next five years from an increase in the assessed valuation of real estate. Real estate is not increasing in value. There will not be much speculation in anticipation of the actual effects of the new subway systems, because higher speculative values make the burden of taxation so much heavier that the city and not the speculator reaps the benefit. Only in the case of quick re-sales do speculative purchases have any chance of showing a decent profit. It is improbable that with the exception of certain localities benefited by those parts of the new plan which can be brought soon into operation, the increase in assessed valuation during the next five years will not amount to any more than the amount of money actually invested in new buildings. This prediction, if it proves to be true, will not only seriously affect the city's power to pay for new and necessary improvements, but it would seriously affect the income of the city in taxation. The annual increase in income, derived from applying the existing tax-rate to the increased value obtained from new buildings, would be not much more than $3,000,000 a year. This will not be enough to meet the normal increased expenditure of New York, which will mean quite apart from other conditions a higher tax rate. The most rigid economy seems to be the only possible course which can be adopted by the city government.

A Zone with Great Prospects.

The projected erection of a large theatre, restaurant and office building at 37th street and Broadway again calls attention to the curious condition of that part of Broadway between 35th and 42d streets. During the last fifteen years while new buildings have been erected in every other district of central Manhattan these particular streets have remained untouched. Their condition does not differ essentially from what it was during the late eighties. Of course, real estate values have increased in the meanwhile, but no new and important buildings have been erected, no new kinds of business have been introduced and probably certain kinds of business which were formerly very prosperous are now less prosperous. Thus the old hotels on that part of Broadway have been overshadowed by newer rivals further north. The old theatres, while they are still popular, have not the standing which they used to have. It is an open secret that the owners of the Metropolitan Opera House have for years been considering the possibility of removal. The reason for this lack of progress has been twofold. In the first place, certain owners of large blocks of property would neither sell nor improve their holdings, and in the second place the rest of the good sites had already been improved with buildings, which, while partly out of date, were not yet ready for the scrap heap. The proposed improvement for 37th street is the first of any importance for a long time, and under the circumstances its character is somewhat extraordinary. Broadway south of 34th street is gradually being improved with loft and office buildings. The side streets off Broadway between 35th and 41st streets are also becoming desirable sites for business skyscrapers.

It might have been supposed, consequently, that any costly improvement on Broadway itself would be used for general business of some kind rather than for amusement purposes. The whole neighborhood would be very much benefited by some indication of its availability for a big retail store or a tall office building. It is interesting, however, that anybody should propose to invest so much money in a place of amusement as far south as 37th street. If the enterprise is successful it may result in the granting of renewed life to this part of Broadway and its adjacent side streets as part of the theatre and restaurant district. The new Broadway and the new Seventh avenue subways will, of course, make it more available than it is at present, and this availability will be increased by the establishment of express stations on both systems at 42d and 33d streets. In that event these blocks will become extraordinarily accessible and should provide sites for theatres and restaurants every bit as desirable as those further north.

THE WEEK IN REAL ESTATE.

The most important sale of the week was flavored with the romance of history and identified with the inception of the development of New York, properties that were improved when Greenwich Village was far out in the country. It was the three old brick buildings at the northwest corner of State and Whitehall streets which are so antique that Robert Fulton is understood to have resided in one of them. The sale of these ancient holdings exemplifies the salient fact that there are numerous sites south of Bowling Green that yet await the touch of modern improvement and that although the skyline of lower Manhattan has been raised mightily during the last decade there is still considerable room to change it some more. At the present writing it is understood that the corner plot mentioned will be reimproved with a large office building; and, the plot is ideally situated for the purpose, being guaranteed permanent light by the presence of Battery Park opposite it and the advantage of a wide street. Only a short distance away are several ferries while a subway station is close by. Two old estates sold the properties in discussion, the Coles and Overing estates. Long before 1800 John B. Coles, a flour merchant of old New York, resided in the immediate corner dwelling, and little could he have dreamed of his old home surviving until this day or that it would be the site of a commercial structure of great height, for during Coles' time the most imaginative mind had not foreseen the present day "sky-scrapers." Coles was a man of considerable prestige in the New York of his period, being identified with several financial institutions and he was also an Alderman of the old First Ward at a time when Alderman was considered of as much importance relatively as a United States Senator. His son subsequently occupied the old house and another son resided in the dwelling adjoining. After 125 years the property passes into new hands. The Overing family originally occupied the dwelling that it has just sold. It is somewhat remarkable that in the oldest part of the city there are such old buildings on a prominent corner that have survived so long. Within the next few days it will probably develop who the buyer of this important plot is.

There were some notable sales of property in Harlem and on Washington Heights and in the Fifth avenue neighborhood north of 59th street during the week. Prominent among the leases was the leasing of the northeast corner of Broadway and 37th street by the Hobart estate, the particulars of which will be found elsewhere. The Bronx contributed one large transaction. Brooklyn is just now displaying unusual activity in all its parts. A notable feature of the selling there is the activity in properties downtown in old neighborhoods contiguous to the subway route. Some large transactions have also been negotiated in Queens.

Should the Board of Brokers Enlarge Its Field?

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The question of a change of name and modification of the constitution is now being agitated by the brokers. One of the reasons advanced for the change is the need of bringing into the association all interests identified with real estate, thereby giving greater scope and range to the society.

The members, now about 150 strong, are made up principally of brokers and agents actively engaged in selling, leasing and managing real estate. While brokers represent only the commissions derived from real estate transactions, the Board of Brokers, owing to the high character of its members and the admirable management of the association, has been able to wield an influence of considerable importance in our city. But the influence, we hold, great as it may be, is small in comparison with that which might be acquired by a board which represented real estate itself in all the tremendous activities. In the not far distant past, a great many of the large estates looked somewhat askance at brokers, believing that, as a class, they were unreliable and good people to keep away from. All this is now changed, and representatives of estates with large property holdings are most anxious to cultivate friendly relations with all reliable brokers of reputation. The representatives of these large realty holdings would be most desirable material for our board. They cannot come in now, as our constitution and our name will not admit of it.

A great many other men identified with real estate might be eligible and desirable, and would give strength to our society, provided we opened the door for their admission.

The effect of letting down the bars would be beneficial to those coming in and to real estate interests in general, but the greatest benefit would accrue to the brokers themselves.

Every member now belongs to the board primarily for some good which he is deriving from the association. His acquaintance with other members, the goodfellowship and the friendly relations with his fellows are the principal source of benefit to the majority.

While this source of good cannot be accurately measured or defined, it holds the members together with a strong bond. If this community of interest is of benefit to brokers, who cannot earn commissions from each other, would not the benefit be still greater to the brokers when they might associate with themselves principals, attorneys, trustees and all desirable elements interested in the upbuilding of real estate in this great city.

The time is ripe to bring them in. The Real Estate Board of Brokers should avail itself of the chance to enlarge its scope and power.

It has been objected by some that by enlarging the board the brokers might lose control of the association and of its property, consisting of a valuable plant of maps and records and a cash surplus of about $20,000. We might be influenced to our disadvantage by the opinions of non-brokers who should have interests at times at variance with those of the brokers.

There should be no cause for alarm. The proposed change of constitution would provide against that, and it has been taken care of in the changes to the constitution by a division of the members into "resident active," suburban associate, and honorary members. The control would be always in the brokers as it is now. Many benefits would come to the brokers, both as individuals and as a body. Great good would accrue to real estate as an investment. Such a society as the Real Estate Board of New York would be a tremendous influence for good in our city and in our government, both municipal and state.

The plan and the idea are worthy of careful thought, not only by real estate brokers, but by outside real estate interests as well. CHAS. E. DUROSS, Vice-President Real Estate Board of Brokers.

New York, March 19.

The Increment Tax Again.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Stewart Browne correctly says in your issue of March 15: "The unearned increment tax is advocated not on the ground of municipal protection afforded and benefits derived, but on the ground that the community produced such increase in value, and not the individual, and that the community should receive a percentage of, if not all of, such increase. * * * If the community is entitled to any percentage of the increased value of realty, it is equally entitled to 100 per cent.; and, if so entitled, it is equally entitled to any or all the increased value of all things. The logical outcome of this is State ownership and operation of all things, the people to be employed by the State."

Taking a share of the increase in value of land in blocks by taxes levied periodically or on transfer is simply a method of public sharing in the profits of land speculation. It has the effect of making land speculation more risky, but in its most usual form, as practised in Germany, it forms a penalty on transfers.

Nothing can now stop the tendency towards appropriation by the people of the increase of land values created by society. The fact that in Germany and elsewhere taxes on increases or on transfers have produced astonishing revenues makes this attractive to the budget makers; but that appropriation is on a very different basis from the socialization of land values by taking the rental value of all land in taxes.

The object of radical tax reformers is not merely to raise revenue without taxing labor, but to open all the land to all the people.

To take future increase in value in taxes is an assertion, not of the right of the people to the use of the earth, but only to a part of one value which the people may create.

BUILDING CODE REVISION.

Another Commission to Undertake the Work.

The Committee on Buildings of the Board of Aldermen, having obtained an appropriation of $15,000 for the purpose, will select an advisory committee and undertake once again to revise the Building Code. Quarters have been opened at 51 Chambers street for the accommodation of the clerks and meetings of the committees. Alderman Herbst is chairman of the Building Committee. Public hearings will begin next month.

The proposed code, Chairman Herbst says, will be based on the sections of last year's code that were approved, and the whole will be brought up to date with the help of the Joint Committee which has offered to lend its assistance.

The experts who will be called in this spring will include Ernest Flagg, Audley Clarke, M. J. Horan, A. L. A. Himmelwright, A. J. Thomas, John Sheehan, Lawrence Veiller, J. T. Whiskeman, J. F. Meehan, G. B. Ford, R. D. Kohn, Owen Brainard, William Emerson, C. W. Stoughton, Lionel Moses, D. E. Waid, Julius Franke, F. D. Pell, Dudley McGrath, W. P. Bannister, B. D. Traitell, William Crawford, Lewis Harding, C. C. Norman, E. W. Stern, H W. Hodge, E. P. T. Stewart, Prof. I. H. Woolson, Robert Chrystie, F. E. Conover, Oscar Lowenson, G. H. Morris, C. Schubert, J. J. Murphy, R. P. Miller, P. J. Carlin, J. A. Henderson, J. J. Moore, John Seaton. Chief Guerin of the Fire Prevention Bureau and Assistant Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien will assist in preparing the report.

The following societies are represented:

The New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the Building Trades Employers' Association, the American Institute of Consulting Engineers, the Brooklyn Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the New York and National Board of Fire Underwriters, the New York Society of Architects, the Mason Dealers' Exchange of New York, the Manufacturers' Association, and the Tenement House Commission of the Charity Organization Society.

The revision of 1912 was prepared by the Joint Committee, of which Benjamin D. Traitel was chairman and Robert D. Kohn was secretary. The Fusion members of the Board of Aldermen said they would pass it. The hearings developed considerable opposition from small builders in outlying districts, and the code has lain in committee with no report since April 23, 1912.

SUBWAY CONTRACTS.

about 10 miles are on lines allotted for operation to the New York Municipal Railway Corporation (Brooklyn Rapid Transit) and about 16 miles on lines allotted for operation to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. The latter figure, however, includes about 8 miles of elevated railroad in Queens, over which the Brooklyn company also will have trackage rights. Approximately 5,653 men are employed.

All these contracts were awarded by the Public Service Commission acting for the City of New York, and the total of the contract prices is $75,637,628.84. Of this total, $35,135,637.84 is being expended upon Interborough lines, and $40,501,991 on the lines for the Brooklyn company. The latter includes the Fourth avenue subway in Brooklyn and the Centre street loop in Manhattan, both of which are practically completed, and five sections on the Broadway-59th street subway, extending from Trinity place and Morris street north to a point in Broadway between Houston and Bleecker streets. The bulk of the work on the Interborough lines is on Lexington avenue from 53d street north to 157th street in The Bronx, but this work also includes a section of the Pelham Bay branch in 138th street and Southern boulevard, and two sections of the Corona and Astoria lines in Queens.

—Work has been started on the reconstruction of the bridge over the Bronx River connecting Yonkers and Mount Vernon. The contractor is Frank Nordone, of Mount Vernon. His bid was $19,500, and he is to have the work completed by September.

—The Dock Department has received authority to build a pier of full size and a pier of half size, each 1,200 feet long, at the foot of West 44th and 46th streets, to cost $5,800,000. Commissioner Tomkins protests against the location of long piers on the upper West Side.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

The Hardware Price Situation and Its Effect Upon Present and Prospective Consumers in This Market.

Common Brick Stacks Lower—Stiffening Tone in Paints and Ingredients—Lumber Firming from Week to Week—A Close Analysis of the Steel and Pig Iron Departments—Building Waits on Renting Market.

NEW building material orders for spring delivery are not coming out as fast as some interests would like to see them. As far as manufacturers are concerned, this attitude of the consuming market is highly satisfactory, because in all departments but common brick, the demand is very much in excess of supply with the result that prices are stiff, and in many lines actual advances are expected to occur within the next thirty days.

The price situation in the hardware department is particularly acute, due chiefly to the fact that the dealers are taking exception to the aggressive attitude of the jobbers in selling to consumers at price levels practically equivalent to those the dealers purchase on. The National Association has just taken up this matter with the idea of checking it, if possible, by trying to find a means whereby the manufacturer will have to give the dealers the same quotation as that he gives the jobber, although the dealer does not buy in such large quantities as the distributor.

The consumer stands aside as an interested spectator in this fight, which may result in one of the most important items of building construction being plunged into a cutting campaign and thus reduce in a measure the cost of building construction. In the meantime there is considerable price shading all along the line, and while other departments of building material are being held firmly at list quotations, consumers of hardware are enabled to underbuy the lists as issued by manufacturers' catalogs in many cases.

There is a stiffening tone in the paint market and in the department of paint ingredients. Linseed oil was firm this week, but not sufficiently so as to be termed stiff. The lumber situation continues under heavy pressure, although mostly on orders which will not be delivered until late in the spring. Additional mill capacity blown in at the steel plants and the falling off of structural orders is relieving the congestion to some extent, although specifications are not being taken except on the most rigid terms. There was some improvement in the stone market, and in fact, the wholesalers in that line are reporting an improved inquiry.

The Portland cement market has assumed an inquiring tone, but there is comparatively little demand, as the dealers are working off their present stocks before they come into the market on the higher schedules. Concrete aggregates were without change, although the market is very strong.

The final signing of the subway contracts this week gave a decided impetus to the market, so far as tone was concerned. It needed just such a turn in events to put it back into an optimistic temperament. With more than 125,000 tons of structural steel, twice that number of barrels of Portland cement, millions of common, enameled and hollow brick, vast quantities of terra cotta conduits, and other materials in prospective demand the final signing removed the last doubt as to the temperament of the building material market for the immediate future.

BRICK MARKET INACTIVE.

Dealers' Stacks Reported Fairly Well Cleared—Prices Weak.

DEALERS have cleared out their stacks fairly well, which accounts for the weakness of the general wholesale brick market. Another cause of the dullness is the usual spring retard on new building operations. There is little probability that heavy sales of brick will be made until the building season is fairly under way, or until prospective operators can take some measure of the market for the available renting space in buildings which will be in the leasing market this spring.

THE HARDWARE PRICE SITUATION.

Hardware Dealers and Consumers Consider Problem.

HARDWARE interests throughout the country have become aroused over what they consider the menace of the mail order house. From time to time hardware men have taken this matter up in meeting with the idea of finding some way of meeting the competition and retain the business of the small building trade at the usual price levels. President L. C. Abbot, of the National Hardware Dealers' Association, discussing the price situation, made these observations:

"In nearly every city where jobbers are located the question of the jobber selling direct to the consumer is a very live one, and for a number of years has been passed over without comment by our association in the hope that by some means the question could be eliminated; but it has not been, and the practice has grown with each succeeding year.

"We want to be absolutely fair to the jobber, and we want him to be fair to business, provided he protects the interests of the retailers who supply him with that business, and, also, that he furnishes us with the price at which we can compete."

"The manufacturer, to a very large extent, either openly or under cover, sells these large houses their goods undoubtedly at a price at which they could resell them at the figures they quote and make a profit, and at the same time sell the goods for, in many cases, less than we are buying them. This is not right, but it will continue as long as we permit it to continue."

In recent years the higher cost of building construction has prompted many concerns, putting up speculative building and development houses, to take advantage of the lower prices offered by these jobbers. As a matter of fact the complaint of the National President voices exactly the conditions prevailing here, but the average builder who does not find himself confined by specifications calling for special brands of building hardware, will get bids from dealer, comparing them with his discount and with the prices quoted in mail order catalogs, and will very often place his order with the catalog house and obtain the same standard goods that he would buy at a higher price from the dealer.

This may account for the general complaint being made by hardware dealers in the city, that they are no longer enjoying the building hardware business that they formerly did. In fact, almost any hardware dealer will say today, that excepting for small transient business usually made up of alteration work, he sees very little of the hardware trade he had on his books before the advent of price shading and the mail order business.

The question, however, centers in the purchasing power of money. In the first case the manufacturer has high operating cost and burdensome overhead charges. If the market is dull the retailer is not purchasing. In the meantime his stocks pile up. Here comes a jobber who pays cash for carloads of his stored products and asks in return that there be no restrictions on his sales. He catalogs these goods and sells them to mail order customers. He advertises and creates business. The dealer does not advertise on such a scale and he finds his business waning. The consumer gets his hardware at a better price for the same standard brand. If he is a speculative builder he has large quantities of money to turn over quickly. His materials have cost him from 10 to 20 per cent. more than they did two years ago. It is natural for him to try to cut down his construction costs, and hardware alone runs up to several thousand dollars. Furthermore, the mail order house gives him discount for payment from 30 to 60 days, and can afford to do it, and he asks why he should be made to pay a higher price for building hardware merely because dealers get together and try to hold the market on their own lists.

PAINTS AND OILS.

Current Quotations on Oils and Ingredients Used in Paints.

PAINTS, oils and varnishes have been exceptionally active so far this year. Prices have remained fairly stiff excepting in one or two commodities like linseed oil, but the difference in this market has been compensated for by the outside stiffening tone of the crude oil market and in white lead. The following quotations are given showing the tendency of the market. The asterisk indicates stiffening market.

HEAVY STEEL ORDERS.

Firmer Tone in Eastern Structural Requirements Calling for Futures.

ONE of the conspicuous features of the building material market this week was the improved tone of the Eastern structural steel market. There was an actual increase in the placing of specifications for finished steel, and the mills reported having obtained additional facilities for making shipments into New York. Fabricated steel prices are firmer here where heavy contracting has been conspicuous since the first of the year and where deliveries have been specified for late spring construction.

The most serious indication of shortage is in plates, in which the mills have been swamped by the demands of the car builders. Two of the largest plate makers in Pittsburgh district are known to be further behind in the filling of specifications on steel plates than they were at the opening of February. The merchant bar manufacturers are catching up on back business. Agricultural implement and automobile manufacturers are experiencing less difficulty in getting prompt deliveries of bars than they were six weeks ago.

The steel market analysis see in the current prices of iron some indication that the steel men are easing the pig iron market by making small engagements for the coming quarter. It should be borne in mind that heavy stocks have been carried and that so far as the steel interests are concerned, the seasonable retard in Eastern building construction has not been felt in this commodity.

THIS METAL CEILING HAS CHARACTER

Beam Ceiling, Craftsman Style, in a Suburban Residence

A plain design—most effective as the "finishing touch." In Craftsman style, grained to match the effect of fine woodwork, it has all the advantages inherent to metal construction. No nails. All joints tongued and grooved. It does not shrink, swell or "craze." It is incombustible and does not harbor insects. Can be put up directly on wooden beams, flat tile arches or placed over plaster ceilings.

When a merchant decides to move into larger or better quarters, he begins to figure the "extras" in addition to the rental cost.

The cost and upkeep of floor covering is one of the most important items of incidental expense. One of the strongest arguments you can offer a prospective tenant is to show him a floor, which has the decorative effect of a rug, is resilient and a deadener of sound, with no expense for upkeep.

We are equipped to take your contract—furnish the material—lay the floor and guarantee the job. Call at our office for inspection of material or telephone for samples.

ENNIS & SINNOTT deny the report to the effect that they had sold the flat at the southwest corner of 8th av and 113th st.

SENATOR THOMPSON has introduced a bill providing that all buildings hereafter constructed within the limits of a city of more than 2,000 population, and which cost $500 or more, shall have slate or other fireproof roofs. Violation is made a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of $500.

A MORTGAGE for a term of 21 years was recorded yesterday in connection with the recent transfer of the St. James Building, at Broadway and 26th st. The mortgage embodies several unique features. For the first year this mortgage bears interest at 2 per cent. For the second year the rate will be 2½ per cent. and for the next 5 years 3 per cent. Then it goes to 3¼ per cent. for the following 7 years and to 3½ per cent. for the final 7 years of the 21-year term. On June 1, 1914, the amount of the mortgage is to be reduced by $25,000, and on August 10, 1914, by an additional $25,000. Semi-annually thereafter, until February, 1934, $25,000 is to be paid off, so that at maturity the mortgage will have been reduced by $1,025,000. The mortgage is made by the new owner, a corporation known as St. James Building, in favor of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Co., which acquired the property about 7 years ago. The deal also covers the adjoining low building, 1129 Broadway, which separates the St. James from the Townsend building. The St. James building and the adjoining low structure occupy a plot fronting about 117 feet on Broadway and 109 feet in 26th st. This year's tax assessments show a valuation of $2,030,000 for the entire property. In addition to the $3,000,000 mortgage, there was also recorded yesterday a second mortgage of $65,000 on the property in favor of Emmett S. Hamilton, as trustee.

Water Tax Now Due.

A notice from the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity states that water rents have been due and payable since January 1, under a new law. The change in the law was made in April, 1912, amending Section 476 of the greater New York charter, which provided also that the water charges for 1912 should cover only the period from May 1 to December 31, starting the new arrangement on January 1, 1913. Bills for 1912 water charges were therefore rendered for a period of eight months, and this fact seems also to have been overlooked by many of the property owners, who, notwithstanding the fact that they paid in 1912 two-thirds of what they had in 1911, are apparently surprised to find that they have to pay a larger bill in 1913 than in 1912.

The provisions of the law formerly provided three months in which to pay the water charges before penalty would be imposed, and the same provision is made in the amended law, merely advancing the date correspondingly. It would be advisable for all who have not paid their annual charges to do so immediately, as many who delay until the last moment find it impossible then to make payment on the final day and consequently have a penalty of 5 per cent. added to their bills.

Flushing Creek Improvements Will Help Real Estate.

Col. William T. Roessler, chairman of the United States Army Board of Engineers, predicts that the $255,700 appropriation in the last Rivers and Harbors bill for Flushing Bay improvements was one of the most important things from a commercial point of view that has been accomplished in years for Flushing and the Third Ward of Queens.

The appropriation provides $20,000 for the maintenance of the bay and $235,700 for the improvement of the channel up to Main street bridge. The new channel will be entirely bulkheaded, of a uniform width of 200 feet, and of a depth of 10 feet. As a large amount of new docking space will be made easily available, real estate values along the creek are expected to rise.

A Summary of the Proceedings of the Local Boards, the Board of Estimate, the Supreme Court and Various Commissions and Bureaus Relating to Street and Other City and Borough Improvements.

LOCAL BOARD CALENDARS.

As regards the majority of city improvements, including all that call for special assessments, the Local Boards are in a sense neighborhood legislatures. They have absolute authority over certain street improvements, costing not more than $2,000. With respect to all other local improvements, they exercise full legislative functions, subject to approval by the Board of Estimate. The Board of Estimate seldom vetoes a measure coming from a Local Board. It is before the latter that the property owner should be most watchful to make himself heard concerning proposed improvements. When a Local Board resolution comes before the Board of Estimate, the presumption of expediency is on the side of the measure, as this has been adopted after open consideration by a body supposed to be familiar with local sentiment.

There are twenty-five Local Improvement Districts in the city, each with its Local Board. This is composed of the Borough President and of the Aldermen who represent the Aldermanic districts within the Local Improvement District. The Borough President's secretary acts as secretary of the several boards. Each board has jurisdiction over matters relating to its district. In the case of matters relating to two or more districts, the boards of the districts affected sit in common. The meetings are subject to call by the Borough President.

The Tenement House Department.

The following informal notification to architects, builders and contractors, as well as owners and building men, is made by Frank Mann, 2d Deputy Commissioner:

"It will be of interest to architects, builders and contractors, as well as owners and material men, to apprise them of an order made by Mr. Commissioner Murphy and which affects all tenement houses where fireproof doors are required. The substance of the order is to the effect:

"'Sheet metal doors are not accepted as fireproof.'

"It has been discovered that the practice for some years has been to put in a sheet of metal in the panels of so-called fireproof kalamein doors, and the practice has grown to the extent of making so-called kalamein doors which consist of a mere frame and one large panel of 22x68 inches. Therefore, under the above order, doors with single sheet metal panels will not be accepted."
